PREFACE.

THE Proprietors trust that the present Edition of KELLY'S DIRECTORY OF DEVONSHIRE AND CORNWALL may be found equal in accuracy to the previous ones.

It comprises a general account of both Counties, with the Hundreds and Poor Law Unions, a sketch of the Geological features of each County, and the Places in both alphabetically arranged, with the Inhabitants, both Private Residents and those engaged in Commerce and Trade.

Under each Parish, the Division of the County (as formed under the provisions of the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885"), the Hundred, Union and County Court District, the Diocese, Archdeaconry and Rural Deanery, are given, as also the College and University of every Beneficed Clergyman as far as they can be ascertained, and the names of the Parish Clerks and lists of the Farm Bailiffs of Gentlemen farming their own land have been added.

The County Councils, formed under the "Local Government Act, 1888," are included, with the names and addresses of the members; likewise changes under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894."

The Maps of the two Counties have been specially prepared for this Edition.

The Proprietors have again to return their thanks to those Clergymen, Magistrates' Clerks, Registrars and other Gentlemen who may have assisted their Agents when collecting the information for the present Edition.

* * The Letters S.O. and R.S.O. at the end of Addresses in various parts of the book are abbreviations adopted by H.M. Post Office to represent Sub-Office and Railway Sub-Office; and if these initials, with the name of the County, are added to the addresses of letters in lieu of the usual name of Post Town, the delivery of such letters will be accelerated.

DEVONSHIRE.

DEVON is a south-western shire on the English and Bristol Channels, adjoining to the peninsula of Cornwall, bounded on the north and north-west by the Bristol Channel, on the north-east by Somerset, on the east by Dorset, and on the south by the English Channel: the river Tamar, separating it from Cornwall, forms the greater part of the western boundary.

The boundaries of Devon were altered by the Act 7 & 8 Vic. cap. 61, 1844, by the addition of 8,568 acres and by the severing of 4,896 acres. The townships annexed were Stockland and Dallwood from Dorset, and Bridgerule from Cornwall; the townships severed, Thornecombe and Beechall added to Dorset, and that part of Maker which formed part of Vauvershome added to Cornwall.

In pursuance of section 54 of the "Local Government Act, 1888," 51 & 52 Vic. cap. 41, the boundaries were again altered March 23rd, 1896, by the addition of 9,850 acres from Dorset, being the whole of the parishes of Chardstock and Hawkechurch, and the transfer of Churchstanton, 5,436 acres, to Somerset.

The area of Devon now is 1,667,097 acres, being one of the largest shires in England, W. R. Yorkshire and Lincolnshire alone being larger. Though third in size, eleven counties have more population, viz.:—Cheshire, Durham, Gloucestershire, Hampshire, Kent, Lancaster, Middlesex, Stafford, Surrey, Warwick, and W. R. Yorks.

The population in 1801 was 340,308; 1811, 382,778; 1821, 438,417; 1831, 493,908; 1841, 532,959; 1851, 567,098; 1861, 584,373; 1871, 601,374; and in 1881, 603,595; and in 1891, 631,808; of which 297,898 are males and 333,910 females. The number of houses were, inhabited, 113,204; uninhabited, 9,217; building, 927. The population in 1901 was 660,444, and the number of inhabited houses is 123,598.

The earliest inhabitants of Devon are not known, but are supposed to be of Lappish or Finnish origin. At an early period it was occupied by the Iberians, as the names of the rivers—the Tamar, Taw, and Tavy—show. Of the early periods there are many relics, as circles of stone, including Grimspound on Dartmoor, and the Scorhill circle. There are many cromlechs and other monuments of rude stone, and early weapons have been found. The Welsh and the Belgians were gradually overcoming the Iberians, and driving them west, when, in the beginning of the Christian era, the Romans made themselves masters of the islands. The tribe they found here was named the Damnii.

The Romans thickly settled the whole of Devon, as the names of places will show. Their chief towns were Isca Damnonorum (now Exeter) and Muridunum.

The chief remains of the roads, known by their English names are:—Orway, Solway, Oxenway, Farway, Shurway, Broadway, Whiteway, Northway, Elverway, Oldaway, Roadway, Reddaway, Greenway, Ridgway, Helway, Holloway, Hrapate or Harepath, Sticklepath, Gappath, Cole-ridge, Ironridge, Doddridge, Cuttridge, Oldridge, Hor-ridge, Chesridge, Partridge, Coldridge, Holdridge, Stor-ridge, Sandridge, Hare-street, Dark-street, and Bow-street. The name of street is not so commonly applied to Roman roads in Devon as it is in the east of England.

The Roman settlements are so numerous that they would form a long list, about 500 being recognisable. On the downfall of the Romans, the Welsh and mixed Romans were left to themselves, and several west Welsh kingdoms were formed in Devon and Cornwall, among which war and strife, religious and civil, were constant. Of the period of the Welsh sway there are no ethnological remains.

On the English invading Britain, Devon early drew their attention; and in 614 the West Saxons made their first attack. Their progress was slow, and it was not till 926 that the King of the Cornwelsh was at length driven beyond the Tamar. From 976 to 1003, Devon was, however, wasted by the Danes. At Kenwith Castle, near Northam, are the remains of the old building, in the attack on which the Danes, under Hubba, were defeated by the Saxons, under Alfred, and their standard captured; an old tradition assigns a spot, still known as "Bloody Corner," as the scene of a duel between two of the chieftains; and at Appledore is the landing-place where the invaders first set foot on this land. Nevertheless, the Welsh in Devon were exterminated, and the old land settled by English.

The topographical nomenclature of the West Saxon in Devon has some peculiarities. The clan names are not so common as in the east: but those of the Billing, Barking, Wadding, Cotting, Cocking, Faring, Bicking and Canning are recognizable. Many of the names of settlements are those of individuals. The endings ton and ham are common; so are worthy, stake and thorne; but stow, thorpe, hope, stead and horn are rare. Wick is common, and is often made week. Combe, don, knowe and down are common. Tor is a word peculiar to Devon. Ley, leigh and land are common. Hay, and the plurals hays and hayne, are very common. Acre and croft are rare. The ending cot is very frequent. Barton is common. Den is rare. Wood is common. Hurst, holt, shaw, hanger and dingle are rare. Rough, cleave and lynch are used for commons. Grove is common; so are lake, pool, pitt and hole. Bourn and brook are about equally frequent. Many of the wells have names. Beer or bear is peculiar to Devon and Dorset. Huish is found there; so are aller, peek, yard, yate, yeo, venn, hole, bray, stout, slade, shute, halse, and slew. Many of the clan names are made, in the Devon dialect, to end in a instead of ing; and many words end in a or er. The termination son is common. The letters z and y are freely used in old Devon topographical names.

The island of LUNDY, in the Bristol Channel, with a population of 67, belongs to Devon; it is 2½ miles long and 1 mile broad, with an area of 920 acres.

In Plymouth Sound is St. Nicholas (called also Drake's) Island, which is covered with fortifications.

Burgh Island is in Bigbury Bay at the mouth of the Avon: had anciently a chapel of St. Michael on the summit; there is now a small inn on the north side; also some fish cellars.

A great many of the population of Devon are descended from the original English settlers, but slightly mixed with Cornish. The latter are chiefly settled in the Plymouth and Tavistock districts, and are partly engaged in mining.

The scenery in the greater part of the county is very beautiful and diversified; the climate is moist, with a very mild temperature in the south, but bleak on the moors. The south coast is so mild that the myrtle grows freely, and oranges, lemons and citrons flourish in the open air, and it is therefore much frequented by invalids during the winter.

Devonshire is a hilly county, and includes in the south a large waste district, called the Forest of Dartmoor, which is 28 miles from north to south and 26 miles from east to west; the area being from 80,000 to 100,000 acres, and it rises to the height of 2,000 feet above the sea, having portions of moist peat and bog, and generally of a desolate appearance; large pools of water are the sources of several rivers. Part of Exmoor, another great waste in the north, is in Somerset. Dumdown hill, in the east, two miles from Honiton, is, with the exception of Dartmoor, the highest ground in the county. The shores are very rocky and indented with several bays: Bideford and Morte bays in the north, and Bigbury bay, Start bay, and Tor bay in the south. At Northam, on the shore of Bideford bay, is the remarkable and interesting common of 700 acres called the Burrows, fenced on two sides for a space of 3 miles by a vast barrier of boulders, rounded and smoothed by the waves. The inhabitants of Northam from time immemorial have a right of pasturage on this large common. Zoophytes of all kinds are to be found in abundance among the rocks, and there is a singular and very beautiful pebble ridge that bounds a wide beach of sand on the one side and the extensive common on the other;

also on Bideford bay and north of Northam Burrows is a large tract of land covered with sand called Braunton Burrow, abounding with rabbits, and having two light-houses.

The rivers are:—The Exe, flowing from Somersetshire, southward to the English Channel, and made navigable from Exmouth to Topsham for shipping, and communicating with Exeter by means of the Ship Canal. The Clyst, the Lowman, the Creedy, the Yeo, the Oulm and the Barle are feeders of the Exe. The Torridge, which is about 53 miles long, rises in Welcombe parish, near the sea coast, and flows south-easterly and thence northward through Torrington to Bideford bay; not far from its source it receives the Okement, and is navigable for ships only to Bideford. The Taw also rises in Dartmoor and flows nearly parallel to the Torridge to the sea beyond Barnstaple, to which place it is navigable; in its course it receives the Little Dart and the Mole: for boats, the Taw and Torridge are navigable four or five miles from their mouths. The Plym also rises from Dartmoor and flows to the east of Plymouth, and also the Tavy, which joins the Tamar.

The Teign rises north of Dartmoor, and flows easterly for some distance, thence south to Newton Abbot, and again easterly to the sea at Teignmouth, from which place it is navigable to Newton Abbot 4 miles; the Dart flows south-easterly from Dartmouth through Totnes, from which it is navigable to the sea at Dartmouth; the Avon, in the south of the county, is navigable for 3 miles from Aveton-Giffard to Bantham; the Erme, also in the south, for 2 miles to Mothecombe; the Yealm, west of the Erme, is navigable for 3 miles; the Plym for 3 miles along Catwater. The Otter, in the east, and the Lynn are not navigable. The Axe is in the extreme east of the county, and flows from Dorsetshire through Axminster to Axmouth and the sea.

The Tamar, on the Cornish border of the county, is the widest river, and is navigable to Morwellham; it receives several streams from Devon, as the Deer, Lyd, Carey, Tavy, Lew Water, Walkham and Thistlebrook. The Royal Albert bridge (one of Brunel's greatest undertakings) crosses the Tamar at Saltash, and connects Devon and Cornwall, carrying the Cornwall railway; its length is just half a mile, or 300 feet more than the Britannia bridge, and its greatest height from the foundation 260 feet.

The county is watered by an immense number of streams, tributaries of these rivers, which work corn and other mills; such is the abundance of water power that windmills for corn are all but unknown in the county.

Devonshire is united with the canal system by the Great Western canal, 11 miles long, from Ashbrittle in Somerset, which terminates at Tiverton, and is now the property of the Bristol and Exeter Railway Co. The Tavistock canal, the Stover or Teigngrace canal, and the Torridge canal extend river navigation. The Bude and Holsworthy canal, 15½ miles long, connects Holsworthy with Bude Haven, and is joined by the Bude and Launceston canal.

The harbours are very fine and numerous. They include Plymouth, Torbay, and Dartmouth. The chief seaports and fishing towns are: Plymouth, Exeter, Barnstaple, Topsham, Brixham, Dartmouth, Exmouth, Torquay, Teignmouth, Sidmouth, Bideford, and Ilfracombe.

TIDAL STREAMS IN THE BRISTOL AND ENGLISH CHANNELS AND ON THE SOUTH-WEST COAST.—A careful investigation of the tides in the English Channel has shown the possibility of referring the movements of the several streams to a common standard, which, for the entrance of the channel, will be the time of high water at Dover: for, off the mouth, the stream, though materially influenced by the indraft and outset of the channel, will be found running to the northward and eastward, while the water is falling at Dover, and to the southward and westward while it is rising at that port. Northward of lat. 49°, the stream is more regular than south of that parallel, and in the direction of the Bristol Channel it will be found setting to the northward while the water is falling at Dover, turning sharply round Hartland Point into the Bristol Channel, and while the water is rising at Dover, setting as sharply out of that channel and along the land towards Scilly. At Trevose Head, on the Cornish coast, the tide has been found, by many observations, to make twelve minutes after Dover, and as a vessel advances up the Bristol Channel the stream turns progressively later. The tides about Plymouth Sound, both flood and ebb, are tolerably regular, generally running each way about six hours and ten minutes at a mean. In Hamoaze the flood stream continues to run up, on spring tides, about 15 minutes after high water at Devonport Dockyard, which occurs somewhat later than in Catwater, but the tide continues to flow in both harbours for an additional half-hour when the wind is strong from the south and west, and at the breakwater in Plymouth Sound, the stream drains in for a short time after the water has ceased to rise. Abreast of Plymouth Sound, and about six miles seaward, the irregularity of the streams is considerable, and farther out in the offing they do not turn with the tide. Nearly two hours before high water at the Dockyard the stream makes eastward gradually, veering in about the same time to the south and west; during the first three hours' flood on shore the direction changes from west to north, and at the last 4 hours flood again runs, as at first, east by south; for miles south-west of the Eddystone the variations of the stream exhibit similar changes. From Bolt Tail to Star Point, at a distance of four miles off shore, the easter stream at spring tide makes at 2½ hours before high water, and the western stream 3 hours before low water by the short, setting along the land, with a maximum velocity of 2½ knots; at neaps the turn of the stream is irregular and its rate less. Off Exmouth bar, at a distance of three-quarters of a mile south of Straight Point, the stream turns eastward at 3h. 40m., westward at 1h., turning gradually to the north after about 4 hours, and the greatest velocity of both streams is about 1 knot. Three miles south of Beer Head, the stream turns westward at 10h. 30m., runs in that direction for 4 hours, the gradually veers to the north for 2 hours, and turning eastward about 5 o'clock, sets for 2½ hours towards the north, and then, for the next 3 hours, turns by degree to the south; the general direction, therefore, of the tide in this position is round the compass, with little or no velocity.

Applied to the heights given for Devonport. The Great Western railway runs through the Great Western railway runs through the coast, to Plymouth and into Cornwall. There nection with the Great Western three branches from Newton Abbot, one south, to Torquay and to Kingswear, thence by steamer to Dartmouth; another north, to Moreton Hampstead, and the third to Ashton through Chudleigh; from Ashton lines are now being constructed to Exeter and Chagford; from Churston, on the Dartmouth line, is a branch to Brixham; from Totnes, on the Plymouth extension, is a branch to Ashburton; from Plymouth a line to Tavistock and Launceston, in Cornwall, and from Yelverton on this line is a line to Princetown; on the Bristol and Exeter railway is a branch to Tiverton, and from Tiverton junction a line through Uffculme to Hemyock is called the Culm Vale railway; from Taunton, Somerset, the Devon and Somerset railway passes through the north of the county, by South Molton, to Barnstaple. The Tiverton and North Devon railway joins this line at Dulverton and proceeds via Bampton to Tiverton, where it joins the Exe Valley railway, from Tiverton to Exeter. A branch line was opened in 1893 from Brent station on the Exeter and Plymouth extension to Kingsbridge. The London and South Western, passing through Honiton, reaches Exeter and Plymouth, from London, via Devonport, with short lines to Plymouth and Tealton and Turnchapel. On the Exeter line is a branch to Seaton, another to Ottery St. Mary and Sidmouth, and a third to Exmouth. From Tipton St. John's station, on the Sidmouth branch, a short line was opened, in 1897, to Budleigh Salterton, from which a line is now (1901) in course of construction to Exmouth. The North Devon line of the London and South Western extends from Exeter to Crediton, Barnstaple, Ilfracombe, Bideford and Torrington, and from Yeoford junction on this line starts the Devon and Cornwall line to Plymouth via North Tawton and Okehampton (from which place there is a branch to Holsworthy), and to Bude in Cornwall, thence to Lydford junction and Tavistock. The Plymouth, Devonport and South Western junction railway, opened in 1889, from Lydford junction, gives the London and South Western independent access to Plymouth. A line of railway was opened in 1897 from Barnstaple to Lynton. From Axminster, on the Exeter line, a short branch is now (1901) being constructed to Lyme Regis, in Dorset.

Devon is a rich tillage and grazing land, although there is much unclaimed moor: husbandry is the great source of wealth here, the county yielding wheat, barley, oats, potatoes, beans, peas, hay, apples and other fruit, cider, cheese, butter, wool, hides and timber. There are fine breeds of horses, oxen, sheep and pigs: the Devon cattle are distinguished by being of a plain red colour and produce a continuous supply of first class pedigree bulls, and are almost equally as notable for their beef producing qualities as for their valuable properties in connection with dairy produce. The fisheries are of great importance, Brixham being one of the largest fishing stations. The county derives advantages from its numerous bathing places: its large extent of coast line causes a number of persons to visit the county for the benefit of sea air and bathing, the northern shore and the southern differing in temperature: Ilfracombe and some few other places are on the north coast, and the fine town of Torquay, with numerous smaller watering places, on the south.

For mining purposes, West Devon is in the Duchy of Cornwall, and under the jurisdiction of the Stannary Court; the jurisdiction of the court extends to all companies formed to work mines of metallic minerals within the counties of Devon and Cornwall, and over all transactions connected therewith; the sittings of the court are held at Truro usually in the months of February, May, August and November. The Devon Great Consols mine, which has produced large quantities of copper, is now engaged in preparing arsenic. The mineral productions are copper ore, tin ore (210 tons), iron ore, barytes, ochre, sandstone, potters' clay, gravel, sand and slate. In 1899 990 tons of copper ore were raised, valued at £2,292; arsenic (obtained by calcination at the mines), 2,468 tons, value £40,941; arsenical pyrites, 3,840 tons, value £4,590; barytes, 1,000 tons; chert and flint, 2,009 tons; iron ore was produced to the extent of 780 tons, value £1,655; it is principally shipped at Brixham. Potters' clay is a considerable article of commerce, principally procured in the Newton Abbot district. The amount raised in 1899 was 74,105 tons, valued at £30,849. China clay was produced to a large amount, the total produced in 1899 being 52,198 tons, valued at £30,187; other clays, 161,642 tons, value £18,543. Gravel and sand was produced to the extent of 30,218 tons in 1899; igneous rocks, 48,651 tons; limestone, 527,026 tons. Sandstone was raised to the extent of 71,487 tons; slate and slabs, 13,901 tons.

The chief manufactures are lace, gloves, woollen stuffs and tanning. Honiton has a high reputation for lace, but lace bearing the name of the town is made throughout the south-east district of the county. Buckfastleigh has been long celebrated for woollen goods, such as navy serge and blankets. Plymouth produces chemical manure, soap, starch, bline and black lead, and also has a trade in costumes and outfitting. Paper is also made to some extent; pottery is produced; also articles in terra cotta. The large naval establishments of Devonport and Keyham employ numbers of persons, and, besides what is done in the Government dockyards, there is much ship and boat building.

Devon is in the Western circuit and has one court of quarter sessions, the assizes being held at Exeter; there are 22 petty sessional divisions.

The county contains 465 civil parishes, and is in the diocese of Exeter and province of Canterbury, divided into the archdeaconries of Barnstaple, Exeter and Totnes, except the parishes of North Petherwyn, St. Giles-in-the-Heath, Virginstowe and Werrington, which are in Trigg Major rural deanery, Bodmin archdeaconry and Truro diocese. Barnstaple archdeaconry is subdivided into the rural deaneries of Barnstaple, Chulmleigh, Hartland, Holsworthy, Sherwell, South Molton and Torrington; Exeter into the rural deaneries of Aylesbeare, Cadbury, Christianity, Dunksell and Honiton, Kenn, Ottery, East Tiverton and West Tiverton; Totnes into the rural deaneries of Ipplepen, Moreton, Okehampton, Plympton, Tavistock, Three Towns, Totnes and Woodleigh. In 910 a bishop was seated at Crediton, but in 1050 Exeter was made the seat of the bishopric.

The Municipal boroughs are Barnstaple, population in 1901, 14,137; Bideford, 8,754; Dartmouth, 6,575; Devonport, 69,674; Exeter, 46,490; Honiton, 3,271; South Molton, 2,848; Okehampton, 2,568; Plymouth, 107,509; Tiverton, 10,382; Torquay, 33,625; Torrington, 3,241; Totnes, 4,034. Other towns are Ashburton, 2,628; Bampton, 1,657; Brixham, 8,090; Buckfastleigh, 2,520; Crediton, 3,974; Cullompton, 2,919; Dawlish, 4,003; Exmouth, 10,487; Ilfracombe, 8,557; Ivybridge, 1,575; Kingsbridge, 3,025; Lynton, 1,641; Newton Abbot, 12,518; Northam, 5,357; Ottery St. Mary, 3,495; Paignton, 8,385; Sidmouth, 4,201; East Stonehouse, 15,111; Teignmouth, 8,836 and Topsham, 2,780.

The Devon County Lunatic Asylum, half a mile north from Exminster, was originally built at a cost of £93,400, and opened 2 July, 1845: a new chapel and sanatorium were added in 1877 at a cost of about £12,500, and about 1896 considerable additions were made, including nurses' block, quarters for assistant medical officer and the enlargement of the recreation rooms, the whole building was also fitted with electric light, the total cost being £190,000; the asylum is now available for 1,231 patients, and the number of inmates in 1901 was 1,160; Arthur M. Duis L.R.C.P. & S. Edin. resident physician and superintendent; Reginald Charles Jeremie Stevens M.B. & B.S. Durh., M.R.C.S. Eng. senior assistant medical officer; Joseph Longherd Baskin L.R.C.P. & S. Edin. jun. assistant medical officer; Rev. John B. Williams B.A. chaplain; Frederick Sanders, clerk to asylum; F. Polard, auditor; W. H. Tucker, storekeeper; Frederick Sanders, clerk to the visitors.

The Western Counties Idiot Asylum, at Starcross, the foundation stone of which was laid on April 9, 1874, by Lady Anna Maria Courtenay, is a building of grey limestone, relieved with dressings of buff brick and Bath stone, in the Early English style, and was opened in June, 1877; it consists of central block, with north and south wings, the central block comprising the administrative department and the residence of the superintendent; the northern wing being appropriated to boys and the southern to girls; the dining hall, a fine apartment, is 100 by 20 feet in area, and contains an organ, the gift of friends of the children; considerable additions were made in 1896, so that the asylum is now available for 180 boys and 90 girls; the entire cost has exceeded £32,000; the institution is supported by payments for the maintenance of the patients, augmented by voluntary contributions; Edgar Richard Senhouse Lipscombe L.R.C.P.Lond., M.R.C.S. Eng. medical officer; William Locke, resident superintendent and secretary; Sebastian Cosens Snow, Exeter Bank, Exeter, treasurer; Ernest William Locke, res. supt. and sec.; Mrs. Alice L. Mayer, matron.

The Royal Military Hospital is at Stoke, on the margin of the Stonehouse Pool; it was built in 1797, and has a colonnade of 41 arches, forming a fine promenade for the sick; the hospital is available for 285 patients.

The Royal Naval Hospital, to the north of Stonehouse, near the Pool, is directly opposite to the Royal Military Hospital on the Stonehouse side of the water: it was built in 1762, for the reception of seamen and marines, and occupies an area of 24 acres; from 600 to 700 patients can be received here, and there are residences for the various officers, surgeons and chaplains.

North Devon Infirmary, Barnstaple, is a large building, surrounded by well laid-out grounds, near the Taw Vale parade, overlooking the river; it was founded in 1825, and has been several times enlarged and remodelled from designs of Mr. R. D. Gould, architect; a wing was added in 1862, and another in 1883, from a gift of the late Miss Bassett, of Watermouth; large reception rooms for out-patients have also been added, at the cost of the late Dr. R. Budd, and a children's ward containing 12 cots was opened in 1896, at a cost of £200. The infirmary is available for 85 patients, the annual expenditure being about £2,300; it is maintained entirely by voluntary contributions. The number of in-patients treated in 1900 was 654, and of out-patients, 2,669; Charles Hanlen Gamble M.B.C.S.Eng. and Joseph Harper L.R.C.P.Lond., M.R.C.S.Eng. consulting surgeons; James Wood Cooke M.R.C.S.Eng. Richard Jarrett, chaplain; Claude Gould, hon. secretary; Miss Annie Spencer, matron.

The South Devon and East Cornwall Hospital, Plymouth, was erected at a cost of about £40,000, and is a building of native limestone in the Renaissance style, from designs by Mr. H. E. Coe, architect, of London, consisting of five blocks united by covered corridors, a porter's lodge, mortuary, post-mortem rooms and carriage shed. The administrative portion contains committee, consulting and operative rooms, surgery, dispensary, out-patients' waiting room, library &c. The east wing is assigned to women and children, the centre to men, and the west wing is reserved for cases of accident; and near the latter is an annexe for infectious cases. On the north side is the nurses' institute, occupied by trained nurses, who may be sent out to various parts of the counties as required. There are beds for 168 patients, and space is left for doubling the size of the west wing if necessary. A new wing, to be called the "John Hay Wing," was added in 1897, from designs by Messrs. Hine and Odgers, architects, through the munificence of Miss Hains, of Alton terrace, Plymouth, a relative of the late Mr. John Hay, who has given the sum of £20,000 for its erection and endowment. The wing is built chiefly of limestone, with Portland stone dressings, two stories in height, and comprises two large and two small wards, containing altogether 38 beds. In 1900 there were 1,282 in-patients and 2,654 out-patients; Robert Hogarth Clay M.D. and Lawrence Fox M.D. physicians; Francis Fox M.R.C.S.Eng. and Paul Swain F.R.C.S.Eng. consulting surgeons; Connell Whipple L.R.C.P.Lond., M.R.C.S.Eng. Dartmoor Convict Prison, built in 1806, at a cost of £127,000, consists of an extensive series of buildings, constructed principally of granite from the neighbouring moor: the outer wall incloses an area of about 30 acres; the prison itself comprises five rectangular buildings, each about 300 feet long by 50 broad, and residences for the governor, deputy-governor and officers; the principal gateway is formed of huge granite blocks, bearing the carved inscription "Parcere Subjectis." Considerable additions were made to the buildings by the convicts in 1874, and further extensions have since been made; William Henry Osborn Russell, governor; Cyril Herbert Comyn Platt, deputy-governor; Rev. Lawrence James Hudson B.A. chaplain; Rev. M. Lawrenson, Catholic chaplain; William Simpson Frew M.B. & C.M.Eng. Edin. medical officer; Francis Edward Forward F.R.C.S.Eng., L.R.C.P.Lond. assistant medical officer; Frank Collier Marks, steward; George Palmer, chief warder.

H.M. Prison, at Exeter, was completed in 1790, under an Act of Parliament obtained in 1787, but in 1853 was re-erected on the plan of the model prison at Pentonville, and will hold 363 prisoners of both sexes; Major Duncan Matheson, governor; Rev. Harry Creswell Pigott M.A. chaplain; John Mortimer M.B. surgeon; Frank Knight, storekeeper and clerk to the visiting justices.

H.M. Prison, Plymouth, erected in 1849, at a cost of about £12,500, is a building of blue limestone, with Caen stone dressings, in the Italian style, from designs by Messrs. Fuller and Gingell, architects, of Bristol; it contains 81 cells for prisoners, 57 males and 24 females; James Harding Duncan, governor; Rev. Joseph Jones, chaplain; Sedley Wolferstan L.R.C.P.Lond., M.R.C.S.Eng. surgeon.

At Bovey Tracey is the Devon House of Mercy for the Reception of Fallen Women; it was established in 1861, and formally opened in 1863, the foundation stone of the permanent house being laid by the late Earl of Devon in 1865; 90 inmates are received from all parts of the country, and instructed, with the view to their establishment in some respectable calling. The institution is supported by voluntary contributions, and is under the care of members of the Clewer (Windsor) Sisterhood. In connection with this house is St. Gabriel's Mission for work among the poor, carried on by the same Sisterhood; the Bishop of Exeter, visitor; the Archdeacon of Barnstaple, warden; E. Harding esq. and H. T. Ferguson esq. National Provincial Bank, Exeter, hon. treasurers; Rev. Prebendary Harry Tudor M.A. hon. sec.; H. Goodwyn L.R.C.P. & S.Eng. medical officer; Sister Bertha, lady superior.

Devon and Exeter Female Home and Penitentiary, in Holloway street, Exeter, founded in 1819, is a large building of brick and stone, available for 50 inmates; John Steele Perkins F.R.C.S.Eng. surgeon and hon. sec.; Rev. Sir Edward Harry Dutton Cole bart. M.A. chaplain.

Devon and Exeter Female Reformatory, Polsloe road, Exeter, a plain brick building, was established in 1835, for the employment and instruction of girls, and was enlarged as a reformatory school in 1858; Thomas M. Snow, hon. treasurer; Henry Davy M.D. and Edward Alexander Brash L.R.C.P.Lond. hon. medical officers; Joseph Gould, sec.; Miss Eliza Grindon, matron.

The British Seamen's Orphans' Home, at Brixham, for the western counties, was originally established at Rock House, in 1859, by the late William Gibbs esq. of Tyntesfield, near Bristol, for the purpose of making provision for the orphan sons of seamen; and subsequently a new building adjoining Rock House was opened in December, 1863, and completed in 1864; in 1873 these premises were enlarged, and in 1875 a separate school room for 50 boys was erected at the cost of the Baroness Burdett-Coutta. An additional wing was built by subscription in 1888-9 at a cost of £1,400. The freehold of the Home and Rock House and its grounds, now the chaplain's residence, have been vested by Mrs. Gibbs in the Bishop of the diocese as trustee. The Home is now available for 76 boys; it is maintained by voluntary contributions and managed by a committee; Rev. Tom Lumsden Brown L.Th. resident chaplain and sec.

DEVON COUNTY COUNCIL.

Local Government Act, 1888, 51 & 52 Vict. c. 41.

Under this Act the county of Devon, except certain boroughs, for which see below (a), after the 1st April, 1889, for the purposes of the above Act, became an administrative county (sec. 46), governed by a County Council, consisting of chairman, aldermen and councillors elected in manner prescribed by the Act (sec. 2).

The chairman, by virtue of his office, is justice of the peace for the county, without qualification (sec. 46).

The police for the county are under the control of a standing joint committee of the Quarter Sessions, and the County Council appointed as therein mentioned (sec. 9).

The coroners for the county are elected by the County

Council, and the clerk of the peace appointed by such joint committee, and may be removed by them (sec. 83-2).

The clerk of the peace for the county is also clerk of the County Council.

The administrative business of the county (which would, if this Act had not been passed, have been transacted by the justices) is transacted by the County Council.

(a) Each of the following large boroughs is, for the purposes of this Act, an administrative county in itself, called a County Borough (sec. 30), of which the municipal corporation has the power of a County Council (sec. 31)—Devonport, Exeter and Plymouth

ALDERMEN.

The Council meets at Exeter quarterly.

In Mr. Whitaker's list we find the title of 415 books, papers &c. which had been written concerning the rocks of Devon between 1671 & 1870; of these, however, only nine date back to before 1800, a fact which shows the modern origin of geological inquiries. Of the workers in the first quarter of the present century we may name Dr. Berger, the Revs. R. Hannah and J. J. Conybeare, with Messrs. Allan, Jones, Taylor, Mawe, Prideaux and Whidbey; in the next twenty-five years the grand work of De la Beche, who mapped almost single-handed the broad divisions of the rocks, stands out boldly, but Sedgwick and Murchison claim high honour, while Professor Phillips, the Rev. D. Williams, Messrs. Lonsdale, Weaver and others, did good work; in the last thirty years we note the names of Jukes, Etheridge, Pengelly, Ormerod, Godwin-Austen, Meyer, Vicary, Townshend, M. Hall, Salter, Worth, Champenowne, Valpy, H. B. Woodward, Ussher &c.

It is not very difficult to understand the arrangement of the strata of Devonshire if we look at them in a broad way only. The oldest rocks, those called Devonian, form two broad bands along the north and south of the county, extending inland from the coast for some 10 or 12 miles in each case; these two bands are connected underneath forming a great trough or fold, which is filled up by rocks of Carboniferous age, which consequently occupy all the centre of Devon, resting upon and in the hollow formed by the Devonian strata; through the southern Devonian and Carboniferous rocks the great igneous mass of the granite of Dartmoor has burst: lastly, fringing the east of Devon we find beds of Secondary or Mesozoic age ranging from the trias to the chalk inclusively.

When we come to examine the various strata in detail, we shall find immense difficulties, chiefly among the older rocks, arising mainly from their complexity of structure and arrangement, and from the manner in which they have been altered and dislocated by the volcanic outbursts and great earth-movements which formerly were most actively at work in this region.

Before the geology of Devonshire can be decisively made clear, it will be necessary that a new survey of the county shall be made by the Ordnance Survey on the scale of six inches to a mile; the existing maps on the one-inch scale date back to 1809, and are too small to permit of that minute mapping of the strata which their complex nature requires. When the six-inch map is complete, the Geological Survey will take the county again in hand, and doubtless many questions about which there is now much dispute in the geological world will be finally and thoroughly settled. We shall now describe the rocks in succession, beginning with the lowest or oldest, and taking the views regarding their succession which are at present most generally entertained.

THE DEVONIAN (OR OLD RED SANDSTONE?) FORMATION.—The beds of this age occupy two well-defined areas in the north and south of the county respectively; the arrangement of the strata of the northern portion is usually considered to be the simpler and more complete of the two, and we shall accordingly describe that region first.

North Devon.—Here red sandstones, slates, and limestones occupy a tract of land from 9 to 14 miles wide, extending from the coast as far south as a line drawn from Barnstaple to Anstey near Dulverton, Somerset; the beds run or strike across this region from west to east, and, as they incline or dip towards the south, it follows that the bottom or oldest beds must be those which come to the surface or crop out furthest north. These are the Foreland Sandstones, red and brown in colour, and destitute of organic remains, except a few plant-markings found in yellow sandstones at Countisbury. In the cliffs the strata are seen to have a high northerly dip, but they roll over to the south and pass under the Lynton Slates, a fault, however, running along the valley of the Lyn at or near the line of junction. From Watersmeet by the Valley of Rocks to Woodabay the Lynton Slates are seen to be grey and reddish grits and slates, with some thin bands of impure limestone and ironstone, total thickness 1,500 feet; a few fossils occur, as Chonetes Hardrensis, Orthis arcuata, &c.

Next come the Hangman Grits, red, grey and yellow grits and sandstones, 1,500 feet thick, forming the Little Hangman and Hangman Hill, and extending thence eastwards past Trentishoe and Martinhoe to Oare Oak Hill and Ex Head: they are almost unfossiliferous: upon these grits rest the Ifracombe Slates (4,000 feet), silvery grey in colour, and containing thick beds of limestone, quarried at many points for lime-burning, and traceable from the west of Combe Martin Bay by Kentsisbury to north-east of Challacombe; the fossils include many corals (Favosites cervicornis, Stromatopora concentrica) and brachiopod shells (Stringocephalus Burtini): the Morte Slates may be considered as forming the upper portion of the Ifracombe Group; they are 4,000 feet thick and unfossiliferous; they form Morte Point and Bull Point on the coast, and stretch inland along the northern slope of the high ground which extends from Pickwell Down to Span Head, and which is formed of red, brown, and grey unfossiliferous sandstones—containing beds of hematite (iron ore) and manganese—called the Pickwell Down Beds; their thickness is estimated at 3,000 feet. On the southern side of these hills we find the Baggy and Marwood Beds, also called the Cucullea Zone from the abundance of a fossil shell of that name; a quarry in these beds at Sloly, 2 or 3 miles north of Barnstaple, has yielded plant remains (Calamites and Lepidodendron), with the shells Lingula Mob. Avicula Dammensis, &c.

The highest Devonian strata are termed the Pilton Beds, and are seen at Croyde Bay, Saunton, Braunton, Pilton, and thence eastwards to Anstey near Dulverton; they are purple and grey slates and shales, with thin irregular beds of limestone, containing numerous fossils, such as corals, shells, a star-fish, crinoids, &c.

Whether the arrangement of the strata of north Devon is really so simple as above described is a question which has excited much controversy. Professor Jukes believed that the Pickwell Down sandstones were the same as those of the Foreland, repeated by a fault with a downthrow to the north, or brought in by an inverted anticlinal; the great objection to this view is furnished by the fossils, which, according to Mr. Etheridge, differ widely in the different beds.

It is usually considered that these Devonian sandstones, slates, and limestones were deposited in the open seas (they contain marine fossils), at the same time that the Old Red Sandstone rocks of Herefordshire and Scotland were being formed in fresh water lakes. Professor Jukes combated this view, stating that, from his work among similar rocks in the south of Ireland, he believed the lower red sandstones (of the Foreland &c.) were of Old Red Sandstone age, but that the slates & limestones resting on them really belonged to the Carboniferous period; the generality of geologists have not yet, however, been converted to this opinion.

South Devon.—Very little is certainly known with regard to the order of succession of the old rocks of South Devon. The coast at Start Point, Prawle, Bolt Head, and Bolt Tail, is composed of metamorphic rocks, such as mica slate,

All the rest of South Devon, as far north as Newton Abbot and Tavistock, may be said to be formed of slates and limestones, with some red sandstones, which, speaking generally, are of the same age as those of North Devon. The lowest beds may be the red sandstones, seen at Cockington west of Torquay, at Staddon Point south of Plymouth, &c. The well-known limestones of Plymouth, Yealmpton, Berry Head, Torquay, and Chudleigh, may be correlated with the Ilfracombe beds. They are largely worked for marble, building and paving-stone; a walk in the streets of Plymouth on a wet day shows the visitor innumerable beautiful corals in the stones upon which he is treading. Immense quantities of limestone were quarried at Oreston for the construction of the Plymouth breakwater. Of the marble quarries perhaps those at Ipplepen are best known; they furnished the fine polished columns used in the National Provincial Bank of England, Bishopsgate street, London.

The slates which constitute the great mass of South Devon are so rolled, contorted, faulted, and interfered with by igneous rocks that their study is rendered very difficult. A patch of slate at Werrington, north of Launceston, is believed to be of Upper Devonian age, and fossils of this period have been found by Mr. J. E. Lee at Saltern Cove, Torbay. In 1873, Mr. Champenowne found a star-fish (Helianthaster jiliciformis) in slate near Harberton which resembles those from the Pilton Beds. The flat coiled-up shell of a cephalopod called Clymenia is very characteristic of the Devonian rocks.

Roofing slates are got at Ashburton, Ivy Bridge, Kingsbridge, Bickley, and Tavistock; the striped slates of Yealm Bridge, north of Launceston, are worked for chimney-pieces.

Mr. Etheridge enumerates 544 species of fossils from the British Devonian strata; 125 of these are fishes, and 116 brachiopod shells.

CARBONIFEROUS FORMATION.—The Culm-measures, as the beds of Carboniferous age are locally termed, occupy a trough in the centre of Devonshire; on the west they form the fine cliffs at Hartland Point and Clovelly; eastwards they pass under Triassic strata between Tiverton and Exeter, while the Devonian slates form their boundary to the north and south, as already described, except when they abut on Dartmoor. The lowest culm-measures contain black limestones seen at Fremington, South Molton, Swimbridge, Landkey, Bampton, and Holcombe Rogus; these beds dip southwards and rise to the surface again on the south side of the trough at Lew Trenchard, Bridestow, South Tawton, and Drewsteignton; they may represent part of the Carboniferous Limestone; Posidonomya Bechevi is a common fossil.

Next come beds of hard white shale and black grits, with veins of chert, an impure variety of flint; these beds are 1,500 feet thick, and may represent the Milstone Grit; they form Coddon Hill (628 feet) south of Barnstaple, and St. Stephen's Hill near Launceston.

The remaining country from Bideford, Chittlehampton, and Tiverton to Torrington, Chulmleigh, Broadbury, and Exeter, is formed of strata which may represent the Lower Coal-measures, resembling especially those of Pembrokeshire. They are hard grits and shales containing such plant-remains as ferns, Calamites, Lepidodendron, &c.; two species of fish belonging to the genera Calacanthus and Elonichthys have been found in ironstone nodules at Instow; but the Carboniferous beds of Devon are very barren of life, having yielded altogether not more than 50 species of fossils, as compared with nearly 2,000 from the rest of England.

Irregular beds of anthracite, or culm, or stone-coal, can be traced from Luke's Nose, in Bideford Bay, eastwards through Bideford to Hawkridge Wood, near Umberleigh station; near Bideford some soft veins of anthracite are now worked up into a paint called "Bideford Black." The sandstones or "grits" are quarried for building and road-mending; they are frequently ripple-marked.

From their lack of workable coal-seams or other minerals, the Carboniferous strata of Devon compare very unfavourably with those of other counties; they form a poor, rather sterile, and scantily populated country.

THE TRIAS OR NEW RED SANDSTONE—After the formation of the culm-measures a long period of time elapsed, during which the Permian strata of the centre and north of England were deposited; these are wanting in Devon, which may then have been above the waters. Of the succeeding rocks known as Triassic, we have, however, a fine development; these beds consist of breccias, sandstones, and pebble-beds surmounted by marls; all are more or less of a red tinge, and may attain a total thickness of 3,000 feet.

Bunter Sandstone.—To this division belong the unfossiliferous breccias and sandstones, well seen along the coast from Torbay by Dawlish to Exmouth; the (lower) red marls of Dawlish also belong to this age, whose top stratum is probably the remarkable bed (100 feet thick) of pebble seen at Rudleigh Salterton, and traceable inland to Burychlorite rock, which extend inland to Marlborough and South Pool. The age of these rocks is doubtful; they may be Lower Silurian, in which case the gneiss rock on which the Eddystone Lighthouse is built may furnish a connecting link between them and the strata round Veryan Bay in Cornwall, which are certainly of Lower Silurian age. More probably, however, these South Devon rocks are metamorphosed Devonian slates, the change in character having been effected by a mass of some igneous rock which is hidden beneath them or is below sea-level; the great number of granitic pebbles which are thrown up on the coast here might well come from such a mass, while several blocks of granite have been brought up in the trawling-nets from the Salcombe fishing grounds.

combe: most of the pebbles are of quartzite, and they contain fossils both of Silurian and Devonian ages, such as Orthia Budleighensis, Trachyderma serrata, Spirifera Vernouilii, &c.; they may have been derived from rocks which once stretched across the English Channel from Cornwall to Normandy.

The Bunter beds extend inland by Topsham, Exeter, Ottery St. Mary, Cullompton, Kentisbere, Tiverton, and Burescombe; a long narrow strip goes westward by Crediton to North Tawton and Jacobstow, an outlying mass at Hatherleigh and a patch at Portledge on Bideford Bay, marking a former great extension of the Trias in this direction; small outliers also occur at Slapton in Start Bay, Thurleston in Bigbury Bay, and at Cawsand south of Plymouth. Large crystals of Murchisonite (felspar tinged a yellowish-red by oxide of iron) occur in Triassic breccias between Teignmouth and Exeter; they have come from the granite of Dartmoor.

The Keuper Beds are finely exposed on the coast from Sidmouth to Axmouth, and are seen along the valleys at Colyton, Axminster, Stockland, Honiton, and on the western flanks of the Blackdown hills.

The lower beds are red sandstones ("waterstones"), which rest conformably on the Bunter beds; they form the cliffs between Otterton Point and Sidmouth. At the former place Mr. Whitaker found the jaw of a remarkable reptile—the Hyperodapedon; while at Picket Rock Cove, east of Sidmouth, Mr. Lavis found numerous fragments of bones, including those of the Labyrinthodon. Red Marls of Keuper age form the rest of the coast from Sidmouth to beyond Axmouth; in these, Mr. Hutchinson found a reed-like fossil plant near Sidmouth. Altogether the coast section, for above 30 miles, from Torbay to Axmouth, is decidedly the finest exposure of the Triassic rocks of England; the beds all dip gently to the east at angles of from 2 to 5 degrees; they are intersected and repeated by several faults.

From the great scarcity of fossils, the presence of oxide of iron, which more or less colours all the beds, and the presence of beds of gypsum and pseudomorphic crystals of rock-salt, it is probable that both Bunter and Keuper beds were deposited in inland salt lakes of great extent.

The "red ground," as the Triassic strata generally are called, forms the best land in Devon: the soil is rich and fertile, and all the best apple orchards stand on it. At Watcombe, near Torquay, a fine clay is very largely worked for terra cotta and art pottery.

THE RHÆTIC FORMATION consists of green marls, black shales, and white limestones (the "White Lias"), which form passage beds between the Trias and Lias; their thickness is about 100 feet. They are well seen in the cliffs east of Axmouth: one layer near the base of the black shales is so full of the teeth and bones of fishes and saurians as to be called the "bone bed."

THE LIAS.—The blue limestones with interbedded shales which form the Lower Lias, are seen in the cliffs beyond Culverhole Point, above the Rhætic beds; they also occur inland east of Axmouth.

CRETACEOUS FORMATION.—The whole of the Oolitic and Neocomian strata being absent, the Cretaceous series reposes directly, first upon the Lias, and then upon the New Red Sandstone. In the fine section at Beer Head, west of Seaton, we see (1) Sands and Clays, 50 feet, representing the Gault; (2) Light-coloured sands with chert beds, 100 feet—Upper Greensand; (3) Chalk Marl, 10 feet, with layer containing phosphatic nodules (Chloritic Marl) at base; (4) Lower White Chalk (without flints), 25 feet; (5) Upper White Chalk (with flints), 140 feet.

The bottom layer of the Lower White Chalk is largely quarried for building stone; it is of a yellowish-white tint, soft when extracted, but rapidly hardening on exposure to the air.

The sandy beds of the Gault and Upper Greensand can only be separated with much difficulty; they form the capping of the Blackdown Hills, and of the hills which run thence to the coast between Sidmouth and Lyme Regis; near Broadhembury and Kentisbere the hard concretionary lumps which occur in layers in the sands have been largely worked to make scythe-stones (Devonshire Batts), and the hill-sides are disfigured by heaps of rubbish. Outliers of the Greensand occur on the hills called Great and Little Haldon, and on Milber Down; there is a remnant of angular chert as far west as Orleigh Court, only 3 miles from Bideford Bay. Outliers of White Chalk cap the hills east of Axmouth, also south of Chard and at Membury, Brice Moor, and along the coast as far west as Salcombe Mouth.

TIERTARY PERIOD.—After the deposition of the chalk, a great interval occurred unrepresented by any strata in Devonshire. The next beds belong to the

MIocene FORMATION.—Between Bovey Tracey and Newton Abbot, on the east of Dartmoor, we have a tract of land about 6 miles in length by 2 in breadth, which really represents a filled-up lake. Lignite, or "Bovey Coal," has been worked here for more than a century by means of deep cuttings and tunnels; it is used chiefly in the neighbouring potteries, its sulphurous smell rendering it unfit for domestic use. In 1861 Mr. Pengelly made a careful examination of the Bovey deposit, the expense being borne by Miss Burdett-Coutts. He found alternating beds of clay and lignite, with some sand, to the depth of 125 feet, below which the workings did not extend. The thin sand-beds disappeared as they were followed down the valley, showing that the probable source of both clays and sands was the decomposed granite of Dartmoor, while the lignite was formed of trunks of trees and matted vegetable matter derived from the plants which grew on the shores of the old lake. The fossil plants obtained were examined by Professor Heer of Zurich, who determined 50 species, 26 of which were new, while 10 were characteristic of the Lower Miocene age of the continent; they included coniferous trees (Sequoia Couttsii) allied to the giant Wellingtonias of California, ferns, water-lilies, custard-apples, palms, oak, laurel, &c. indicating a warm climate.

The lignites and clays of Bovey Tracey are unique in England, as a deposit of true Miocene age, if such they be; within the last year or two, however, Mr. J. S. Gardner, who has paid great attention to the Upper Eocene flora of the Bournemouth beds, has stated his opinion that the Bovey Beds may be of Eocene age. With the exception of a beetle's wing no animal remains whatever have been found at Bovey, and this absence of shells, bones, &c. which we should naturally expect to find in an old lake deposit, is remarkable and difficult to account for.

IGNEOUS ROCKS.—Both the Devonian and Carboniferous strata include beds of igneous rocks which appear to be contemporaneous with the rocks in which they occur; they alter the stratum lying beneath them only, showing that they had cooled down and solidified before the unaltered overlying stratum was deposited. To this class belong the bed of porphyritic felsstone which can be traced at the base of the Upper Devonians between Morte Bay and Exmoor, the similar rock at Kentisbury in Ilfracombe, the slates, and the masses of greenstone and volcanic ash which frequently occur in South Devon, running in parallel bands from east to west as at Saltash. Other rocks of very similar character appear to be intrusive, having been forced in a melted state between and through previously existing sedimentary rocks, which they have baked and hardened; of this nature are the bosses between Newton and South Brent, the rock which intrudes in the limestone at Yealmpton, &c.

At or about the commencement of the Carboniferous epoch considerable outbursts of a volcanic nature seem to have occurred, of which we find traces north of Tavistock. The well-known hill of Brent Tor, 1,114 feet in height, is composed of devitrified basalts and pitchstones, with beds of volcanic ash, and tells undoubtedly of the neighbourhood of an old volcano.

Dartmoor.—After the close of the Carboniferous period and before the deposition of the Triassic strata (which contain rolled pebbles of the granite), the climax of volcanic action was reached in the upward movement of melted rock from below, which, bearing before it and, doubtless, to some extent, incorporating with itself the overlying rocks, has resulted in the formation of the great granitic tract having an area of 200 square miles, and known as Dartmoor. We must always bear in mind that the present surface of Dartmoor was never exposed to the air in a liquid state: the crystals of quartz, mica, and felspar which constitute the granite were formed under a depth of several miles of superincumbent rocks, which have since been removed by the agents of denudation—the sea, rain, rivers, and ice. The Carboniferous and Devonian rocks in the immediate neighjournal of the granite have been altered by it, though not to the extent that one would have expected; near Chagford veins of granite from a few inches to 18 feet in width are seen like fingers penetrating the carboniferous slates. Large crystals of orthoclase felspar, sometimes 2 or 3 inches in length, occur in the granite, and black tourmaline (or schorl) is a common ingredient.

The rock is much traversed by joints, along which the weathering proceeds; this gives it a wall-like or even stratified appearance, and is the origin of the curious piles of rock known as "Tors" or "Cheese-wrings." Dartmoor forms a waste heather-covered region, with many bogs and peat mosses. The principal heights are—Yestor, 2,050 feet; Cawsand Beacon, 1,802 feet; Amicombe Hill, 2,000 feet; Newlake Hill, 1,925 feet. The granite from Hay Tor (where there are extensive works) was used in the construction of London and Waterloo Bridges.

Elvans.—These are veins and dykes of a whitey-brown rock termed quartz porphyry, which traverse the granite and extend for long distances into the surrounding sedimentary rocks, those south of Modbury and at Roborough Down and Morwell, may be mentioned. The Roborough stone has been quarried for centuries for building purposes.

Lundy Island.—This is mainly formed of granite resembling that of Dartmoor, but with few large felspar crystals; Devonian slates occupy the south-east corner of the island. The large granite quarries here furnished much stone for the Thames Embankment.

Again in the Triassic Period we find felstones, basalts, and volcanic ashes, which occur at Washfield, near Tiverton, under Exeter Castle, south of Silvertown, at Posbury Hill near Crediton, between Exeter and Great Haldon, and at Cawsand Bay. All these igneous rocks, from their superior hardness have been much used for road-metal and as building stones.

Minerals.—The rocks of Devon yield many useful minerals: these occur (1) as regularly stratified beds (as the anthracite); (2) in veins or lodes which traverse both the igneous and sedimentary rocks, and which were originally cracks or fissures in the rocks, but have become filled up by mineral matter deposited from water trickling or rising through the fissures; (3) in surface deposits, as the stream tin and china clay, which result from the denudation and decomposition of the older rocks. The chief or master lodes run east and west, and are intersected by others, called cross-courses, running north and south.

The killas, shillet, or clay-slate of the Devonian beds near Tavistock, constitute the most important mineral-bearing rocks of the county. Copper is the chief product, but iron, manganese, and arsenic are also obtained: from the mine here called Devon Great Consols there was raised between 1840 and 1871 copper ore to the value of 3½ millions sterling, and this from an area of 140 acres. Lead ore, rich in silver, has been worked in Devonian slates at Combe Martin in North Devon, and at Beer Alston in South Devon. Gold has been found in a lode of iron ore at North Molton, and in small quantities in the stream tin works on Dartmoor.

The mineral products of Devon for 1878 were—Tin Ore, 21 tons, value £744; Copper Ore, 16,980 tons, value £50,484; Lead Ore, 337 tons, containing 4,948 oz. of silver; Iron Pyrites, 1,380 tons, value £2,662; other ores of Iron, 6,434 tons, value £3,219; Umber (from Ashburton), 1,151 tons, value £950; Ochre, 374 tons, value £212; Arsenic, 3,091 tons, value £24,231; Clay, 55,844 tons, from the Miocene beds near Kingsteignton; Barytes, 1,843 tons, value £4,323.

SURFACE DEPOSITS.—These consist of gravels, sands, and clays, resting on any or all of the older rocks, and are of comparatively recent origin. Thus at Bovey the top 10 feet is formed of a sandy clay containing angular stones: this is called the "head;" it includes white clays, which contain leaves of the willow and dwarf birch (Betula nana), indicating a cold climate. Great heaps of stones and debris are deposited over parts of Dartmoor and Exmoor, which recall the moraines of the glaciers of Switzerland, but the rocks beneath do not show the grooving and polishing which are the usual effects of the presence of great masses of ice; these marks may, however, have since been destroyed by weathering. Of erratic blocks or boulders we may note one of red granite (10 tons) at Saunton cliffs, near Braunton; one of felstone (13 tons) at Langtree, near Torrington; masses of trap-rock at Harberton, Druid near Ashburton, and Fremington near Barnstaple; red sandstones at Waddleton Court, near Dartmouth; all these are masses of rock which appear to have been transported from some distance, probably during the last glacial period, by the action of floating ice.

Great spreads of flint and chert gravel occur in East Devon, the result of the weathering of the Cretaceous strata. On Dartmoor there is much sand and gravel, the result of the decomposition of the granite; these frequently contain "stream tin."

Caves.—Several famous caves occur in the limestones of South Devon. From fissures at Oreston, near Plymouth, many bones of extinct animals (mammoth, rhinoceros, bear, cave-lion, &c.), were obtained between 1816 and 1858; Kent's Hole, near Torquay, has been most systematically explored by Mr. Pengelly, aided by the British Association; the same extinct species of animals occur here, associated with flint and bone implements fashioned by man. In the lowest deposits in the cave (breccia) we find very rough flint tools, with bones of the bear; in the upper stalagmitic and red earth layers, teeth of hyenas are numerous; lastly the bones of domestic animals, as the sheep, occur in the surface layer of black mould. It would seem certain that man has at intervals inhabited this cave for many thousands of years. The cavern at Windmill Hill, Brixham, has yielded similar evidence.

Raised Beaches.—A bed of sand and pebbles occurs at Northam, Saunton, and Croyde on Barnstaple Bay, it is 15 feet above sea-level and contains recent shells. On the south coast a line of raised beaches can be traced about 30 feet above sea-level at Hope's Nose and the Thatcher Rock near Torquay, and at Berry Head, Sharkham Point, Dartmouth, Start Point, and the Hoe at Plymouth. All these tell of a recent (geologically speaking) and general elevation of the land.

Buried Forests.—Trunks of trees, with peat, &c. are sometimes exposed at or about low-water mark, by violent storms which remove for a brief period the overlying deposits of sand and mud. At Northam Burrows, near Appledore, the stems of seventy or eighty large trees were exposed in 1864; great quantities of hazel-nuts were then found in the peat, with bones of the ox, wild boar, wolf, goat, &c., and flint flakes. On the south coast similar beds have been noticed at Thurlstone, in Bigbury Bay (1866), Blackpool near Dartmouth (1869), Torbay, Sidmouth (1873), &c.

Landslips.—The coast near Axmouth has suffered much from landslips. On Christmas Day, 1839, 22 acres of land at Downlands fell seaward, creating a chasm 1,000 yards in length and 300 in breadth; it was caused by the numerous springs which issue at the base of the Greensand.

PREHISTORIC MAN.—The evidence offered by caverns as to the great antiquity of man in this district we have already alluded to. The lowest deposits in Kent's Hole may belong to the early or Paleolithic Stone Age; a rude flint implement of this period, 7½ inches long by 3½ broad, was found at Coyton; four tools made of chert were found between Chard and Axminster during the erection of the telegraph posts; from a low hill of chert gravel at Broom, near Axminster, a large number of implements of Paleolithic forms, and made of dark brown chert, have lately been obtained; they have been placed in the Museums at Salisbury and Exeter; in 1879 the Rev. W. Downes found one of chert at Kentisbere Moor, in the valley of the Culm.

Of the later or Neolithic Stone Age we have several objects which have been found, either in the barrows or burial-places of the early savage tribes who inhabited Devon, or in the surface soil; we may note a celt or axe-head of flint from a barrow at Hartland, another from Bridge Farm, near North Tawton, a perforated adze of greenstone from North Bovey; a naturally perforated flint pebble which had evidently been used as a hammer was found by the Rev. R. Kirwan in a barrow at Thorverton, near Exeter; in barrows on Broad Down, near Honiton, two beautifully turned cups of Kimmeridge shale were found, with a bronze dagger, flint flakes, and nodules of pyrites and reddie; a lozenge-shaped flint arrow-head was found at Princetown, on Dartmoor; flint flakes occur in great numbers at Croyde.

ABBOTS BICKINGTON is a parish and village on the river Torridge, 8 miles north from Holsworthy station, on a branch of the London and South Western railway, 9 south-west from Great Torrington and 13 south-east from Bideford, in the Western division of the county, Black Torrington hundred, Holsworthy petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Holsworthy, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. James is an edifice of stone, in mixed styles, consisting of chancel, Early English nave, south transept, south porch and a western tower with spire, containing 3 bells, of which the first bears the name of St. Gabriel, and the second that of St. Mary, placed backwards; the third is a plain bell: the chancel retains some curious old stained glass, and a memorial inscribed to Sir Amias Pollard bart. ob. June 5, 1705, and another to Thomas Pollard, his son, ob. Dec. 9, 1710, erected by Sarah (Prideaux), his widow:

ABBOTS KERSWELL (or Carswell) is a parish and village near the road from Totnes to Newton Abbot, 1½ miles south from Newton Abbot and 2 north-west from Kingskerswell station on the Torquay and Dartmouth branch of the Great Western railway, 18 south from Exeter and 6 north-east from Torquay, in the Mid or Ashburton division of the county, Haytor hundred, Teignbridge petty sessional division, Newton Abbot union, Newton Abbot and Torquay county court district, rural deanery of Moreton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary is an ancient building of stone erected at three different periods, the several styles of which are well marked, the Early English chancel being the earliest portion; the church consists of nave, north aisle, side chapel, south porch and a massive embattled tower containing a clock and 3 bells, dated respectively 1637, 1664 and 1705; a screen of carved oak and the turret and steps formerly leading to the rood loft are still extant: on the chancel wall is a brass erected by several of his brother officers to the late Captain Marcus Hare, in command of H.M.S. Eurydice when she foundered in a squall off Dunmore Head, Isle of Wight, March 24th, 1878: the church was restored in 1884, at a cost of £1,609, and affords 138 sittings. The registers date from the year 1608, but some of these are in an imperfect condition. The living is a vicarage, net yearly income £210, including 1½ acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1893 by the Rev. Frank Gordon Campbell B.A. of Hatfield Hall, Durham. The impropriate rent-charge, commuted at £116 yearly, is paid to the vicar of Corn-

ABBOTSHAM is a parish and village on the southern shore of Barnstaple Bay, 2 miles west from Bideford station on the Torrington branch of the London and South Western railway, in the North Western division of the county, Shebbear hundred, Bideford petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Hartland, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. There will be a station on the Bideford, Westward Ho! and Appledore railway about half-mile north-west from the village and near the cliffs. The church of St. Helen is an ancient edifice of stone, in the Early English style, restored and re-seated in 1870 and consists of chancel, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower, containing 6 bells; the fifth bears the words "Campana Johannis" in beautifully formed and floriated letters, and the tenor, a very fine-toned bell, has the

the church was restored and re-seated in 1868, and has about 45 sittings. The register of baptisms and marriages dates from the year 1717; burials, 1716. The living is a vicarage, with the chapelry of Bulkworthy annexed, joint net yearly value £98, including glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Hon. M. G. Kerr Rolle and held since 1889 by the Rev. Geo. Pinchin Allan Blomefield M.A. of St. Catherine's College, Cambridge. The Hon. Mark George Kerr Rolle, of Stevenstone, who is lord of the manor, and Joseph Avery esq. of Holsworthy, are chief landowners. The soil is light; subsoil, clay and rock. The chief crops are oats and wheat. The area is 1,097 acres; rateable value, £356; the population in 1901 was 61.

worthy. Here are Baptist and Wesleyan chapels. The parish is noted for its cyder, in the production of which Messrs. Henley and Son employ a large number of hands. During the years 1882-97 cottage art schools have been held in this village, in which young men have been trained in designing and art handicraft, and many of these find permanent employment at the Aller Vale Art Pottery works. The charities are of £6 yearly value. Mrs. Carr, of Bath, is lady of the manor, and Mrs. Hare and William Codner Henley esq. are the chief landowners. The parish was formerly the property of the Abbots of Sherborne, in Dorsetshire. The soil is loamy; the subsoil is principally limestone rock. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots. The acreage is 1,486; rateable value, £3,396; the population in 1901 was 457.

ALLER, 2 miles east, is a place in this parish, where are the clay and fine art pottery works of the Aller Vale Potter Co. the property of Hexter, Humpherson and Co. who employ about 70 persons.

ALFINGTON, a hamlet, 2 miles north-east from Ottery St. Mary and $2\frac{1}{2}$ from Sidmouth Junction, was formed into an ecclesiastical parish Dec. 29, 1882, from the civil parish of Ottery St. Mary, and is in the Eastern division of the county, Ottery St. Mary hundred, Honiton union and county court district, rural deanery of Ottery and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of SS. James James and Anne, erected in 1849 by the late Hon. Mr. Justice Coleridge, and consecrated Sept. 29, 1882, is an edifice of brick in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a western turret containing one bell: it has eleven stained lancet windows and a font of Devonshire marble: at the west end of the church is a marble monument to John Coleridge Patteson D.D. Bishop of Melanesia, murdered by the natives of Santa Cruz, Sept. 20, 1871: the eagle lectern of oak is dated 1596: five brass hanging lamps and a brass communion book-stand were placed in the church in 1887: the interior, including the vestry, was 98: the church was restored in 1875, at a cost of £2,500, defrayed by the late W. Cubitt esq. to whom an inscribed brass has been placed in the church by the workpeople on the Fallapit estate, and has 330 sittings. The register dates from the year 1554. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £379, including 113 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Lord Ashcombe, and held since 1898 by the Rev. John Jervis Mallock M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford: the rectory house, a handsome building and beautifully seated, was erected in 1847. There is a Primitive Methodist chapel, seating 200 people. A Reading Room with kitchen attached for cooking classes, in connection with the school, was erected in 1898 by the Right Hon. Lord Ashcombe P.C. The charities are very small. Fallapit, the seat of The Right Hon. Lord Ashcombe P.C. is a noble mansion, in the Elizabethan style, surrounded by extensive shrubberies and pleasure grounds: it formerly belonged to the Fortescue family, who possessed the estate for about four centuries, and was the seat of Sir Edmund Fortescue knt. governor of Salcombe Castle in 1645, during the Civil War: the mansion, erected in the nineteenth century near the site of the former house, was enlarged and beautified in 1849. Lord Ashcombe P.C. is lord of the manor and owns the greater part of the parish. The soil is loam and clay; subsoil, various. The crops are wheat, barley and pasture. The area is 3,702 acres; rateable value, £3,386; the population in 1901 was 306.

ALPHINGTON is a parish and village, on the river Exe, and the road from Exeter to Exminster, 1½ miles south from Exeter and 11 north-west from Dawlish, in the North Eastern division of the county, Wonford hundred and petty sessional division, St. Thomas' union, county court district of Exeter, rural deanery of Kenn and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter: the South Devon railway and the Exeter ship canal pass through the parish. The church of St. Michael is an ancient building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, north porch, and an embattled western tower with turret and pinnacles containing a clock and 8 bells, all cast by T. Bilbie, in 1749, in place of a former peal of 5, by licence of the Bishop: the cylindrical Norman font is carved with intersecting arches and scroll work, and figures: the screen across the tower arch is made up of shields and carving which previously formed part of the old gallery erected in 1625 and demolished in 1875. The porch bears the arms of the Courtenays, and a modern figure of St. Michael trampling on the dragon, presented by the Earl of Devon: the tower was repaired about 1852, the whole church was thoroughly restored in 1878-9, at a cost of £4,067, and the tower and bells in 1897: there are stained windows to various members of the Ellacombe family, Thomas Wordman, Mrs. Griffin, and others: the oak screen, dating from about 1670, was restored at the expense of the Earl of Devon; and the stone pulpit was presented by the Rev. H. J. Ellacombe, rector of Clyst St. George, in 1881: the chancel was decorated and a carved oak reredos erected in 1900: there are sittings for 400 persons. The register dates from the year 1603. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £440, with residence and 24 acres of glebe, in the gift of Antony Gibbs esq. and held since 1880 by the Rev. Edward John Gore Dupuis M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford. There is also a Wesleyan chapel here. The charities, amounting to about £30 yearly, are distributed in bread and clothing. The Manor House, the property of the Earl of Devon, is occupied by William Martin esq. The Earl of Devon, who is lord of the manor, and Antony Gibbs esq. of Tyntesfield, Somerset, are the principal landowners. The soil is loamy; subsoil, gravel. The crops are the usual cereals, with much pasture. The area is 2,716 acres of land, 20 of water and 2 of tidal water; rateable value, £7,807; the population in 1901 was 1,127.

By Local Government Board Order No. 16,545 (March 25, 1884) Gutteridge house and cottages were transferred from Kenton.

ALVINGTON WEST (or West Allington) is a large parish, in the Totnes or Southern division of the county, Stanborough hundred, also the Stanborough and Cole-ridge petty sessional division, and in Kingsbridge union and county court district, rural deanery of Woodleigh, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of All Saints, which is about one mile south-west from Kingsbridge, is a fine building of stone, in the Early Perpendicular style, with some remains of earlier work in the chancel, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, a chapel set apart for the Ilbert family, south porch and an embattled western tower with four pinnacles, containing 6 bells: the east window is a memorial to W. R. Ilbert esq. and the west window to the Rev. Douglas Macdonald, a former vicar: the church was restored in 1867 at a cost of £2,600, and has sittings. The registers date from the year 1558. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £300, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Salisbury, and held since 1898 by the Rev. Thomas Morgan Bell Salter M.A. of Lincoln College, Oxford, and surrogate. The rectorial tithes belong half to the vicar and half to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. The vicarage of South Milton, formerly annexed to this living, was separated by Order in Council, June 7th, 1886. There is a small charity for the repair of the church and other charitable purposes, and another for sick and second poor, left by Dame Ilbert. The ancient "Poor House" is now partly converted into a cottage, and partly into a parish room for the use of the feepees. Here are rope works, employing 14 men and boys. Bowringsleigh, the residence since 1696 of the Ilbert family, whose representatives had formerly resided at Rill, in Buckfastleigh, is an ancient mansion, portions of which date from the 13th century, but the principal existing features are of the Early Tudor period: in the hall is an elaborate oak screen, of the time of James I. richly embossed with ebony and mahogany; the chapel, connected with the east wing of the house, which was partially destroyed by fire in 1843, contains a rich 15th century screen, brought from South Huish church: the ceilings of the reception rooms are beautiful specimens of the plaster decoration of the time of William and Mary; and there is a collection of valuable pictures: the mansion was completely restored and considerably enlarged during the years 1868-73. William Roope Ilbert esq. is lord of the manor of West Alvington and Norden; W. E. P. Bastard esq. of Lyneham, is lord of the manor of Gerston; John Square Hurrell esq. of Kingsbridge, is lord of the manor of Woolston and Oldaway. The chief landowners are W. R. Ilbert esq. J. S. Hurrell esq. and the Bastard and Pearce families. The soil is various; subsoil, slaty shale and clay. The chief crops are wheat and barley; a large quantity of the land is used for grazing. The area is 2,712 acres of land, 13 of water and 252 of foreshore; rateable value, £3,778. The population in 1901 was 433. The Ecclesiastical Parish includes portions of Kingsbridge, Dodbrooke and Churchstow.

Woolston, 1½ miles south-by-west; Easton, 1 south; Bowcombe, 2 north-east; and Addlehole, 1½ north-east, are hamlets. By Local Government Board Order, 16,312, Coombe Royal was transferred to Churchstow and Addlehole to Dodbrooke, March 24, 1884.

Post, M. O. & S. B. Office.—Miss F. Morgan, sub-postress. Letters arrive by mail cart from Kingsbridge at 6.45 a.m. & by coach at 11.45 a.m. & 6.45 p.m.; dispatched at 10.50 a.m., 2 p.m. & 5.55 p.m. week days; Sunday, 12.35 p.m. The nearest telegraph office is at Kingsbridge, 1 mile distant

ALWINGTON is a parish on the high road from Bideford to Clovelly and Hartland, on the coast of the Bristol channel, $\frac{1}{2}$ miles south-west from Bideford station on the Torrington branch of the London and South Western railway, in the North Western division of the county, Shebbear hundred, Bideford petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Hartland, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Andrew is an ancient building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch, a private chapel belonging to Major J. M. Kirkwood, of Yeo Vale, and a picturesque western tower containing 6 bells, the first having a legend in crowned Lombardic characters, and the second the words "sancta maria"; the third is dated 1712, and the tenor has an invocation to the Virgin, in lettering like that of the second: there are several monuments and some memorial windows, three of which are to the Kirkwood family: the reredos, pulpit and the manorial pew are all of elaborately carved old oak: there was interred, Dec. 25, 1555, Richard Coffin, of Postlynch (Portledge); on June 13, 1569, Wilmot (Chudleigh) his wife, and on March 30, 1608, John Coffin, of Postlynch: in the church is a monument with demi-effigies and busts of 14 children, to Richard Coffin, of Portledge, esq. ob. July 25, 1617, and Elizabeth (Lovis) his wife, ob. May 3, 1651, erected in the latter year by James, their fifth and only surviving son; there are also inscriptions to four of their children, 1654-62: and other memorials to Richard Coffin, of Portledge, esq. ob. 1699; John Coffin esq. ob. July 11, 1703, and Catherine (Kellond) his wife and Bridget (Coffin), widow of Charles Kellond, of Painsford, esq. ob. March 14, 1696-7; in the pavement of the nave is a stone with floriated cross and inscription to George Dyell esq. ob. August 29, 1513: the bench ends have the letters R.C. and the date 1580, and the arms of Risdon, and the pulpit is enriched with impaled shields of the Coffin family: there is also a brass to Leonard Pine-Coffin esq. who was drowned while bathing at Santos, in Brazil, Jan. 21, 1898: the church was re-seated in 1840 at the cost of the Rev. J. Pine-Coffin, then rector, and has 240 sittings. The register dates from the year 1550. The living is a rectory, net yearly income £188, with 70 acres of glebe, and residence, in the gift of Mrs. Pine-Coffin, and held since 1901 by the Rev. Henry Coleridge Spring B.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge. There is a Wesleyan chapel at Ford. The charities include the Wackerill charity of £5 15s. 8d.; the Morrison charity of £1 8s. yearly; and the Good Friday charity of £1 8s. Portledge, the property of Mrs. Pine-Coffin, is at present occupied by Henry Johnson Mason esq.; Yeo Vale is a seat of Major James Morrison Kirkwood J.P. Mrs. Pine-Coffin, of Kenwith Abbotsham, who is lady of the manor and William Bruton esq. of Brighton, Sussex, are the chief landowners. The soil is sandy; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 2,746 acres of land and 138 of foreshore; rateable value, £1,677; the population in 1901 was 312.

APPLEDORE is a market town and considerable seaport, at the mouth of the rivers Taw and Torridge, $\frac{1}{2}$ mile from Instow station on the Torrington branch of the London and South Western railway, which is on the other side of the river Torridge, over which there is a ferry, and 3 miles north from Bideford, in the North Western division of the county, Shebbear hundred, Bideford petty sessional division and union, Bideford county court district, rural deanery of Hartland, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The town is lighted with gas by a company and water works are now (1901) in course of construction by the Northam Urban District Council, of which district Appledore forms a ward. Appledore is now a part of the ports of Barnstaple and Bideford, and has two spacious dry docks belonging to the trustees of the late William Yeo, and a patent slip, owned by Robert Cock and Sons, and on the east side of the town, facing Instow, is a broad and spacious quay, which is much frequented; a light railway from Bideford to Westward Ho! and Appledore was begun in 1897. The ecclesiastical parish was formed August 26, 1844, from the civil parish of Northam. The church of St. Mary, erected in 1838, is an edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and a turret containing one bell: there are 364 sittings. The register dates from the year 1844. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £210, in the gift of the vicar of Northam, and held since 1896 by the Rev. Alfred Gurney Goldsmith M.A. of Trinity Hall, Cambridge. There are Congregational, Baptist and Wesleyan chapels, meeting rooms for the Plymouth Brethren and Bible Christians, a Sailors' rest and a Seamen's mission. The trade principally consists in shipbuilding, and steel and iron barge building, the importation of timber from Norway and Sweden, and limestone from Wales, and the exporting of gravel to South Wales. The Market House was erected in 1848; Wednesday and Saturday are the market days. The early closing day is on Wednesday at 4 p.m. The Public Rooms in West Appledore, erected in 1894, will hold 500 persons. The large collar and cuff factory of Messrs. Vincent and Duncan employs over 100 females. At West Appledore is a battery, constructed in June, 1895, for the use of the Royal Naval Reserve here; near the battery is the boat-house of the Royal National Life Boat Institution, and at Rock Point is the Custom House. Here is also a coastguard station. Salmon and codfish are caught in great quantities, and a number of the inhabitants obtain their livelihood by collecting mussels and cockles, which are found on the sands at Braunton, and also a species of seaweed called "laver," which is much in request. In the neighbourhood is the Hubblestone rock, supposed to have been the burial place of the Danish chief Hubba, who was slain near the coast A.D. 377-8. Richmond House, a handsome modern mansion commanding fine sea and land views, is at present (1901) unoccupied. The trustees of the late William Yeo, Mr. Oliver Heywood and the trustees of the late Sidney Cartwright esq. are the principal landowners. The area is 130 acres; rateable value, with Northam, £15,861; the population in 1891 was 2,440.

ARLINGTON is a parish and village, about 3 miles south-west from Blackmoor station, on the line of railway opened in 1897 from Barnstaple to Lynton, 7 north-east from Barnstaple, and 10 south-east from Ilfracombe, in the North-Western division of the county, Sherwell hundred, petty sessional division of Braunton, Barnstaple union and county court district, rural deanery of Sherwill, archdeaconry of Barnstaple, and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. James, rebuilt in 1846, under the direction of Mr. Gould, architect, and the tower in 1899, is an edifice in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 6 bells, all re-cast in 1855: in the church is a fine, but somewhat mutilated effigy of a lady, c. 1250-1310, in wimple and flowing robes, and wearing a coronet; it has been assumed to represent a member of the Raleigh family, who held this place in the 13th century: the stained east window is a memorial to the Rev. J. H. J. Chichester, 60 years rector, who died in 1884: there are mural tablets to John Chichester ob. 1644; Robert Chichester, ob. 1622, and several others to the Chichester family of more recent date: a new organ was erected in 1891: the church affords 200 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1640; marriages, 1671; burials, 1598. The living is a rectory, yearly income £250, with 83 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Miss Chichester, and held since 1890 by the Rev. Theodore de Landulph Sprye, of Trinity College, Dublin, and K.C.L. There are charities of £3 18s. yearly value. Arlington Court is the seat of Miss Chichester, lady of the manor, and chief landowner. The soil is loamy, on rock. The chief crops are pasture, and a small quantity of wheat and oats. The area is 2,579 acres of land and xx of water; assessable value, £1,687; the population in 1801 was 238.

Becott is a hamlet in the parish, half a mile north.

ASHBURTON is a borough, market town and parish, and is the terminus of the Totnes and Ashburton branch of the Great Western railway, 8 miles south-west from Newton Abbot junction, on the South Devon railway, 232 miles from London by rail, 21 east-by-south from Tavistock, 9 north-east from Totnes and 19 south-west from Exeter, in the Mid division of the county, hundred and petty sessional division of Teignbridge, union and county court district of Newton Abbot, rural deanery of Moreton, arch-deaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. Ashburton is situated on the small river Yeo, which flows through the town, driving several mills in its course and falling into the Dart near Buckfastleigh on the old road from London through Exeter and Plymouth; it is seated among the hills, where there are mines for tin and copper within the precincts of the Duchy of Cornwall, and was formerly one of the four Stannary towns. Ashburton is a borough by prescription, and was constituted a stannary town by charter of Edward I.: it formerly returned one member to Parliament, but was disfranchised by the Representation of the People (Scotland) Act, 1868 (31 and 32 Vic. c. 48); it was not affected by the Municipal Corporations Act of 1835, but continued to be governed by a portreeve and bailiff, elected annually at the court-leet held by Lord Clinton as lord of the manor: the seal of the portreeve bears a church between a teazel and a saltire with the sun and moon above, and around is a legend: since 1898, however, the government of the town has been entrusted, under the Local Government Act, 1894, to an Urban District Council of 12 members, formed 15 April in that year: this place has given the title of baron to the Dunning and Baring families. The town consists mostly of three streets—East, West and North, is lighted with gas from works purchased by the Urban Council in 1900, and an abundant supply of water has been brought into the town from the neighbourhood of Dartmoor. The houses are constructed of the stone of the district and covered with slate obtained from neighbouring quarries. The church of St. Andrew is an ancient cruciform structure of stone in the Late Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, transepts, aisles, north porch and lofty embattled western tower with turret 92 feet high and containing 8 bells, refitted in 1896 and a new clock dial provided, at a cost of £250: the north porch is of Transition Norman date: the north aisle was built in 1315; the south aisle between 1420 and 1455: the head of King Edward II. occurs amongst the bosses in the roof of the north aisle: the south aisle is the burial place of the Dunning family: there are eight stained windows, and in the south aisle is a tablet, with inscription by Dr. Johnson, to John Dunning, 1st baron Ashburton, d. 18th August, 1783: the ancient rood screen, erected in 1525 at a cost of £20, was removed in 1718 and the pulpit and oak eagle lectern were sold in 1777 to the parish of Bigbury for £11 11s.: the church was restored during the period 1884-8, under the direction of the late G. E. Street B.A. at a cost of £5,970, when the nave was reseated in oak and the chancel fitted with oak stalls and separated from the aisles by parclose screens, designed by the architect and executed by Hems: a new striking clock with Westminster chimes was placed in the tower in 1887 at a cost of about £200: there are about 800 sittings. The register commences in the year 1603. The living is a vicarage, with the rectory of Buckland-in-the-Moor annexed, joint net yearly value £350, including 70 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and held since 1900 by the Rev. Richard James Bond, who is also a surrogate. The Congregational chapel, North street, erected in 1665, is a plain building of stone and will seat 600 persons. The Wesleyan chapel, West street, erected in 1835, is a building of the Doric order and will seat 700 persons. The Brethren have a room in North street with 150 sittings, and one near the railway station holding 100. There is a subscription library, established in 1831, with 5,000 volumes, an institute, a Constitutional club, two banking houses, several good inns and two hotels. Holne Chase, the upper course of the Dart, and the whole of the south eastern escarpment of Dartmoor, all of which places are within easy reach. In the town are two corn mills, and a malthouse. There are very extensive beds of amber throughout this parish, and two companies are engaged in obtaining and preparing it, chiefly for use in the manufacture of colour, and wall paper. Tin was formerly obtained from a mine at Odeycombe in this parish. The Ashburton Masonic Hall Lodge (No. 2189), erected by the brethren in 1890, on a site given by Henry Stevens esq., is a small building of limestone with Bath stone dressings. The Market-house, in North street, with the river Yeo running behind, and erected at a cost of £2,200, defrayed by Lord Clinton, is a building of stone, 90 feet long, and contains on the upper storey a large public room, used by the magistrates for the division of Teignbridge for petty sessional meetings; it is also available for assemblies, entertainments and concerts, and will hold 350 persons. The ordinary market day is on Friday. Fairs are held on the first Thursdays in March and June and on the 10th of August and the 11th of November, if on Tuesday or Thursday, if not, then on the first Tuesday or Thursday after. An excellent store cattle market is held on the third Saturday in the month, and is largely attended from all parts of the country. The early closing is on Wednesday. The Ashburton and Buckfastleigh Cottage Hospital, at the east end of the town, is a building of granite with freestone facings, erected in 1887 at a cost of about £1,500, defrayed by public subscriptions, on a site given by R. G. Abraham esq.; the hospital, first founded in 1875, has 10 beds and is endowed with bequests left by Mrs. Larpent and Miss Michelmore, now (1901) amounting to £1,572: the hospital is also well supported by subscriptions. The charities are numerous and are the gifts and bequests of several centuries; the amount distributed in money, clothing and bread to the poor of this parish is about £160 yearly. There are also parish lands of £170 yearly value in the hands of about 30 trustees, who are elected for life, and who have the power of distributing the money as they may think fit. Wm. Gifford, formerly editor of the "Quarterly Review," and author of the "Baviad," a paraphrase of the 1st satire of Persius, was born here in April, 1756; John Ireland D.D. Dean of Westminster, was also born here 8th September, 1761, as well as John Dunning, 1st Baron Ashburton, 18th October, 1731: the title of Baron Ashburton, which had become extinct on the death of Richard Barre Dunning, 2nd baron in 1823, was revived in 1835 in favour of Alexander Baring esq. first cousin by marriage of the last Lord Ashburton. Druid House is the residence of Peter Fabyan Sparke Amery esq. J.P. Halshanger that of Mrs. Woodley, Place that of Frederic H. Firth esq. D.L., J.P. and Waverley Hall of Simeon Berry esq. J.P. Lord Clinton and Sir Robert Jardine bart. of Castle Milk, Lockerbie, N.B. who are joint lords of the manor, Messrs. E. Tucker and Sons Limited, B. G. Abraham, William Bennett Dawe and Robert Coard Tucker esqrs. Mr. John Hannibal Foaden, P. F. Sparke Amery and Simeon Berry esqrs. Baldwin J. P. Bastard esq. of Kitley, and W. T. S. Smerdon esq. Mrs. Woodley, and the Hon. Richard M. W. Dawson, of Holne Park, are the chief landowners. The soil is light; subsoil, slate, lime and trapp rock. The area of the parish is 6,941 acres of land and 22 of water; rateable value, £12,884; the population in 1901 was 2,678.

SCHOOLS.

The Grammar School, founded by Walter de Stapledon, Bishop of Exeter in 1314, & refounded in 1593, was re-organized by the Charity Commissioners in 1876, & is endowed with land of the yearly value of about £200; the school room is built upon the site of the ancient chapel of St. Laurence, the beautiful tower of which, containing a clock & surmounted by a small spire, still remains; attached to the school is an exhibition, worth £70, at Exeter College, Oxford, founded by Mr. Gifford, & three scholarships of £6 & one of £8 are held at the school; there are now about 50 boys. A new class room was added in 1891, & the playground enlarged. With the co-operation of the County Council of Devon, an agricultural department, called "the County School of Agriculture," has been created for those scholars who intend to follow the profession of agriculture; a chemical laboratory with benches for 16 students, & a carpenter's shop & smith's shop have been built; a science master & technical instructors have been appointed, & there is a school farm; arrangements have also been made with neighbouring farmers, by which instruction in the operations of practical agriculture may be given to the scholars; the school is controlled by a body of 12 governors, Lord Clinton, chairman; James Mortimer esq. B.A. head master
A School Board of 7 members was formed 11 July, 1878; Henry Mallaby Firth, East street, clerk to the board; Frank Oliver, West street, attendance officer Board, Bowling green, erected 1879, on the site of the old Bourne school, at a cost of £1,050, including site, will hold 170 boys, 150 girls & 150 infants; average attendance, 150 boys, 120 girls & 136 infants; attached to the school are four scholarships of £8 a year, tenable for two years, at the Grammar school, for boys who have been educated for at least one year at this school; William T. Butchers, master; Miss Elizabeth Mary Channon, mistress; Mrs. Amy Butchers, infants' mistress

ASHBURY is a parish and village, with a station a miles south-west, on the Okehampton and Holsworthy branch of the London and South Western railway, and is 5 south-west from Hatherleigh, in the Western division of the county, Black Torrington East hundred, Hatherleigh petty sessional division, Okehampton union and county court district, rural deanery of Okehampton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary, beautifully situated in the picturesque park of Ashbury House, is a building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles containing 3 bells. The carved oak reredos, executed by Hems, was placed in 1891, at a cost of £200, by Mrs. Woolcombe as a memorial to her husband, the late Archdeacon Henry Woolcombe. The church was restored in 1872-3 by the late Ven. Archdeacon Henry Woolcombe, at a cost of £900, and has 70 sittings. The register dates from the year 1612. The living is a rectory united with North Lew, joint net yearly value £450, including 189 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Crown, and held since 1885 by the Rev. John Worthington M.A. of Brasenose College, Oxford, and ASHCOMBE is a village and parish on the east side of the Great Haldon, 5 miles north-west from Dawlish station on the Exeter and Plymouth section of the main line of the Great Western railway, 9 south-east from Exeter, 3 east from Chudleigh and 5 north-west from Teignmouth, in the North Eastern division of the county, Exminster hundred, Wonford petty sessional division, St. Thomas union, Exeter county court district, rural deanery of Kenn and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Nectan is a fine old building of stone in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consecrated in 1259, and consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, small transepts, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 3 bells; the 1st, east in Totnes, is rural dean of Okehampton, who resides at North Lew. The Mid-Devon hotel, situated close to the station, and 820 feet above the sea level, contains spacious sitting rooms and bed rooms, and a detached billiard room, and has good stabling. Ashbury House is the property of John North Woolcombe esq. The old mansion, occupied by the family since 1685, was destroyed by fire in 1877, and the present house was erected by the late Ven. Archdeacon Woolcombe in 1866. The trustees of the late Ven. Archdeacon Henry Woolcombe are lords of the manor and chief landowners. The soil is sandy; subsoil, stone. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 1,748 acres; rateable value, £742; the population in 1901 was 93.

dated 1686; the 2nd has a prayer to the Virgin in Old English characters; the 3rd, a very high-shouldered bell, dates from 1607; the font is Norman and there is a piscina; the seats are of oak with richly-carved ends of curious design; and in the north transept is a memorial window to the Rev. W. H. Palk B.A., J.P. 65 years rector, who died July 28, 1885, erected by his niece, Lady Elizabeth Jones; the nave arcade exhibits the arms of the Kirkham family, who had possessions here in the 16th century: the fine old screen was sold in 1820: in 1824 considerable sums were expended in repairing and beautifying the church, which has 140 sittings: the entrance to the neatly-kept churchyard is through a lych-gate. The register dates from the year 1583, but the early records are much dilapidated. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £171, including 33 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1885 by the Rev. Walter Moyle M.A. of Worcester College, Oxford. Langley's charity produces £3 7s. 8d. yearly, which is devoted to the National school. Sir Robert Hunt Stapylton Dudley Lydston Newman bart. of Mamhead Park, is lord of the manor and chief landowner. The soil is loamy; the subsoil is limestone rock and sandstone rock. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips; apples are also largely grown here. The acreage is 1,968; rateable value, £1,775; the population in 1901 was 125.

ASHPRINGTON is a parish and village in a pleasant position on a gentle declivity, 3 miles south-south-east from Totnes station on the South Devon section of the main line of the Great Western railway, 8 north-west from Dartmouth and 12 south-west from Torquay, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Cole-ridge, petty sessional division of Stanborough and Cole-ridge, Totnes union and county court district, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The river Dart separates this parish from Stoke Gabriel; the Wash, which derives its name from a small hamlet here, divides it from Cornworthy; and the Harbourne, an arm of the Dart, flows through the middle of the parish. The church of St. David is an edifice of dun-stone with red sandstone dressings, in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel with north and south vestries, nave of four bays, aisles, south embattled porch and a lofty embattled western tower containing 5 bells, all cast in 1790: the east window is a memorial to Mrs. Durant, of Sharpsham: the chancel retains a square-headed, trefoiled piscina and a priest's doorway, but the latter has been modernised; portions of the ancient rood screen, fairly complete in 1846, are preserved in the north vestry, and there was also at that date a parclose: the chancel, which has modern stalls, is now separated from the nave by a dwarf screen of stone; but the fine octagonal turret containing the stairs to the rood loft still stands on the north side: in the north aisle is a mural tablet of black and white marble, with arms, to John Kelland, of Painsford D.L., J.P. ob. 6 June, 1679, and Susanna Somaster, his wife, ob. 1648, and there is also a memorial to Henry Blackaller J.P. ob. 1684: the circular font, of Norman date, is enriched with cable mouldings of foliage work: the south porch once had a parvise, the turret staircase to which remains: on the exterior south wall of the chancel is a brass with inscription, with arms, to William Sumaster, of Pynesford esq. ob. 29 June, 1529, and a stone inscribed to the Cockey family: the church underwent considerable repairs in 1845, at a cost of about £1,600, and in 1886 the interior was restored and reseated at a cost of £300. In the churchyard, on the south side, is a large and very finely-grown yew tree, and part of an ancient cross. The register dates from the year 1607. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £360, with residence and 39 acres of glebe, in the gift of Col. G. T. L. Carwithen, and held since 1898 by the Rev. Reginald Master Carwithen B.A. of St. Mary Hall, Oxford. In 1605 a spring was discovered in the parish possessing medicinal properties, and which for a time enjoyed great popularity. The almshouse given by Sir Edward Giles kt. in 1622, and the "Church house," also an almshouse, were pulled down about 1865, and the materials of the latter used in building a school-house. Sharpsham, in this parish, the magnificent seat of Miss Durant, is a mansion of freestone, standing on the western bank of the river Dart, in the midst of beautiful and park-like grounds, which include 1½ miles of wood and 7 acres of lawn and flower garden, and contain a remarkably fine wych elm, 16 feet in circumference, and covering with its branches, some of which are 9 feet round, an area of 400 square feet: there is also a very large rookery and a small heronry. The manor of Sharpsham belonged in 1399 to the Winards, and afterwards descended to the Prideaux, Somaster and Drewe families; it was sold by the latter to John Giles, of Bowden, and was subsequently held by the Yarges, Cockeys and Pownalls, through whom it came to the Bastards, and from these was purchased by the late Mr. Durant. Another manor is that of Washburton. Miss Durant is lady of the manor and the principal landowner. Washbourne, a separate manor, was purchased in 1887 by Henry Symons esq. of Totnes, a lineal descendant of Robert Symons, mayor of Totnes in 1686. The soil is light loam; subsoil, dunstone. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots, and a fair proportion of grazing land. The area is 1,998 acres of land, 3 of water, 32 of tidal water and 117 of foreshore; rateable value, £3,058; the population in 1891 was 418 in the civil and 464 in the ecclesiastical parish. By Local Government Board Order, 16,308, Lower Washbourne Farm House was transferred from Harberton to Ash-prington and a detached part of the latter parish to Halwell, March 24, 1894.

PENSFORD, Painsford or Pynesford, and anciently "Pantisfort," is 1 mile west from the church. There were anciently chapels here dedicated to St. David, St. James and St. John the Baptist, one of which was rebuilt in 1687 by John Kelland, of Painsford, and dedicated Aug. 4 in that year to St. Mary, and divine service continued to be held in it till about the middle of the last century. Painsford House, an ancient mansion on the west bank of the river Harbourne, now used as a farm-house, is the property of Philip Michelmore esq. and occupied by Mr. Henry Peeke. The manor of Painsford was anciently held by the Piperell and Halwell families, and was purchased by the Somasters in the reign of Henry VII.; the Kellands, of Totnes, acquired the manor by the marriage in the 17th century of John Kelland with Susanna, daughter and heir of John So-master; but on the death of John Kelland in 1712 without issue the property passed to the Courtenays, and afterwards to the Poyntz and Boyle families, by whom it was sold to the Michelmores.

TUCKENHAY is a hamlet $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles south, where there are extensive stores and quays abutting on the river Harbourne, as well as an old gas house, erected, for lighting the village, by the late Mr. Abraham Tucker about the year 1806. Here is a Baptist chapel.

ASHTON is a parish, containing two villages, called respectively Upper Town and Lower Town, on the river Teign, and on the road from Chudleigh to Crediton, with a station on the Teign Valley branch of the Great Western railway, now (1901) being extended to Exeter, 219 miles from London, 4 miles north-west from Chudleigh, 8 south-west from Exeter and 16 north-west from Torquay, in the North Eastern division of the county, Exminster hundred, Wonford petty sessional division, St. Thomas (Exeter) union, Exeter county court district, rural deanery of Kenn and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. There is a picturesque old stone bridge over the Teign, built in 1604, and the view on each side is very charming. The church of St. John the Baptist is an ancient building of granite and limestone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel with chapel, nave, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing 6 bells: the chapel is separated from the chancel by a screen with exquisite tracery, and in excellent preservation; the lower panels are painted with life-sized figures and are considered to be unique: the windows in the north aisle exhibit the arms of the Chudleigh family, quartered with those of the various county families into which they married: there is one brass, and three monuments—one of which, constructed of wood, with armorial bearings, commemorates Sir George Chudleigh bart, first a Parliamentarian, then a Royalist commander in the Civil War, ob. 1657, Mary (Strode) his wife, nine sons and nine daughters: the font has an octagonal basin, the sides of which bear the arms of Chudleigh, Stourton and Tremaine: the oak wagon roof was restored in 1900, at a cost of £500: there is an Elizabethan pulpit of carved oak and over it an elaborate sounding board or canopy, and affixed to it is an iron hour glass stand: there are sittings for 170 persons. The register dates from the year 1547. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £207, with residence and 58 acres of glebe, in the gift of John Collingwood Onions esq. J.P. of Tyseley Grange, near Birmingham, and held since 1897 by the Rev. John Collingwood Onions M.A. of Trinity Hall, Cambridge. The charities are of £5 yearly value. The ASHWATER is a parish and village on the river Carey, half a mile north-west from Ashwater station on a section of the London and South Western railway from Exeter to Launceston and Treameer, and 7 miles south-east from Holsworthy; Dunsland Cross station is in this parish, 5 miles north of the village; in the Western division of the county, hundred of Black Torrington, Holsworthy petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Holsworthy, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Peter consists of chancel, nave, south aisle, north porch and a lofty western tower, with pinnacles, containing 5 bells, all cast in 1772, and repaired in 1865 by the late F. Honey: in the south aisle are recumbent effigies of a knight in plate armour and a lady, probably representing Sir Hugh Courtenay, of Boconnoc, Cornwall, slain at Tewkesbury, 4 May, 1471, and Margaret (Carminow) his wife: in the east window of the aisle are the arms of Carew impaling Carminow; and a shield on one of the bench ends exhibits a biretta and a monogram, possibly referring to the Arscott family: the stained east window is a memorial to the wife and daughter of the Rev. Thomas Melhuish M.A. late rector: in 1876 the church was restored at a cost of £1,200; in 1889 it was further restored, when the chancel was rebuilt, new-roofed with oak and re-floored and carved oak choir stalls and other fittings erected: a fine carved oak pulpit, executed by John Northcott, of this parish, was also presented by the rector: there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558, and records the baptism here of the father of General Monk, afterwards Duke of Albemarle, and also the marriage of his grandfather to a Miss Arscott. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £478, including 94 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of, and held since 1897, by the Rev. George Douglas Melhuish M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford. There are two Bible Christian chapels and a Baptist chapel. Robert J. Preston-Whyte esq. of Leigh House, Chulmleigh, who is lord of the manor, Mrs. Dickinson, of Dunsland, Brandis Corner, and Mrs. Ford, of 17 Park Street, Park Lane, London W. are the principal landowners. The soil is chiefly clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. Acreage, 8,710; rateable value, £3,292; the population in 1901 was 758.

Barton, in this parish, was the seat at the beginning of the 14th century of the Chudleigh family, of which was Sir James Chudleigh kt. Sir Richard Chudleigh kt. Sir John Chudleigh, knighted by Charles I. 22 Sept. 1625, and Sir George Chudleigh, created a baronet, 1 Aug. 1622: their house, which had been garrisoned for the king, was taken by the Parliamentary forces, Dec. 29, 1645; the Chudleighs were lords of the manor, and were seated here from 1320 to 1750, but the baronetcy became extinct on the death of Sir John Chudleigh bart. who was killed at Ostend, Aug. 1, 1745; subsequently the manor passed by marriage to Sir Henry Oxenden, 7th bart. Frederick Theophilus Treeby esq. J.P. is lord of the manor and owns the larger portion of the parish. The soil is clayey in one part and loamy in another; subsoil, clay and skillett. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and potatoes. The area is 2,172 acres of land and 10 of water; rateable value, £1,828, the population in 1901 was 168.

By a Local Government Board Order, which came into operation March 25, 1884, a detached part of Trusham parish, in Newton Abbot union, known as Middle Bramble and Lower Bramble, and Higher, Lower and Middle Keddens from Exminster, was amalgamated with this parish.

ATHERINGTON is a parish and village 1 mile west from Umberleigh Bridge station on the North Devon branch of the London and South Western railway, 7 miles south from Barnstaple, 7 north-east from Torrington, 8½ west from South Molton, and 20½ from London, in the North Western division of the county, hundred of North Tawton, petty sessional division of Brauntton, Barnstaple union and county court district, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary, originally built in the Early English period, is an ancient building of stone, chiefly in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 6 bells, cast in 1786: the church retains a lofty and very richly-carved oak screen of Late Perpendicular date, with a rood-loft, the only one in Devon, across the north aisle: the stained east window is a memorial to the Rev. James Arthur: the bench ends are of carved oak: on the north side of the chancel is an altar tomb, panelled round the sides in quatrefoils and retaining on the upper slab effigies in brass of a knight in full armour, between two ladies; below these are small figures in two groups of 12 children, and at the angles are shields of arms (one being lost); the persons commemorated are Sir John Basset kt. ob. 1528, and his wives Elizabeth (Denys) and Honora (Grenville): in the north aisle of the chancel lies the mutilated effigy of a warrior of the 13th century, in chain armour, and wearing a cycias, the arms and legs being now lost; the figure has been assigned to Sir William de Champenowne kt.: in the chancel are two other recumbent effigies of the 14th century of a knight in full armour and surcoat with the arms of Willington, conjectured to represent Sir Ralph Willington kt. ob. 1349, and Lady Eleanor (Molun) his wife; all these effigies and the oak screen are said to have been removed here from the desecrated chapel at Umberleigh; there is also a tomb with effigies of a crusader and wife: the church was restored in 1884 under the direction of J. L. Pearson esq. R.A. at a cost of about £3,000, when the walls were partly rebuilt, at the expense of Mrs. Basset, of Watermouth Castle: the clock was placed in the tower and a lych gate built at the cost of the Arthur family: there are 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £360, including 200 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Mrs. Arthur, of Hawley House, Barnstaple, and held since 1881 by the Rev. William Wills Arthur M.A. of Caius College, Cambridge. Attached to the living is some copyhold property and 100 acres of land, known as Miltons and Lemons; there is also an Ecclesiastical manor, of which the rector is lord. There is a Baptist chapel. Mrs. Basset is chief landowner and lady of the manor of Umberleigh. The soil is in part rich loam, some clay and part valuable stone. The chief crops are wheat and oats, and there are several gardens of cherries, plums and other fruit. The area is 3,318 acres of land and 19 of water; assessable value, £2,170; the population of the parish in 1901 was 420.

Umberleigh, 1 mile east, in the valley of the Taw, across which there is an old wooden bridge; the North Devon railway has a station here. Umberleigh House is the residence of Major-General Douglas Gaye R.A. Adjoining the Umberleigh mansion house was formerly a chapel dedicated to the Holy Trinity, and endowed as a chantry by Joan, heiress of the Champenownes and wife of Sir Ralph Willington kt. but suppressed in 1547 and dismantled in 1800; only small portions of a wall and an ancient doorway now remain.

AVETON GIFFORD is a parish and village, pleasantly situated near the river Avon, here crossed by a county bridge, 3 miles south-west from Loddiswell station on the Kingsbridge branch of the Great Western railway, 3½ north-west from Kingsbridge, 3½ south-east from Modbury and 16 east-by-south from Plymouth, in the Totnes division of the county, hundred of Ermington, petty sessional division of Ermington and Plympton, union and county court district of Kingsbridge, rural deanery of Woodleigh, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Andrew is an ancient edifice of stone in the Early English and Decorated styles, situated on an eminence a short distance from the village, and consists of chancel with aisles, nave, transepts and a central tower containing 8 bells; the interior was thoroughly restored in 1869, at a cost of about £2,500, of which £500 was a legacy left by the late Miss Froude, of Denbury: the east window is a memorial to the Rev. W. P. Pitman, late rector: the stained west window was given in 1887 by the Rev. W. D. Pitman M.A. rector: the organ was built in 1875: the fine 15th century chancel screens of carved oak, removed in 1869, were restored in 1886 by Hems of Exeter and replaced: there are 450 sittings. The register dates from the year 1614 (baptism), 1603 (marriages and deaths). The living is a rectory, net yearly value £460, with 97 acres of glebe, and residence, in the gift of and held since 1874 by the Rev. Wm. Daniel Pitman M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford, and J.P. Walter de Stapledon, a native of Monkleigh, in this county, and some time rector of Aveton Gifford, was consecrated Bishop of Exeter in 1307, and in 1314 was the founder of Exeter College, Oxford; he was also Professor of Canon Law at that University, chaplain to Pope Clement V. and for several years Lord High Treasurer, but was beheaded by the adherents of Queen Isabella, 15th Oct. 1326. There are Baptist, Bible Christian and Wesleyan chapels. The late Archdeacon Froude, father of Professor J. A. Froude M.A. (d. 1894), the distinguished historian, was born at Wakeham House, in this parish. The church property, amounting to £16 annually, is used for expenses connected with the church. Mrs. Lucy Wilcox, of Greenham, Berks, a native of this parish, left in 1875 the sum of £500, the interest thereof to be distributed in provisions on Christmas Eve, by the churchwardens and overseers, amongst the poor of the parish not being inmates of the Union Workhouse. A market and two fairs, now obsolete, were granted to the lord of the manor in 1287. Baldwin John Pollexfen Bastard esq. of Kitley, is lord of the manor, and the Rev. Philip Hyne, of Woodside, Luton, Beds, lord of the smaller manor of Heathfield. The principal landowners are R. H. Froude esq. Henry Mallet Veale esq. of Passaford, Hatherleigh, James Adams esq. the trustees of the late T. Emerson, Mrs. Pearce, Admiral George Parker, of Delamore, Ivybridge, Mr. Edward Garland, Mr. J. Yabsley, the Rev. P. Hyne and Mrs. Wright. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and roots; the farms are well adapted for rearing stock and for dairy produce. The area is 3,946 acres of land, 2 of water, 23 of tidal water and 70 of foreshore; rateable value, £4,946; the population in 1891 was 796.

Ashford, half a mile north; Lixton, 2 north; Harraton and Waterhead, are small hamlets in this parish.

AVONWICK is a village at the junction of the four parishes of Ugborough, North Huish, Diptford and South Brent, with a station half a mile east on the new line to Kingsbridge, 2 miles south from Brent station on the South Devon section of the Great Western railway, and about 8 north from Kingsbridge. In this village was an ancient ford, over the river Avon, called Charford, or Cerdic's ford. The church of St. James, erected in 1878 from the designs of the Rev. R. Medley Fulford F.R.I.B.A. is a building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave and south porch: the chancel is a memorial to the late James Cornish esq. of Black Hall: the carved oak reredos was executed by Hems, of Exeter:

there are 250 sittings. The Rev. William James Sevier M.A. of Cambridge University, has been curate-in-charge since 1901. There is also a Congregational chapel. Here are the Avon Vale Club Grounds and Pavilion.

AWLISCOMBE is a parish and village, on the road from Honiton to Cullompton, 2 miles north-west from Honiton station on the main line of the South Western railway and 16 north-east from Exeter, in the Eastern division of the county, Hemyock hundred, Honiton petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Dunkeswell and Honiton, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Michael is an edifice of stone, in the Perpendicular style of the 15th century, consisting of chancel with aisle, nave of four bays, north aisle, south transept, south porch with groined stone roof, and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 5 bells; a traceried stone screen with figures of angels divides the chancel from the nave; the south porch was erected by Thomas Chard, last abbot of Ford and suffragan bishop in the diocese of Exeter, who also founded a chantry in the south aisle: there is a memorial window to Richard Marsden esq. of Manchester, erected by his wife and family in 1863; and two others of considerable merit: the church was repaired in 1838 and restored in 1887 at a cost of £1,000, under the direction of Mr. F. Hedley Pulford F.R.I.B.A.: the chancel has been decorated from designs by Mr. Palfrey, of London, and in 1891 new windows were inserted, principally at the cost of George Neumann esq. and his family: there are 320 sittings. The churchyard has recently been enlarged, and the new ground was consecrated by the Bishop of Exeter, 11th Oct. 1890. The register dates from the year 1559. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £182, including 30 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Duke of Bedford, and held since 1895 by the Rev. Walter Harry Tribe M.A. of Wadham College, Oxford. There is a Baptist chapel about a mile from the village, built in 1869, and seating about 130 persons. Shipley Close, a field in the parish of Honiton, is let for the benefit of the poor of this parish and Budleigh Salterton: the rent is devoted to the purchase of calico, which is distributed on Easter Sunday to such agricultural labourers as have brought up their families without parochial aid. Hambury Fort, on the road from this place to Honiton, and supposed by some to be the "Mori-dunum" of Antoninus, is an ancient camp on an elevated site and affording extensive views; the camp covers an area of about 1½ acre, enclosed by triple lines of earth-works and divided by other ramparts crossing it. Thomas Chard, abbot of Ford, was born at Tracey in this parish about 1470. Tracey, a fine old residence, beautifully seated, is occupied by Mrs. Weldon. Ashfield is the residence of Lt.-Col. William John Mackintosh (late Royal Artillery). Egland is the residence of the Rev. Walter Harry Tribe M.A. vicar. The land is freehold. The principal landowners are Mrs. Weldon, of Tracey, Mrs. Drewe, Marwood Notley esq. the trustees of the Calwoodley charity, Exeter, Rev. Daniel James Pring M.A. of Wookey, Somerset, the Rev. the Hon. Graham Colborne M.A. rector of Dittisham and Messrs. Robert White and Robert Bishop. The soil is clayey; sub-soil, marl. The chief crops are oats, peas, beans, roots and pasturage. The area is 2,487 acres; rateable value, £3,332; the population in 1901 was 465. By Local Government Board Order 16,349 detached parts of the parish were transferred to Buckerell and Gittisham and a part of Buckerell added to Awliscombe, Mar. 24, 1884.

Wolverstone is a hamlet 1½ miles north-west, and part of Weston is 1½ miles south from the parish church; the remaining portion is in Buckerell.

Sexton, Albion Dyer.

Post Office.—Miss Anne Webber, sub-postmistress. Letters arrive from Honiton at 6.45 a.m.; dispatched at 6.20 p.m. Postal orders are issued here, but not paid. The nearest money order & telegraph office is at Honiton, 2 miles distant.

Wall Letter Box, Weston, cleared at 6.30 p.m. week days only.

AXMINSTER.

AXMINSTER is a market and union town, parish on the river Axe and on the old road from London to Exeter, with a station on the main line of the London and South Western railway, 22 miles south from Taunton, 27 west from Dorchester, 145 from London, 7 north from Seaton and 7 south from Chard, head of a petty sessional division and county court district, and in the hundred of Axminster, Honiton division of the county, rural deanery of Dunkeswell and Honiton, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter.

The town of Axminster is not incorporated. The parish was formerly divided into ten tithings, known respectively as the Town, Abbey, Beerhall, Shapwick, Smallbridge, Trill, Uphay, Westwater, Weycroft and Wyke tithings, to each of which (except Abbey, which is included with Trill) separate waywardens were appointed, but in May, 1863, the parish was included in the Axminster highway district, and now elects two waywardens. Under the provisions of the Divided Parishes Act, 1882 (45 and 46 Vict. cap. 58), Beerhall tithing has been added to Thorncombe parish, and Shapwick to Uplyme parish.

The church of St. Mary, standing in the centre of the town, and originally of Norman date, is an edifice of stone in the Early English and later styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, north porch and a central embattled tower (with a turret at the south-west corner, and containing a clock and 8 bells): the nave is decorated and the north aisle Perpendicular, but the beautiful tracery of the windows has been much mutilated, and the ancient screen was removed in 1660: the south aisle was added in 1800, when the church underwent much alteration: in 1833 the roof of the nave was removed and raised and a new west window of freestone was put in: the earliest portion of the fabric is a Norman doorway with zigzag moulding, formerly the south entrance to the church, but removed in 1800 to the east end of the south aisle: the chancel, part of which is Early English, retains triple sedilia and a piscina; there were originally transepts, belonging respectively to the Drake and Yonge families, but the south transept was removed in 1800: there is still in the north aisle a flat stone inscribed to John Yonge esq. ob. 16-8, with arms: in the chancel are two ancient recumbent stone effigies, one of which is supposed to represent Alice (Briwere), wife of Reginald de Mohun, Baron Mohun, lord of the manor of Axminster in the early part of the 13th century; and the other Gervase de Prestaller, first vicar of Axminster, of the same date: the pulpit, of carved oak, dates from 1633; and there is an ancient font, and a memorial window to the Rev. William John Conybeare, d. 1857, besides others: on the floor of the north aisle is a stone inscribed to John Waty, a former vicar, ob. 5th March, 1519: the south aisle was added in 1800, and in 1833 the nave roof was renewed and raised and a new west window inserted: in 1871 the church was further repaired, at a cost of about £1,500, raised by subscription, when the old pews were removed and replaced by open seats: the tower was repaired in 1897 and the bells rehung, at a cost of about £1,200: the north aisle is now (1901) being new-roofed: there are 1,000 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1566; marriages, 1695; burials, 1559, but is very irregular: among the entries of baptisms is that of John Churchill, the great Duke of Marlborough, who was born in the adjoining parish of Musbury, 24th May, 1650. The living is a vicarage, with the chapelries of Kilmington and Membury annexed, joint net yearly value £220, with residence and a quarter of an acre of glebe, in the gift of W. Brice esq. and the prebendaries of Warthall and Grindale in York cathedral, and held since 1885 by the Rev. Arthur Newman M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, chaplain of Axminster union, and surrogate. £30 2s. 6d. out of the tithe is appropriated to the little church of All Saints, erected in 1840, on the borders of Axminster, in the parish of Chardstock.

William the Conqueror gave the church of Axminster to the prebendaries of Grindale and Warthall, in the cathedral of York. The rectory, together with the manor of Prestaller, is now held by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. The rectorial tithes of Axminster were commuted in 1838 for £670 10s. those of Kilmington for £100, and those of Membury for £264 16s.

The mission church of the Holy Cross in Woodbury lane was built by Lady Tulloch in 1893, and is served by the clergy of Axminster.

The Catholic church, dedicated to St. Mary, on the Lyme road, erected in 1862 upon the site of an older church built in 1831, at a cost, including priest's residence and schoolhouse, of nearly £3,000, chiefly contributed by the Knight family, is a building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel and nave, and has three stained windows, one of which, the east window, represents the "Annunciation"; another is a memorial window, erected in 1882 to James Alexander Knight by his widow.

The Congregational church, Chard street, first founded in 1662, was erected in 1826, and is a plain building of stone, capable of seating about 400 persons: the registers of births and baptisms belonging to this chapel date from 1786.

The Wesleyan chapel, Lyme street, was erected in 1895, and will seat about 300; there are registers of births and baptisms from 1809.

The Gospel Hall, Castle hill, will hold 200.

The Cemetery, adjoining the Chard road, and about half a mile from the church, has two mortuary chapels, and consists of 1½ acres of land, laid out in 1855 at a cost of £1,200. An additional 1½ acres was laid out in 1892, at a cost of £500. The cemetery is controlled by the Parish Council.

The manufactory of the well-known Axminster carpets, established here in 1755, was closed in 1835, in consequence of the bankruptcy of the proprietor, and the machinery removed to Wilton: part of the factory, a substantial building on the west of the church and opposite the vicarage, has been converted into a cottage hospital, and the other part into a club.

The carpet industry of this town has become extinct, but a new trade has sprung up in the manufacture of tooth brushes and nail brushes, Messrs. Coate and Co. employing about 100 persons, chiefly females, in this industry; here also are the Weycroft Roller Flour Mills, worked by steam and water power, and the Town mill for corn and grist, driven by water power, an iron foundry and saw mills.

Thursday is the market day, and the business, chiefly in corn, is transacted at the inns; a good cattle market is held every alternate Thursday, and a meat market on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays.

Three fairs are held annually, on the Tuesday after April 25th, the Tuesday after June 24th, and the Wednesday after October 10th, and are well attended: the show of cattle, sheep and horses is considerable, particularly at the October fair.

The Axminster Male Friendly Society, established in 1763, holds its anniversary meeting on the Tuesday after the Axminster April fair. The corresponding Female Society, established in 1766, holds its anniversary meeting on Whit-Monday. A Girls' Friendly Society was established in 1877, and the meetings are held at the Old School room; there is also a Masonic lodge and chapter.

A cottage hospital was established in 1887 by Miss Conybeare, and contains 8 beds and 2 cots.

The parish charities amount to about £100 yearly, derived from land at Wyke, in this parish, a field called "New Close," in Woodbury lane, and several houses in the town, besides rent-charges and legacies.

The field called "New Close" was sold to G. A. Spotiswoode esq. of Chatten Hall, some years ago, under the sanction of the Charity Commissioners, and the purchase money invested in £514 11s. 8d. Consols.

About a mile to the south of the town, on the banks of the Axe, and within the limits of the farm now occupied by Mr. Swain, are the ruins of Newenham Abbey, a house of the Cistercian order, founded in 1245 by Reginald de Mohun, then lord of the manor of Axminster, and colonized from Beaulieu; and in 1246 the founder granted to the abbey the manor and hundred of Axminster, the latter carrying with it the right to have suit and service from the owners of the several tithings: on the general survey of the monasteries, taken in the 26th Henry VIII. (1534-5), the abbey was returned to be of the value of £227 7s. 8d. yearly, and consequently it was one of the "greater abbeys" dissolved by statute 31 Henry VIII. c. 13 and 14, A.D. 1539, there being then an abbot, Richard Gyll, and 10 monks: the arms of the abbey were those of the Mohuns, viz.: "or, a cross engrailed, sa:" of the magnificent church, nearly 300 feet in length, nothing now remains, and a portion of the buildings, with an Early English triplet, standing in 1865, had fallen in 1878; many of the Bonvilles and Mohuns were interred within the church; the founder, Reginald Mohun, who died on Sunday, 20th January, 1257, at Torre, was interred, by his own direction, before the high altar; the abbey was surrendered 9th March, 1538.

Ford Abbey, situated about 7 miles to the north of Axminster, also on the banks of the Axe, in the parish of Thorncombe, Dorset, is another object of interest and great attraction.

At Musbury and Membury, villages situated respectively to the north and south of Axminster, on the high points called Musbury Castle and Membury Castle, are the remains of earthworks and entrenchments of ancient Roman or British origin. Weycroft, about a mile from the town, is supposed to be the site of a Roman fort, and in the 15th century a mansion house was erected here, with an inclosed park of 800 acres: a farmhouse now occupies the spot, but various interesting remains of the foundations and passages of the ancient mansion have been discovered during recent repairs to the buildings.

Coaxdon House, 2 miles from Axminster, adjoining the Chard road, is noted at the birthplace of Sir Symonds D'Ewes, in 1602; he passed his early days at Coaxdon, and went to a school at Wambrook, afterwards becoming celebrated as a Puritan and antiquary, and is known as the author of "A Journal of all the Parliaments in the Reign of Queen Elizabeth," published in 1682; and of the account of his own life and correspondence, in the Harleian Library, published in 1845; he died 18th April, 1650.

The battle of Brunanburgh is believed by some to have been fought in the valley of the Axe, at or near Axminster, in A.D. 937, between King Athelstan and a combination of Danish, Welsh and Scottish invaders under Anlaf, whom Athelstan had previously driven from Northumbria, in revenge for the treatment which Athelstan's sister had received from Sihtric, her husband, who was king of the Danes in Northumbria and father of Anlaf. Some modern writers, however, without any satisfactory or very probable evidence, differ as to the precise spot where this battle was fought, some of them fixing it at Bamborough, in the North of England, others in Cheshire; but the investigations and comparisons of the statements of ancient chroniclers by antiquaries of great research and ability, acquainted with this neighbourhood, seem satisfactorily to prove that the battle occurred here. The invaders, after obtaining a victory in Northumberland, again put to sea, and landed at Seaton. A curious chart in the British Museum, of about the time of Henry VIII. representing the south coast of England, has the following statement at the mouth of the Axe:—"The entrie of Otterford and Seton ryvers, good lonyng, and in the time of King Athelstan there entrid at Seton dyrse strange nations, who were slayne at Axmyster to the number of V. kings VIIJ erles, a busshoppe and IX score thousand in the hole, as a boke old written doth testyfy." Five Danish princes and seven Saxon earls, who were slain in this battle, were buried at Brunanburgh, and the chartulary of Newenham Abbey records that "King Athelstan gave the church of Axminster to seven priests, who should there for ever serve God, for the souls of seven earls and many others put to death in battle with him against foreign invaders, which fight began at Calix Down, in the parish of Colyton, and extended to Colecroft (Colemead to this day), below Axminster." He also endowed the church with the manor of Prestaller, in the parish of Axminster.

William Buckland D.D., F.R.S. the distinguished geologist, was born at Axminster 12th March, 1784; the Rev. John Prince B.A. (Oxon.), and M.A. (Camb.), author of "The Worthies of Devon," and some time minister of St. Martin's, Exeter, was born at Newenham farm house in 1643; Micaiah Toogood, a Nonconformist of repute, was born at Axminster in 1700.

In consequence of a suit in Chancery begun in 1842 between the late William Knight esq. and his representatives, and the representatives of the late James Alexander Frampton esq. regarding the equitable title of the former to a moiety of the manors and estates in the parish of Axminster, no manor courts had been held for many years; but in 1872 the proceedings in Chancery were wound up, and the late Henry Knight esq. of Cloakham House, became the owner of the property and his trustees are now lords of the manor.

The trustees of the late Henry Knight esq. W. H. B. Knight esq. Mrs. Spottiswoode, of Chatten Hall, and Edward Liddon M.D. of Taunton, are the chief land-owners.

The soil is light and stony; subsoil, limestone and gravel. The crops are chiefly pasture, wheat and roots.

The area of Axminster is 6,311 acres of land and 34 of water; rateable value, £18,172; the population in 1891 was 2,809, including 6 officers and 120 inmates in the workhouse.

Parish Clerk, James Morgan.

AXMOUTH is a parish and village near the mouth of the river Axe, 1 mile north-by-east from Seaton station on the Seaton branch of the London and South Western railway, 10 south-east from Honiton and 6 south-west from Axminster, in the Eastern division of the county, Axminster hundred and petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Dunkeswell and Honiton, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. A concrete bridge of three arches, erected by the late Sir Walter C. Trevelyan bart. crosses the Axe, and connects this parish with Seaton. The church of St. Michael is an edifice of stone in the Norman, Early English, Early Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, south (or Bindon) aisle with eastern chapel, north porch and an embattled western Perpendicular tower, with a turret at the north-east angle and containing 3 bells: in the church is an ancient monument: the Norman portions are the south aisle and north doorway: the Early Decorated chancel contains the stone effigy of a priest, fully vested, placed within a recess formed by a rather lofty obtuse arch; beneath is a similar arch, canopied and with perforated cusps; the effigy probably represents one of the priors of the Benedictine priory of Lodres, Dorset, to which this church belonged in the 14th century: the church was restored in 1889, under the direction of Mr. John Hayward, architect, of Exeter, at a cost of £1,800, and affords 220 sittings. The register dates from the year 1603. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £200, including 30 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Samuel Sanders Stephens esq. and held since 1896 by the Rev. John Fenwick Starforth L.Th. of Durham University. Here is an unsectarian chapel, erected in 1861. A pleasure fair, formerly held yearly on Shrove Tuesday, is now in abeyance. On Christmas Day, 1839, in consequence of a landslip, 45 acres of arable land were lost to cultivation, two cottages, situated on the lower part of the cliff, were destroyed, and a great chasm formed, more than 300 feet broad, 150 feet deep, and three-quarters of a mile long: two of the coast-guard, standing on Culverhole beach on the night when this occurred, observed the sea to be in an extraordinary state of agitation; the beach on which they stood rose and fell amidst the breakers near the shore, and something dark appeared to be rising from the bottom of the sea, accompanied by the deafening noise of crashing rocks; in 1840 another landslip occurred at Whitlands, but of much smaller extent. A coastguard station, with houses for the chief officer and the men and their families, all enclosed with a stone wall, was erected in 1883 on an elevated site near the sea coast in this parish. Samuel Sanders Stephens esq. of Stedcombe, who is lord of the manor, Wilton Alhusen esq. of Clevelands, in this parish, and Sir Cuthbert Edgar Peek bart. of Bousdon, near Lyme Regis, are the chief landowners. The estuary of the river Axe is included in the manor of Axmouth, together with all fishing rights therein. The soil is flint, with chalk; the subsoil is marl. The area is 4,243 acres of land, 1 of water, 19 of tidal water and 138 of foreshore; rateable value, £3,768; the population in 1891 was 615.

AYLESBEARE is a village and parish, 4 miles south from Whimble station and 4 south-east from Broadclyst station, both on the main line of the London and South Western railway; 7 east from Exeter, 9 south-west from Honiton and about 7 north-west from Sidmouth, in the Eastern division of the county, East Budleigh hundred, Ottery petty sessional division, union of St. Thomas, Exeter county court district, rural deanery of Aylesbeare, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of the Blessed Virgin Mary is an ancient fabric of stone in the Pointed style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower, with turret, containing 3 bells; there are monuments of the Marker, Stokes and Walker families, and a fine old carved font: the church was restored in 1899 at a cost of nearly £1,000, when a small organ was provided and an oak screen erected: there are 150 sittings. A lych-gate was erected in 1872. The register dates from the year 1530. The living is a discharged vicarage, net yearly income £157, with residence and 9 acres of glebe, in the gift of F. Burrow esq. and held since 1893 by the Rev. Ernest Bartholomew Bruton M.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge. The Hon. Mark George Kerr Rolle is lord of the manor and principal landowner; Mrs. Elliott, of Westcott House, Rockbeare, Mrs. Johnson, of Chelsea, and Messrs. A. T. and T. E. Loram are also landowners. The soil is clay and marl on western portion of parish, light and gravel on east; subsoil, marl. A large proportion of land on the west side of the township is pasture; to the east, light arable. The area is 2,899 acres; rateable value, £2,481; the population in 1901 was 235.

Nutwalls is a hamlet, half-a-mile south.

By a Local Government Board Order (16,545) which came into operation March 25, 1884, a detached part of Woodbury, known as Great and Little Houndbeare, was amalgamated with this parish.

BABBACOMBE, see Torquay.

BAMPTON is an ancient market town and large parish, on the river Bathern, near its junction with the Exe, about 350 feet above the sea level, and has a station on the Exe Valley line of the Great Western railway from Exeter to Dulverton, 7 miles north from Tiverton, in the North Eastern division of the county, Bampton hundred, Callompton petty sessional division, Tiverton union and county court district, rural deanery of West Tiverton and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter.

The town was formerly governed by two portreeves, two constables and other officers, all chosen by the inhabitants: the "Local Government Act. 1858" (21 and 22 Vict. c. 98) was adopted here 8 Oct. 1867, but under the provisions of the Act of 1894 (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73), the town is now governed by an Urban District Council of nine members, formed Dec. 1894, and the district now comprises the whole of the parish. The church of St. Michael is a building of stone in the Decorated and Early Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave of five bays, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower, containing a clock with musical chimes and 6 bells: a finely-carved oak screen, groined on both sides and adorned with the cognizances of the Bouchiers, separates the nave from the chancel, and the roof is of panelled oak with carved bosses similarly ornamented; built into the north wall of the chancel are the sides and ends of two altar-tombs, with elaborately traceried panels, inclosing shields, and having a cornice of quatrefoils, bearing the Bouchier knot and the water-bouquet; these tombs originally covered the remains of Fulk Bouchier, 2nd Baron Fitzwarine, ob. 1479, and John Bouchier, his son, created (July 9, 1536) Earl of Bath, ob. April 30, 1539: the once beautiful window tracery has been much mutilated, but one of the windows retains the ancient stained glass inserted by John Bouchier, 2nd Earl of Bath, in 1540: there are 330 sittings: in the churchyard are several fine yew trees. The register dates from the year 1653, but is very imperfect. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £150, including 40 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of and held since 1892 by the Rev. Henry Forrester Holmes, of Jesus College, Oxford; the impropriate tithes amount to £720; Captain Nugent Chichester, of Calverleigh Court, is lay rector. The Baptist chapel, in Luke street, erected in 1600 and rebuilt in 1860, affords 350 sittings and has a register of baptisms from 1690; the Bible Christians' chapel was erected in 1862. In Castle street are Public Rooms for entertainments and lectures, seating 250 persons: manager and proprietor, John Trowey Periam. Cattle sales are held here on the last Wednesdays in February, March, April, May, July, August and November. There is also a fair for cattle, sheep and horses, the charter for which was granted A.D. 1258, and which originally fell on the festival of St. Luke, but is now held on the last Thursday in October; it is celebrated for its large sale of cattle, sheep and Exmoor ponies, and is attended largely by graziers, butchers and dealers from all parts of the South and West of England. Penton's charity, of £2,800 invested in Consols, was left in 1821 for the education of 100 children. Webber's charity, founded in 1830, produces £56 yearly, and is for pensions to 18 poor women and 5 poor men; other charities, producing £36, are distributed in bread and money. There are excellent quarries of building and lime stone in the district. Near the town are remains of earthworks, and portions of the fabric of an ancient castle, and in one of the principal streets is a chalybeate and saline spring. The neighbourhood abounds with fine salmon and trout streams, information concerning which may be obtained at Mr. Henry C. Saunders', White Horse hotel. John de Bampton D.D. a celebrated scholar, was born here, about A.D. 1340. Combe-head, one mile west of the town, is the seat of William Henry White esq., and has large pleasure grounds finely timbered. Wonham House, 2 miles west, on a wooded eminence, overlooking the Exe valley, is the residence of John Robert Holland esq. J.P. William Henry White esq. is lord of the manor, and a court leet is held annually at the White Horse hotel. W. H. White esq. the Hon. Mark G. K. Rolle, Hugh Leonard Acland Troyte esq. of Huntsham Court, John Robert Holland esq. J.P. Richard Bere esq. of Milverton, Somerset, William C. Rowcliffe esq. of Halsway Manor, Somerset, Herbert Trude esq. Edwin Harris Dunning esq. of Stoodleigh Court and T. C. Daniell esq. are landowners. The fairs and markets are let on lease and many houses and adjacent lands pay head rents. The soil is gravelly; the subsoil is rock and clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 7,760 acres of land and panels, inclosing shields, and having a cornice of 39 of water; rateable value, £8,497; the population in 1901 was 1,657.

Shillingford is a hamlet of this parish, 2 miles north-east from Bampton. Here are the ruins of a chapel. A Baptist chapel was erected in 1888, and has 100 sittings.

Petton, 4 miles east from the town, is a very ancient chapelry in this parish. The chapel, rebuilt in 1848, is a plain building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of apsidal chancel, nave and a western bell gable, containing two bells. The living is a perpetual curacy, net yearly value £50, in the gift of the vicar of Bampton, and held since 1867 by the Rev. William Harpley M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge, and rector of Clayhanger. Here is also a small Bible Christians' mission room.

BARNSTAPLE.

BARNSTAPLE is a sub-port in North Devon of the Bristol district, and a municipal borough, head of a union, county court district and parish, in the North Western division of the county. Braunton hundred and petty sessional division, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Barnstaple, and diocese of Exeter, 21 miles from London by London and South Western railway via Exeter, and 20½ miles by Great Western railway via Taunton, 39 miles from Exeter, 75 by rail from Plymouth, 11 by road and 14 by rail from Ilfracombe, 9 from Bideford and 14 from Torrington, 44½ from Taunton, and 10½ from South Molton by Great Western railway. There is a terminal station here of the Devon and Somerset branch of the Great Western system from Taunton, and a station on the branch of the South Western line from Yeoford Junction to Ilfracombe and Torrington: the railway stations are just without the town, the Great Western on the east and the London and South Western on the south: there is also a station for the latter on the quay called the "Town" station. A narrow gauge railway, 19½ miles in length, was opened for May 11th, 1898, between Barnstaple and Lynton. The town is pleasantly situated in a valley on the north bank of the river Taw, and is well built, with wide and cleanly street, lighted with gas by a private company from works in the Barbican, and is supplied with water from a stream rising above Chelfham bridge, in Shirwell parish; there are two reservoirs, one at Raleigh Park, in the parish of Pilton, the other at Pickards Down, Barnstaple.

Barnstaple bridge, generally supposed to have been erected about the 12th or 13th century, is a fine structure of 16 arches, and was widened in 1834: the maintenance and repair are provided for by many bequests made in trust for that purpose: the bridge estates are managed by a body of trustees, and produce an annual income of £700.

Barnstaple is a Customs port, the limits being defined under 9 and 10 Vict. c. 102; the eastern boundary is a small stream running into the Bristol Channel at a place called "Glenhorne," which divides the counties of Devon and Somerset, and is near the headland called the "Foreland" (being the western limits of the port of Bridgwater), and the limits of the port extend thence in a westerly direction along the coast of the county to the point of land called "Morte Point," and thence in a direct line across Barnstaple and Bideford Bay to "Hartland Point," and in a southerly and south-westerly direction along the coasts of Devon and Cornwall to Dazard Point, in the parish of St. Genny's, in Cornwall (being the northern limit of the port of Padstow); seaward from low-water mark the aforesaid limits extend from a line drawn from Morte Point to Hartland Point and include both sides of the river Taw, and all other rivers, bays, harbours, creeks and pills within the aforesaid limits; Lundy island, in the Bristol Channel, and the sea surrounding to a distance of three miles from low-water mark form part of the said port of Barnstaple. The trade of the port is very small, the only import being timber from Norway, Sweden, Canada and U.S. America. The total imports for the year 1900 was £20,000. There is also a coasting trade in coal from South Wales and a little general merchandise from Ireland: the number of vessels cleared at Barnstaple in 1900 was 959, and the tonnage 54,932.

According to the official returns of the Navigation and Shipping of the United Kingdom for 1900, the number of sailing and steam vessels in the general coasting trade that entered the port of Barnstaple, including their repeated voyages, was 2,804 of 176,815 tons, the number cleared being 2,904 of 185,168 tonnage. In the trade between Great Britain and Ireland, 57 vessels only entered of 3,441 tonnage.

In the trade with British possessions and foreign countries, 12 vessels entered of 4,172 tons. The number of vessels registered under Part I. of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, as belonging to the port, 31 December, 1900, was 43 of 1,910 tonnage. Under Part IV. of the same Act, 21 fishing boats of 269 tons were registered as belonging to the port at the same date. These employed 49 men and boys.

As a borough it is of very early date, being so styled in Domesday, when there were 40 burgesses within the borough and 9 without; it appears to have received its first charter from King Athelstan, and others from Henry I., John, Henry VI., Mary and James I. by whose charter it continued to be governed until the passing of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1835 (5 and 6 William IV. c. 76): the body corporate is now styled the "Mayor, Aldermen and Burgesses of the Borough and Parish of Barnstaple," and consists of a mayor, six aldermen and eighteen councillors: the town is divided for municipal purposes into two wards, North and South. The municipal borough includes Newport (formerly part of the parish of Bishop's Tawton), a part of the parish of Pilton and Rolle's Quay, which was added by the Boundaries Act (31 & 32 Vic. cap. 46). The borough has a commission of the peace and separate court of quarter sessions. Barnstaple returned two members to Parliament from the 23rd year of King Edward I. (1294-5) until the passing of the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885," when the representation of the borough was merged into that of the county.

The parish church of SS. Peter and Paul, standing nearly in the centre of the town, is an ancient edifice of stone, in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel with aisles, nave, aisles, and a tower on the south side containing a clock and 8 bells, 3 of which are outside the tower: the stained east window was erected in 1854 and the west window was presented by the parishioners in remembrance of the recovery of the Prince of Wales from fever in December, 1871; there are also others to Mr. Lee R.A. and to R. Bremridge esq. formerly member of Parliament for the borough: amongst the numerous monuments is one erected in memory of his son by the Rev. W. Blake, the ejected incumbent during the Commonwealth: the reredos and other carved work is by Hems, of Exeter: there is a large and fine-toned organ, the gift of Sir George Amyand: attached to the church was a parochial library, founded by John Doddridge esq. and now merged in that of the North Devon Athenæum. The church was restored during the period 1866-82, at a cost of £4,000, under the direction of the late Sir G. Gilbert Scott R.A. and his son, and has sittings for about 900 people. The churchyard was levelled by Order in Council, July 13, 1869. The registers date from the year 1538, and are perfect, excepting during five years of the civil war. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £250, including £20 annually from Stanbury's bequest, in the gift of the Earl of Wharnccliffe, and held since 1889 by the Rev. Thomas Newton M.A., LL.D. of Trinity College, Dublin, and chaplain of Barnstaple Union.

Holy Trinity is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1846. The original church of the Holy Trinity, at the south end of the town, begun in 1843 and completed in 1847, was originally an edifice of stone in the Perpendicular style, from the designs of Mr. Mackintosh, architect: owing to a subsidence of the foundations, the chancel arch gave way, and the whole edifice being taken down, was re-erected on a somewhat different plan, after designs by Mr. W. White, of London, in 1867: the church now consists of apsidal chancel with south aisle, clerestoried nave of four bays, with narrow aisles, vestry and organ chamber, and an embattled tower on the south side 125 feet high with pinnacles and carved work by Hems, and containing 2 bells: five of the windows are stained, and there are 450 sittings. The register dates from the year 1847. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £48, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1901 by the Rev. Charles William Herbert Kenrick M.A. of Brasenose College, Oxford.

St. Mary Magdalene is an ecclesiastical parish, formed Sept. 14, 1844; the church, which is at the upper end of Bear street, is a building of stone erected in 1846, in the Early English style, from designs by Mr. B. Ferrey, architect, and consists of chancel, a nave with aisles and a tower on the south side, with spire 115 feet high, containing one bell: the chancel windows are stained; in 1896 the church was re-decorated and the seats altered at a cost of £150: there are 800 sittings. The register dates from the year 1846. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £164, without residence, in the alternate gift of the Crown and the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1897 by the Rev. Edward John Windsor, of St. Bees.

Newport, now a suburb of and included in the town of Barnstaple March 25th, 1885, is also within the municipal borough; it was, in the reign of Henry VI. a borough of itself with a Mayor and Corporation, but this distinction has long been extinct; it now constitutes an ecclesiastical parish, formed July 2, 1847, from the civil parish of Bishop's Tawton.

The church of St. John the Baptist is an edifice of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, north porch and a turret at the north-east angle, containing one bell: the church was restored and enlarged in 1883 at a cost of £2,000, under the direction of Mr. George L. Abbott, architect, when a new open timbered roof was introduced, and in 1887 it was re-seated by the Abbott family: there are 400 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1828, and of marriages from 1848. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £250, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1895 by the Rev. William Richards, of St. Aidan's.

The Catholic Church, in Church street, dedicated to the Immaculate Conception, was erected in 1855, and is a building in the Norman style, consisting of chancel and nave: it will seat 300 persons, and has a priest's residence attached.

The Reformed Episcopal Church, in Summerland street, erected in 1880, at a cost of £1,200, under the direction of Mr. W. C. Oliver, architect, of Barnstaple, is a building of white brick with Bath stone dressings, in the Early Pointed style, and consists of chancel, nave and south porch, and will seat 400 persons.

The Wesleyan chapel, in Boutport street, founded in 1811, is a building of freestone and granite, in the Early Decorated style, rebuilt and enlarged in 1868, at a cost of about £1,800, and will seat 800 persons. A lecture hall to seat 500 persons, together with Sunday schools and class-rooms, were added in 1885, at a cost of about £2,000. There is also a Wesleyan school chapel in Newport road, with sittings for 200 persons.

The Congregational chapel, in Cross street, originally founded in 1705, was rebuilt in 1870 on an enlarged scale in a Continental Gothic style, from designs by Messrs. R. D. Gould and Son, Barnstaple, at a cost of £2,600: it will seat 600 persons, and has registers of baptisms from 1701.

There is also a Baptist chapel in Boutport street, built in 1833, seating 800 persons, with Sunday school and residence adjoining, erected about 1870.

The Brethren have a place of worship in Grosvenor street, erected in 1840, and seating 400 persons.

The Bible Christian (or Thorne memorial) chapel, in Bear street, was erected in 1876, in the Early English style, from plans by Mr. W. C. Oliver, at a cost of £2,400: a further enlargement was made in 1891, at a cost of £2,027, and there are now sittings for 850 persons.

The Cemetery, in Bear street, is five acres in extent and contains two mortuary chapels, and is under the control of a burial board of 9 members.

The Guildhall, in High street, erected in 1826, is a well-built structure, containing a hall 49 feet by 28, a spacious council chamber, jury rooms and a police station and superintendent's office beneath: the hall contains 30 fine portraits of members of the Corporation and other worthies of the town in 1738, painted by Thomas Hudson (1701-79), the draperies being finished by Sir Joshua Reynolds, who was then Hudson's pupil. The municipal insignia include two maces, a silver oar and a mayor's chain and badge. The maces, which form a pair, are of silver gilt and 30 inches in length; the heads are adorned with winged female figures, foliated, and the national devices, crowned, and placed between the letters "C.R." and are finished with a cresting of crosses and fleurs-de-lis; the flat top of each head displays the royal arms and the foot knob of the shaft those of the borough: the silver oar, 18 inches long, was presented by John Moule esq. mayor, 1780, and also bears the town arms: the mayor's chain consists of plain links connected by small links; the badge exhibits the borough arms, "gules a triple-towered castle, argent." The corporate and mayoral seals are of great interest; the earliest, known to have been applied to a deed of 1272, is of silver and bears the device of a swan and the legend, "Sigillum: Commune: Burgi: Barnastaplie;" the second, also of silver, exhibits a tower with portal between two turrets and a legend; the third, now in use, has a triple-towered castle, with legend, and dates from 1836; there are also two mayor's seals, one dating from c. 1320 and the other from 1836, and a signet, a bridge-trust seal, late 14th century, and two court seals of the Stuart period. The other Corporation plate comprises three hanaps of silver gilt, respectively dated 1589, 1606 and 1620, two tankards, given by Thomas Horwood in 1676, and a punch bowl or monteith of silver and ladle given by Thomas Benson in 1745.

The quarter sessions and petty sessions for the borough are held in the Guildhall.

Barnstaple is the district registry for the High Court of Justice, and Bankruptcy and Admiralty district for the County Court districts of Barnstaple, South Molton, Bideford, Torrington and Holsworthy.

The Albert Clock tower, standing in the irregular open space at the entrance of the town from the bridge, called the Square, was erected by public subscription in memory of H.R.H. the Prince Consort (d. Dec. 14, 1861), and contains a clock with 4 illuminated dials: at the base is a drinking fountain in coloured marbles, with an inscription in encaustic letters. The Square was inclosed by a handsome ornamental iron railing in 1879, at the expense of C. S. Willshe esq. then mayor, and has been tastefully laid out with walks, and a fountain constructed in the centre.

The Theatre, in The Strand, has been newly decorated, and will hold about 800 persons.

The North Devon Athenaeum, established in place of the Literary Institute, founded in 1845, now occupies premises at the Bridge end, purchased and presented by W. F. Rock esq. in 1888, and to be held in trust for ever. The institution has a library of 22,000 volumes, amongst which is a copy of the Bible in 140 languages: it is managed by a board of directors of 11 members, of which Earl Fortescue is president and C. E. Roberts Chanter esq. chairman.

The Assembly Rooms, in Boutport street, are well suited for balls and concerts, and will hold 300 persons.

Barnstaple is the head quarters of the Royal North Devon Imperial Yeomanry (Hussars), and of the 4th Volunteer Battalion of the Devonshire Regiment.

Of the industries here, Messrs. Shapland and Petter Limited employ about 400 persons in their cabinet factories and steam saw mills, which adjoin the bridge and are connected by a private siding with the London and South Western railway. There is a large Nottingham lace mill in which Messrs. Miller Brothers Limited employ 200 hands, and there are also extensive tanneries, flour mills and potteries.

The New Market, in High street, comprises a lofty and well-ventilated arcaded hall, about 320 feet long and 70 feet wide, for vegetables and general produce, with an open ornamented roof in one span, and attached to the main building are corn and seed markets, with a music hall above capable of containing 1,000 persons: adjoining the main market are 33 butchers' shops, with a covered walk in front, an avenue separating them from the vegetable market. The market is held on Tuesdays and Fridays for vegetables, and on Fridays only for corn and cattle.

A Fish Market was erected on the quay about 1873.

There are four banks, viz. the National Provincial Bank of England Limited, in High street; the Devon and Cornwall Banking Co. Limited, in the Square; Fox Fowler and Co. in Cross street; Wilts and Dorset Banking Co. Limited, in High street, and a branch of the Devon and Exeter Savings Bank, in Boutport street.

The cattle market is held on Friday. There are also monthly and great markets.

The annual fair commences on the first Wednesday preceding the 20th of September, and continues during three days. The cattle fair is held in the cattle market; the horse fair on the Quay, and the pleasure fair on the North Walk.

The early closing day here is Wednesday, at 2 p.m.

Two papers are published here, viz. the "North Devon Herald" and the "North Devon Journal."

The Custom House is on the quay.

An extensive pile of buildings has been erected at the foot of the bridge by the Bridge trustees for professional chambers, offices and other purposes, including a large Bridge hall for public meetings and for the purposes of the County Court.

The Masonic Hall, decorated and arranged internally in a most complete manner, is approached through Queen Anne's walk.

The North Devon Infirmary, a large and imposing building, surrounded by well laid-out grounds and situated near the Taw Vale parade, overlooking the river, was founded in 1825, and has been several times enlarged and remodelled from the designs of Mr. R. D. Gould, architeet; a wing was added in 1862, and another in 1883, from a gift by the late Miss Basset, of Watermouth: large new reception rooms for out-patients have also been built near the lodge gates at the cost of the late Dr. R. Budd, and a children's ward containing 12 cots was opened in 1896 at a cost of about £200. The infirmary is available for 85 patients, the annual expenditure being about £2,300; it is maintained entirely by voluntary contributions. The number of in-patients treated in 1900 was 654, and of out-patients 2,669.

The Barnstaple and North Devon Dispensary, Boutport street, was established in 1832.

Penrose's Almshouses, in Lichdon street, founded in 1624 by John Penrose, a merchant of this town, consist of twenty dwellings for two inmates in each with a small garden plot attached to each dwelling: in connection with these almshouses are Mackrell's gift of £1,955 19s. 9d. Consols; Fletcher's of £263 17s.; Beaple's of £256 14s. 9d. Consols and rent of farm and house; Thomas Shephard Law's gift in 1896 of £500 Consols for coals; Herbert Sharland's in 1897 of £900; besides other smaller gifts. Paige's Almshouse, in Church lane, has four dwellings for eight aged and infirm people. Horwood's Almshouses, in Church lane, founded in 1674, comprise eight dwellings for sixteen persons, with small garden plot to each dwelling. Salem Almshouses, in Trinity street, built in 1834 by Charles Roberts esq. consist of twelve dwellings for twenty-four poor men and women. The incomes of these almshouses are also supplemented by various gifts. The other charities are Richard Beaple's gift, in 1642, of a rent-charge of £16 18s.; Robert Appley's gift, in 1594, of house property, now producing £32 yearly; Ephraim Skinner's gift, in 1719, of land yielding £44 5s. yearly; Richard Cornish's gift, in 1709, of land realising £14 12s. yearly; Adam Lugg's gift, in 1622, of land now worth £23 yearly; and other small sums of £7 2s. yearly, which are distributed in bread, coal, money &c.

Alice Horwood, in 1659, "of her own accord founded and endowed a free school for twenty poor girls for ever;" the income, derived from land, Consols &c. is about £63 yearly; there is now no school building, but £50 is paid annually to St. Peter's National school for the instruction given to thirty girls.

Here was once a Cluniac priory, founded in the 11th century by Joel Fitz Alured, and dedicated to SS. Peter, Paul and Mary Magdalen; the revenues were estimated at £123; there are now no remains.

Castle House, in the North Walk, the residence of William Philip Hiern esq. M.A., F.L.S., J.P. is supposed to stand upon the site of the ancient castle, a portion of the old walls forming part of the present edifice; in the grounds is a large mound covered with trees, commonly called "The Tower," which is supposed to have been the site of the keep.

The Corporation are lords of the manor of Barnstaple.

The area of the parish is 1,383 acres of land, 7 of water, 15 of tidal water and 7 of foreshore; rateable value, £39,775; the population of the entire parish, which includes Newport, in 1891 was 11,441 (including 173 in the workhouse and 46 in the infirmary), and the population of Pilton was 1,617.

The population of the borough in 1891 was:

North ward	6,369
South ward	6,689
	<hr/> 13,058

The population of the borough in 1901 was 14,137.

The population of the ecclesiastical parishes in 1891 was:—SS. Peter and Paul (parish church), 3,200; Holy Trinity, 2,361; St. Mary Magdalene, 4,406.

nomen amatum;" both in old English lettering; the tenor, dated 1720, weighs 6 cwt. and 3 qrs.: the font is ancient, and there is some good carving in the roof: the church was restored and re-seated and the windows re-glazed in 1878-9, under the direction of Messrs. Price and Wooller, architects, of Weston-super-Mare, a new stone pulpit, a chancel screen, by Hems of Exeter, lectern and reading desk being also erected at a cost of about £1,300: the Upcott aisle was restored at the expense of T. W. Snell esq.; the altar cloth and chancel fittings were given by the late Ven. C. W. Furse M.A. archdeacon and canon of Westminster (d. 1900): there is a monument to John Sing, of Clement's Inn, London, 1667, and Thomas Sing, of Warham, 1692; and a tablet to

Margaret, wife of Hugh Mill, a former rector of this church, 1686: over the south porch is an ancient sundial: there are 250 sittings: the old stocks still remain in the churchyard. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £230, with 75 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of and held since 1898 by the Rev. Gilbert Beresford B.A. of Caius College, Cambridge. There is a Baptist chapel, with Sunday school attached, and a Bible Christian chapel. An endowment of Cooksworthy, value £12 10s. yearly, left by the Lady Havisia de Redvers to a clerk here for ever, has since been enjoyed by the parish clerks of this place. John Henry Monsell Furse esq. of Halsdon House, Dolton, and Sir Charles Thomas Dyke Acland bart. of Killerton, are landowners. The rest of the land is held by various small owners; the land is all freehold. The soil is loamy; the subsoil is schistuous rock, with occasional upper stratum of clay. The crops are chiefly wheat and barley, with a little oats. The area is 3,259 acres of land and 36 of water; rateable value, £2,462; the population in 1901 was 427.

Woolleigh Barton is a manor, 2 miles from the village, in the extreme north part of the parish, belonging to Sir C. T. Dyke Acland bart. and containing between 400 and 500 acres: there are some remains here of an ancient chapel in the Early English style: the property, now in

BEAWORTHY is a small village and parish, with a station, called Halwill and Beaworthy (or Halwill Junction), $\frac{1}{2}$ miles west of the village, on the Holsworthy branch of the London and South Western railway, and 8 south-west from Hatherleigh, in the Western division of the county, petty sessional division of Hatherleigh, union and county court district of Okehampton, Black Torrington east hundred, rural deanery of Okehampton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Alban, restored in 1871, at a cost of £500, is an edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a western tower containing 3 bells: there are 100 sittings. The register dates from the year 1759. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £103, with 64 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of and held since 1872 by the Rev. Frederick Augustus Willis M.A., LL.D. of Dublin and ad eundem M.A. and D.C.L. Oxford. There is a Bible Christian chapel at Madworthy, near the village, rebuilt in 1884, with sittings for 60 persons. The trustees of the late Ven. Archdeacon Henry Woolcombe (d. 1885) and Mrs. George Woolcombe are the principal landowners. The

BEER is a large fishing hamlet, and was formerly a tithing in Seaton civil parish, but under the provisions of sec. 36 of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73), it was in November, 1894, formed into a civil parish. It is beautifully seated in a deep narrow glen on a small creek communicating with the sea, and is about $\frac{1}{2}$ miles south-west from Seaton station on the London and South Western railway, $\frac{5}{8}$ south-west from Axminster, and 8 south from Honiton, in the Eastern division of the county, Colyton hundred, Axminster petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Dunkeswell and Honiton, and archdeaconry the occupation of Mr. William Leverton, is pleasingly diversified with river and woodland scenery.

Upcott Barton, a farm in the east of the parish, the property and now (1901) in the occupation of Mr. Thomas Webber Snell, has remained in the possession of the Snell family for 130 years; there was anciently an attached chapel, of which however there are now no traces.

Woodhouse, together with Great and Little Warham, form a farm on the west side of the parish, belonging to John Henry M. Furse esq. The owner of the manor at one time resided in Woodhouse, though there never was any manorial house belonging to it: this property, at some points overlooking the river Torridge, affords numerous fine prospects.

and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Michael was erected in 1877-78 by the Hon. Mark G. Kerr Rolle, at a cost of about £8,000, to serve as a chapel of ease to the mother church at Seaton, and is a building of freestone obtained from the neighbouring quarries, in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, transepts, aisles, western narthex porch and a tower with short spire, containing a clock and one bell; in the chapel is a memorial to the Starr family: the stained east window was presented by the Hon. M. G. K. Rolle, and there is another erected by the members of a guild: the organ was built in 1885 at a cost of £500. The Rev.

Henry Gibbon M.A. of Durham University has been curate in charge since 1897. Here is a Congregational chapel, erected in 1700, and rebuilt and enlarged in 1880, and one for the Brethren. The Cemetery, opened in 1866, consists of about a quarter of an acre, given by the Hon. M. G. Kerr Rolle: it contains a small mortuary chapel of stone with a bell-cote. Beer is celebrated for the manufacture of Honiton lace, and here Queen Victoria's wedding dress was made in 1839: there are large quarries of freestone which employ about twelve hands. The Hon. Mark G. Kerr Rolle is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The area is 1,583 acres; rateable value, £3,402; the population in 1897 was 1,046.

BEER FERRIS, or Bere Ferrers, commonly called "Beer town," is a parish and village, between the river Tamar on the west and the Tavy on the east, 9 miles south from Tavistock and 8 north-by-west from Plymouth; this parish includes Beer Alston, formerly a parliamentary borough, but disfranchised by the Reform Act of 1832, 2 miles north from the village of Beer Ferris; Beer Ferris is in the Western division of the county, Boborough hundred, Tavistock petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Tavistock, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. There is a station here, and also one at Beer Alston, on the Plymouth, Devonport and South Western Junction railway. The church of St. Andrew, chiefly erected in 1243 by Sir William Ferrers, is a capacious building of unwrought stone in the Middle Pointed style, but with successive additions of a Perpendicular and Debased character, and consists of chancel and nave, both with south aisle, transepts, south porch with parvise, and an embattled western tower, with four pinnacles and containing 6 bells, all cast by I., O. and W. Pennington, in 1775, and hung in three tiers: there are some remains of oak screen work: in the chancel is an altar-tomb with the cross-legged effigy of a knight in chain mail, wearing a long surcoat, and bearing a shield, and alongside the effigy of a lady in flowing robes; these figures are assumed to represent Sir William de Ferris or Ferrers and his wife, the founders or rebuilders of the church; above the tomb rises a lofty triangular headed canopy, richly crocketed and inclosing a feathered arch; on either side are tall foliated pinnacles: in the north transept is a low arch, with very good mouldings, and the effigy of a knight, finely executed: here also is a large high tomb of Purbeck marble, of the late Transitional period; the panelled sides bear shields within wreaths, and the upper slab exhibits the matrix of a marginal inscription; this tomb is conjectured to be that of Robert, and Baron Willoughby de Broke, ob. 1522: the east window is enriched with ancient stained glass, replaced in 1871, and comprising kneeling figures of Sir William Ferrers and Isota his wife; the knight holds a church in his hands, and over his head is the inscription "Wills Fereys me Fecit"; below are the shields of Ferrers and Carminow: on May 28th, 1821, Charles A. Stoithard F.S.A. while copying these figures, fell from a ladder and was killed; his remains were interred in the churchyard immediately below the window: the font is very ancient, and the bench ends and ceilings bear the shield of Ferrers, with a curious augmentation of five rudders in bend sinister: there are 281 sittings: the entrance to the churchyard is through an old lych gate; in the churchyard is an ancient slab, formerly in the north transept, with an inscription to Roger Champenowne, c. 1449-52. The register dates from the year 1539. The living is a rectory, net yearly income £550, including 148 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Earl of Mount-Edgumbe P.C., D.C.L. and held since 1875 by the Rev. Frederick Thomas William Wintle M.A. of Magdalen College, Oxford, and domestic chaplain to the Earl of Mount-Edgumbe. The chapel of ease of the Holy Trinity at Beer Alston, erected in 1848, is a building of stone, consisting of chancel, with vestry, nave, transepts, west porch, and a turret containing one bell. There is a Bible Christian chapel at Beer Ferris, erected in 1868; at Beer Alston a Bible Christian chapel, dating from 1850; a Wesleyan chapel; a Free Methodist chapel, built in 1876, and a Congregational chapel, built in 1871. The North Tamar, the Tamar Valley and the South Ward Silver Lead mines are in this parish, but are not now worked. The Earl of Mount-Edgumbe P.C. is lord of the manor and chief landowner. The soil is loamy; subsoil, clay and slate. Large quantities of fruit are produced here, especially black cherries, known locally as mazards and strawberries. The chief crops beside fruit are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 6,176 acres of land, 12 of water, 309 of tidal water, and 935 of foreshore; rateable value, £9,561; the population in 1891 was 1,911.

BELSTONE is a parish and village, near the old road from Exeter to Cornwall, on the verge of Dartmoor Forest, near the river Taw, 2½ miles south-east from Okehampton station on the main line of the London and South Western railway, 10 south-east from Hatherleigh and 21 west from Exeter, in the Western division of the county, Black Torrington hundred, petty sessional division of Hatherleigh, Okehampton union and county court district, rural deanery of Okehampton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of the Annunciation is an ancient building of granite, in the Norman and Early English styles, consisting of chancel, nave of five bays, south aisle, north porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing 5 bells, all cast in 1761: four stained windows were placed in the church in 1900 by Ralph Burch esq. in memory of the late Mrs. Arthur Burch; an ancient stone, bearing a circle and cross, found in 1861 under some steps leading to the former vestry, is now placed in the south wall of the rectory garden: the church was partly restored in 1855 and completed in 1884 at a cost of £700, raised by subscriptions: the communion plate includes a chalice and paten dated 1713: there are 85 sittings. The register dates from the year 1553, but is decayed and very irregular; some portion of the registers was destroyed by fire about 1810. The living is a rectory, yearly value £134, including 75 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of and held since 1886 by the Rev. Matthew Benjamin George Reed Lucas M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge, who resides at Barton House. The Wesleyan chapel, erected in 1890, will seat about 120 persons: the old chapel is now used as a Parish Room. Skaigh, the property and residence of Thomas Henry Ormston Pease esq. is pleasantly situated on an eminence commanding picturesque views of the river Taw, as well as of "Cawsand," and other Dartmoor beacons: the grounds, extending about 20 acres, are beautifully laid out, and contain trout ponds and one cut out of the rock and 7 feet deep, for bathing. Simon Peter Brendon Newcombe esq. of Okehampton, is lord of two-thirds of the manor and the rector is lord of the remaining third. T. H. O. Pease esq. S. P. B. Newcombe esq. Messrs. George Glanfield, J. C. Kingdon, of Dunsford, and the rector are the principal landowners. The soil is loam; the subsoil is shale. The land is chiefly in pasture, but oats are grown. The acreage is 1,790; rateable value, £1,274; the population in 1901 was 230.

Parish Clerk, John Kelly.

BERRY NARBOR is a parish and village, on an eminence on the road to Combmartin and overlooking the Cove of that name, about 3½ miles from Ilfracombe station on the Great Western railway, in the North Western division of the county, Branton hundred and petty sessional division, Barnstaple union and county court district, rural deanery of Sherwell, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The roads in this parish are rugged and the farmhouses much scattered. The church of St. Peter is an ancient edifice of stone, in the Norman, Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch and a very fine embattled western tower of Perpendicular date, 95 feet in height, with pinnacles, containing a clock and 6 bells: the chancel and nave are Norman and Early English, and the south aisle Perpendicular: in the church are monuments to the Berry family: the stained east window, erected in 1861, is a memorial to Samuel Thomas Slade Gully and W. A. Slade Gully M.A.: there is also a stained window in the south aisle, erected in 1883 to Miss Basset, of Watermouth Castle: in the vestry is an engraved portrait of Bishop Jewell, presented to the church by the Rev. Aubrey Townsend B.D. in 1861: the church is supposed to have been built in the 16th century; it was repaired in 1862, and further in 1880; in 1887 it was new roofed at the expense of Mrs. Basset: the chancel was restored in 1889, and additional work was carried out in 1890, the total cost from 1880 amounting to £1,085: there are sittings for 300 persons: the lych gate on the south side of the churchyard was erected in 1671. The register dates from the year 1540. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £440, including 125 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1885 by the Rev.

Prestecott is a hamlet, 1 mile north.

The place contributes two members to the United School Board district of Sampford Courtenay & Honeychurch

The children of this parish attend the Board school at Sticklepath

Reginald Churchill. Here is a Congregational chapel. John Jewell D.D. Bishop of Salisbury, 1559-71, was born at Bowden farm, in this parish, May 24th, 1522; in 1562 he published his well-known "Apology for the Church of England," and in 1567 and 1569 a "Defence of the Apology;" he died at Monkton Farley, Wilts, 21st Sept. 1571. The annual "revel" is held the first Sunday after St. Peter's day. Near the church is the old manor-house, originally built in the reign of Edward IV.; part of the front, including the porch, was taken down in 1889, and the porch has been re-erected at Westaway, near Barnstaple; the exterior was formerly ornamented with shields of arms of the Plantagenet, Bonville and other families, and elaborate carved work, all of which has been removed to Westaway, Barnstaple. Watermouth Castle, the seat of Mrs. Basset, lady of the manor and principal landowner, is an embattled mansion of stone, erected about 1825 and delightfully situated on an eminence sheltered by woods and overlooking the Bristol Channel. Immediately below is a picturesque cove, which, at high water, presents the appearance of an inland lake. The soil is light; subsoil, gravel. The chief crops are oats and barley; a great portion of the land is pasture. The area is 4,980 acres of land, 2 of tidal water and 58 of foreshore; assessable value, £3,165; the population in 1901 was 589.

BERRY POMEROY is a parish and village on the east bank of the river Dart, 2 miles east from Totnes station on the South Devon section of the main line of the Great Western railway and 7 south-west from Torquay; in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Haytor, petty sessional division of Stanborough and Coleridge, union and county court district of Totnes, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. Bridgetown, a hamlet 1 mile west, is included in the borough of Totnes and connected with it by a stone bridge of three arches. The church of St. Mary, built by the Pomeroy, is an ancient edifice of stone, chiefly in the Perpendicular style, but with remains of Early English and Decorated work, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 6 bells, four dated respectively 1635, 1829, 1750 and 1607, and the other two (1897) recently added, when the remainder were re-hung: in the north wall of the chancel is an altar tomb under a groined and canopied arch; the sides are panelled in quatrefoils, some of which have shields displaying the emblems of the Crucifixion; at the back of the arch are matrices of 4 kneeling effigies, 4 children and 4 shields, and two other carved shields of Pomeroy and Pomeroy impaling Denzell: this tomb commemorates Sir Richard Pomeroy kt. ob. 1501, and Elizabeth (Denzell), his wife: the east window of this aisle exhibits the arms of Pomeroy, Raleigh and Beaumont, and there is a memorial window to P. Bennitt esq.: in the north aisle is a monument in the Elizabethan style, to Sir Edward Seymour bart. grandson of the Protector Somerset, ob. 11 Ap. 1613, his wife, Elizabeth (Champernowne), and eleven children: in the chancel is a memorial tablet to the Rev. John Prince, author of "The Worthies of Devon" and 42 years vicar of this parish, who died in 1723, and on the floor of the nave is a brass inscription to Henry Dypforde, ob. 14 Oct. 1590, and Elizabeth, his wife: the foliated capitals of the piers on the north side incorporate scrolls bearing the names of 7 persons and their wives who contributed to the rebuilding of this part of the church: the church also retains a fine oak screen, 46 feet in length and groined on both sides; it is of ten bays, with the original paintings and three doorways, but the doors are missing; there are also two parlours, with traces of colour: the south porch is groined and the bosses have the Pomeroy arms: in 1879 the interior was thoroughly restored at a cost of about £3,000 and again in 1900 at a cost of £120 and has 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1600. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £250, with residence and 2 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Duke of Somerset, and held since 1896 by the Rev. Henry Stewart

BICKINGTON is a parish and village on the road from Ashburton to Exeter, 3 miles north-east from Ashburton terminal station of the Ashburton branch of the Great Western railway, and 4 north-west from Newton Abbot, in the Mid division of the county, Newton Abbot union, county court district of Newton Abbot, Teignbridge hundred and petty sessional division, rural deanery of Moreton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church, dedicated (as appears from the will of John Ferris, 10 Oct. 1545) to St. Nicholas, is an ancient building of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower of Perpendicular date, with 4 pinnacles and containing 5 bells: the church was thoroughly restored in 1884 at a cost of £2,114; the organ was also reconstructed at the same time: there are 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1603. The living, until 1861 a chapelry attached to Ashburton, is a vicarage, net yearly value £120, with residence, built in 1885, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and held since 1897 by the Rev. Montague Blamire Williamson M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. Here is a Wesleyan chapel,

About a mile north-east of the parish church, standing on an eminence above a tributary of the Hems and densely surrounded with woods, are the ruins of the ancient castle of the Pomeroy, originally erected, it is said, by Ralph de la Pomeroy, who received this manor at the Conquest; the principal portion of the existing ruins formed part of a splendid mansion begun by the Protector Somerset, who became possessor of the estate on the confiscation of the property of Sir Thomas Pomeroy in 1549; the buildings formed the north and east sides of a quadrangle (the west side never having been completed), and were erected at a cost of £20,000; the rooms were numerous and splendid, and the dining-room, in particular, was adorned with figures in alabaster and a magnificent chimney-piece of marble, elaborately wrought; the principal portion of interest is the gatehouse, which bears the arms of the Pomeroy, and some towers connected with it; but the whole structure is now thickly overgrown with ivy, and lofty trees have arisen within it. Bound's charity of £70 a year is for distribution to the poor. Weston House is the residence of Arthur Williams esq. Berry House of Charles Barran esq. J.P. and Pomeroy Lodge of Mrs. Bennitt. The Duke of Somerset is lord of the manor and the principal landowner, and impropriator of the great tithes, commuted at £400 a year. The soil is various; the chief crops are wheat, barley and roots. The area is 4,287 acres of land, 50 of tidal water and 22 of foreshore; rateable value, £3,718; the population in 1891 was 1,073, but of this number 639 were added to Totnes civil parish in 1894.

Under the provisions of section 36 of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73), Bridgetown, being that part of Berry Pomeroy civil parish included in Totnes municipal borough, has been added to that civil parish.

WICKABOROUGH is a hamlet $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles north-by-east.

BICKLEIGH (near Plymouth) is a parish and village, with a station on the Great Western railway and is 227 miles from London and 5½ north-east from Plymouth, in the Western division of the county, Roborough hundred and petty sessional division, Plympton St. Mary union, East Stonehouse county court district, rural deanery of Plympton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary the Virgin, formerly belonging to Buckland Abbey, is an edifice in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower, with four crenellated pinnacles enriched with crockets and finials, containing a clock and 6 bells, all cast by the Penningtons in 1765, except the 1st, dated 1838, and the 3rd, dated 1844, both by Pannell, of Cullompton: on the south side are the remains of a monument to the Slanning family, including an inscription to Gamaliel Slanning, killed, as the legend records, in a duel by Sir John Fitzee, of Fitzford, in 1599; above is a quartered shield of arms, and the helmet and gantlet of Sir Nicholas Slanning kt. a devoted royalist, recorder of Plumpton, and sometime M.P. for Plumpton and Penrhyn, who was slain at the siege of Bristol, 26th July, 1643: in the church is a memorial to Elizabeth, his daughter, relict of Sir James Modyford, bart. d. 1724: the stained east window contains the royal arms, those of the see impaling the coat of the late Bishop Philpotts, and the shield of Lopes; other parts of the church exhibit the arms of Modyford and Dean, representing the marriage of Mary, daughter of Sir James Modyford bart. to whom there is an inscription in the church; she died 1734: there are several finely-wrought neighbourhood. Here are Baptist and Bible Christian chapels. A Fair is held yearly the first monday after May 14th. The charities are of £10 yearly value. The rector is lord of the manor. The Pincombe trustees and Robert Greenwood Penny esq. are the chief land-owners. Seckington belongs to the trustees of the late Francis Baring Short esq. J.P. (d. 1899), Little Silver to Capt. Francis Alexander Barton: other owners are Henry Mallet Veale esq. of Passaford, and the Hon. Mark G. K. Rolle, of Bicton. The soil is heavy; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are oats and wheat. The area is 4,209 acres of land and 24 of water; rateable value, £3,067; the population in 1901 was 533 in the civil, and 525 in the ecclesiastical parish.

By Local Government Board Order 14,972, Langley Barton was transferred from this parish to Yarncombe, March 24, 1884, for civil purposes.

marble monuments of the Lopes family, including one, with arms, to Charlotte (Yeates), wife of Sir Manasseh Massey Lopes bart. d. 1833: the church was rebuilt in 1838 by Sir Ralph Lopes bart. from the designs of Mr. J. Fowler, architect, of London, carried out under the direction of Mr. J. D. Sedding, architect, of London, and the cost of the alterations in 1882, amounting to £1,000, was defrayed by his son, the Right Hon. Sir Massey Lopes bart. P.C., M.A.: the chancel has been rearranged, a marble pavement and oak stalls added, and the nave provided with oak benches, the ends of which are panelled and carved in accordance with local types. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1694; marriages, 1695. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £168, with residence and 32 acres of glebe land, in the gift of the Right Hon. Sir Massey Lopes bart. P.C. and held since 1895 by the Rev. Richard Turner M.A. of New College, Oxford. Elizabeth (Slanning), wife of Sir James Modyford bart. by will dated 17th March, 1718, gave to the vicar, churchwardens and overseers a sum of £50, the interest to be distributed in bread every Sunday to poor persons not in receipt of parochial relief. John Herring, in 1778, gave £10 for a similar purpose, and these two benefactions are now consolidated and bestowed as directed by the donors. There are almshouses, erected in 1873 and endowed by the Right Hon. Sir Massey Lopes bart. in memory of Bertha, his wife, only daughter of John, 1st Baron Churston, who died 13th Jan. 1872. On the village green stands an ancient cross, which has been restored. The manor was held from the 16th century by the Slannings, the co-heirs of which family sold the property in 1798 to Manasseh Lopes esq. M.P. The Right Hon. Sir Massey Lopes bart. P.C. is lord of the manor and landowner. The soil is sand; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and green crops. The area is 2,359 acres of land and 11 of water; rateable value, £3,963; the population in 1901 was 296.

Roborough, $\frac{1}{2}$ miles west, is in this parish.

BICKLEIGH (near Tiverton) is a parish and small village, on the river Exe, and on the road from Tiverton to Exeter, with a station, called Cadeleigh and Bickleigh, $\frac{1}{2}$ mile from the village (opened in 1885), on the Exe Valley branch of the Great Western railway, and is 4 miles south from Tiverton and 10 north from Exeter, in the Tiverton division of the county, Hayridge hundred, Oulmpton petty sessional division, Tiverton union and county court district, rural deanery of East Tiverton and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary is a building of stone in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower, containing a clock and 5 bells: there are several ancient and handsome monuments to the Carew family, including an altar-tomb on the north side of the chancel, the upper slab of which bears the arms of Carew impaling St. Clere, and an inscription to John Carew, of Bickleigh esq. ob. 1588, who married a daughter of Gilbert St. Clere, of East Budleigh: on the wall above this tomb is a monument with kneeling effigies of a man in half armour and trunk hose, and of a child, and over these the arms of Carew, but no inscription: near the south door is a mural monument, with bust portraits in low relief and an inscription to Peter Carew esq. ob. 13 September 1634, and Elizabeth (Chidley) his wife, ob. 17 August, 1619, with impaled shield: at the east end of the south aisle are effigies, one above the other, of Sir Henry Carew kt. ob. 1681, and Elizabeth (Mohun), his wife; at either end of this monument are kneeling effigies of daughters, and above a shield, with many quarterings: on the south wall is a monument, with effigies of a lady and infant and inscription to Elizabeth (Carew), wife of —

Eriseye, ob. 1618: in the chancel is a flat stone, inscribed to George Carew, rector, ob. 8 April, 1610: the east window is a memorial to the late rector and his wife, and there is a stone reredos, also a memorial: the church, with the exception of the tower, was completely restored in 1848, and has 200 sittings. The parish register dates from the year 1573. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £241, with residence and 51 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Misses Carew, and held since 1899 by the Rev. Walter Gawen Carew M.A. of Pembroke College, Oxford. The charities are of the annual value of £29. Bickleigh Court, formerly the residence of the Courtenays, is now the property of the Misses Carew, of Hacombe, who, together with Hugh Leonard Acland-Troyte esq. of Huntsham Court are the principal landowners. The soil is loamy. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 1,791 acres of land and 36 of water; rateable value, £2,188; the population in 1901 was 207.

The hamlet called Chedderleigh is now reduced to a farm-house and a few straggling cottages.

BICTON is a parish, about 1 mile west from Budleigh station on the Silterton branch of the London and South Western railway, 4 south-west from Sidmouth, and 11 south-east from Exeter, in the eastern division of the county, hundred of East Budleigh, petty sessional division of Woodbury, union of St. Thomas, Exeter county court district, rural deanery of Aylesbeare, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary the Virgin, an edifice built in the year 1851 at the sole expense of the Dowager Lady Rolle, near the site of the old church, is an edifice of limestone, in the Early Decorated style, from designs by Mr. Hayward, architect, and consists of chancel, nave, transepts, south porch and a tower on the south side, with a low spire, containing one bell: there are thirteen stained windows, and the dripstones of the windows generally are ornamented with terminal heads representing the English monarchs from Edward I. to Queen Victoria: the corbels supporting the springers of the roof have carved heads of eighteen distinguished Anglican theologians, beginning with John Wyclif: there are 224 sittings: a portion of the ancient church is used as a mortuary chapel, and a cloister connects it with the tower, which is also standing. A churchyard cross was erected in 1890 to the Rev. G. H. Kempe M.A. rector 1845-89, from designs by Mr. Harry Hems of Exeter: over the grave of the late Lady Rolle is a model of the wayside cross mentioned below. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1642; marriages and burials, 1557. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £200, including 50 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Hon. M. G. Kerr Rolle, and held since 1889 by the Rev. Henry John Rawlinson M.A. of Oriol College, Oxford. The County Gaol was in this parish till the year 1518, when it was removed to the city of Exeter, but the lord of Bieton was not exonerated from the custody of prisoners till 1787. In the parish stands a wayside cross, erected in 1743, and carved with texts relating to the "way of life." Bieton House, the mansion and property of the Hon. Mark George Kerr Rolle D.L., J.P. lord of the manor and chief landowner, stands in a fine park of 74 acres, well filled with timber, and containing a small lake: the gardens are tastefully laid out, and have acquired much celebrity from the completeness and rarity of the trees, shrubs and flowers here collected, and the systematic character of their arrangement: in the park is a fine avenue of oak, beech and the Chili pine (araucaria imbricata): the arboretum contains the finest collection of trees in Europe. The soil is sand; the subsoil is sand and gravel. The crops are wheat, barley and roots. The area is 1,294 acres of land and 11 of water; rateable value, £1,456; the population in 1901 was 135.

BIDEFORD.

BIDEFORD, i.e. By-the-Ford, is a municipal borough, market town and parish, on the river Torridge, and is the head of a petty sessional division, union and county court district, with a station in East-the-Water, on the Torrington branch of the London and South Western railway, 3 miles from Bideford bay, 9 south-west from Barnstaple, 6 north-west from Torrington, and 275 from London, in the North Western division of the county, hundred of Shebbear, rural deanery of Hartland, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. Bideford was formerly a separate port, but was included January 20, 1882, under the Customs Consolidation Act of 1876, in that of Barnstaple.

The town is picturesquely seated at the foot of a hill, and is divided into two unequal proportions by the river Torridge, the larger portion being on the western bank of the river, over which is a noble bridge of 24 arches, 677 feet in length, erected by the Grenville family, the former owners of the manor: in 1865 it was widened 10 feet by adding foot-paths on each side, at an expense of £5,000. Vessels are able to sail up to the bridge, and facilities are provided for the discharge of their cargoes close by. The Bridge trust produces about £1,000 annually, and under a scheme of the Court of Chancery, the surplus, after provision has been made for the maintenance and repairs of the bridge, is to be applied to educational purposes.

A light railway from the quay at Bideford to Abbotsham Cliffs and Westward Ho! was opened in May, 1901, and is being worked by The British Electric Traction Co. Limited.

There is a steam packet communication between this place and Bristol twice a week. The town is lighted with gas, from works in East-the-Water, the property of a company. Water works, the property of the Corporation, were first erected in 1872, at a cost of £10,000, and additional works were constructed in 1893, at a cost of £7,500. The supply is obtained from rainfall of 300 acres collecting area. There are two reservoirs on Gammaton Moor, about 2 miles from the town, of a united capacity of 27 million gallons.

Bideford is a borough by prescription, at any rate from the time of the Conquest, and received a charter in 1573 from Queen Elizabeth, and later from James I. whose charter continued in force until the passing of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1835 (5 & 6 William IV. c. 76). The Corporation now consists of a mayor, twelve town councillors and four aldermen.

The borough has a commission of the peace and separate court of quarter sessions, and a police force. The "Local Government Act of 1858" was adopted here February 25, 1859.

The church of St. Mary is a fine building of local stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, transept, north and south porches and a tower containing a clock and 8 bells, six of which date from 1772 and the fourth from 1810: there are several stained windows, including one to Lady Elizabeth (O'Bryen), wife of Sir George Stucley bart. d. 9 May, 1870: on the south side of the chancel is a monument to Sir Thomas Grayfild (Grenville) knt. patron of this church, ob. 18 March, 1513, with effigy in armour, and on the tomb are shields of arms of Grenville, and Grenville impaling Gilbert, this knight having married Isabel, daughter of Otho Gilbert, of Compton Marldon: the chancel also retains a stone screen, and there is a fine Norman font, with cable moulding: the organ cost 500 guineas: the church, with the exception of the tower, was rebuilt in 1865: there are 1,280 sittings: the churchyard has been inclosed with iron railings and planted with shrubs, at a cost of £1,100, defrayed by public subscription. In the churchyard is a stone with an amusing epitaph in rhyme to Mary Sexton. The register dates from the year 1561. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £264, including 52 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Lieut.-Col. Sir W. L. S. Stucley bart. and held since 1896 by the Rev. Thomas Newton Leeke M.A. Trinity College, Cambridge, and chaplain to Bideford union.

St. Peter's church or chapel of ease at East-the-Water, erected in 1889, at a cost of £2,150, is a building of local stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave and porch. A handsome iron screen with brass gates separates the chancel from the nave and all the fittings of the church are of a costly character: it will seat 300 persons.

The Catholic church of the Sacred Heart, in the North road, opened December 15, 1892, is a cruciform building of local stone, in the Gothic style, and will seat 100 persons.

The Bible Christian chapel, in Silver street, will seat 600 persons. The Wesleyan chapel, in Bridge street, will seat 1,200 people; the old Wesleyan chapel in Alhalland street, is now converted into class-rooms and a hall for religious instruction; the Baptist chapel, in Lower Gunstone, has 550 sittings: the Congregational chapel, in Bridgeland street, a fine building of local stone with Bath stone dressings, will seat 650. The Brethren have a meeting house in North road, and the Bethel Meeting Room is in Torrington street, East-the-Water.

There are two Cemeteries in the Old Town, one half the church ground and the remainder, with mortuary chapel, being known as "the old public cemetery"; no new graves can now be opened in either of these cemeteries.

A new general cemetery, on the Hartland road, and containing a caretaker's house and shelter, was opened in 1890, at a cost of £1,500, and is under the control of the Town Council, acting as burial board. The Church of England Cemetery, near the new Barnstaple road, East-the-Water, was opened in 1890; it is about 2½ acres in extent, and includes a handsome chapel.

The Town Hall is a structure in the Elizabethan style. The court of quarter sessions, the petty sessions for the borough and the county, and the sittings of the county court are held here.

The Corporation insignia include two pairs of silver maces; the earliest pair, dating from about 1573, are 12½ inches in length, the lower end of the stem and the grip being of iron; the heads are enriched with open work and a cresting of fleurs-de-lis; the other pair, made in the reign of Charles I. are 2 feet 3 inches long, and appear to have been originally of earlier date, the crowns being an addition of the Stuart period; the handles have two sets of scroll brackets: there are no hall marks on either pair, but the lesser maces date almost certainly from 1573, the date of the incorporation by Queen Elizabeth; there is also a silver oar, formerly belonging to the lord of the manor, and now to the corporation, as the present lords; it is 6½ inches long and quite plain; the mayor's chain consists of 24 links of gold, alternating with tablets for the names of successive mayors, and attached at either end to a medallion portrait of her late Majesty Queen Victoria in gold and enamel, placed between two maces; from this depends the badge, which displays the borough seal, within a wreath of laurel. There are also two seals, one of which is dated 1577, and another, quite modern; the ancient seal of the early 15th century is lost; the mayor wears a robe of crimson cloth, trimmed with sable.

The Bridge Hall, at the Bridge end, erected in 1882, from designs by W. R. Bryden esq. architect, at a cost of £4,300, defrayed from the funds of the Bridge estate, is a fine building of stone in the French Renaissance style, containing a free library of about 4,250 volumes, reading room, the Bridge Hall chambers and sundry other offices.

The Public Rooms, erected in 1871, in Bridgeland street, comprise a music hall, with orchestra, and will hold 700 persons.

The County Police Station in New road was built in 1897, and contains quarters for a sergeant, one married and four single constables, and cells for three prisoners.

The Masonic Hall, in Bridgeland street, is used for the meetings of the Lodge of Benevolence, No. 489; and the premises of the Conservative Club are also in Bridgeland street.

The Market, erected in 1883-4 by the Corporation, and opened 15th April, 1884, is a building of red brick and terra cotta, from designs by Mr. J. Chudley, architect, of Newton Abbot, and was erected at a cost of about £3,000. The main entrance is in the east front, under a semi-circular archway, surmounted by a gable. At the ends of this front are the Fish Market and the Corn Exchange, each of which have an area of 38 ft. by 24 ft. and a height of 32 ft. On the north side is the butchery, with a covered way extending through it, and 24 shops, 12 on each side. On the west side is the pannier, covered by five gabled roofs, supported on hollow iron columns, and having an area of 10,500 superficial feet; it is also available during the winter months for volunteer drills.

The Cattle Market and Public Slaughter House were erected in 1898 by the Corporation, at a cost of about £3,000.

The Royal Hotel, which adjoins the railway station and overlooks the old bridge, was originally built in 1688 by one John Davie, and portions of the old structure have been retained in the modern work. The drawing-room, approached by a handsome oak staircase some 205 years old, has a fine ceiling, adorned with foliage and figures of cherubs, birds and snakes in high relief, and the walls are panelled to the ceiling with oak; in this room the Rev. Charles Kingsley wrote a part of "Westward Ho!"

Bideford is the head quarters of the D squadron, Royal North Devon Imperial Yeomanry (Hussars), and of the E and H companies, 4th Volunteer Battalion Devonshire Regiment; the latter have a drill hall in Torridge hill.

At East-the-Water, near the bridge, is a marble bust of John Richard Pine-Coffin esq. J.P., D.L., A.C.C. of Portland, erected by public subscription in 1893 as a tribute of esteem.

The town possesses 8 cannon, long used as mooring posts for vessels, but in 1889, on the widening of the quay, they were taken up, and in 1896 a proposal was made to mount them. Subsequently, the guns were inspected by Capt. Enthoven R.E. a Government expert, sent down by the United Service Institution, who certified them to be guns of the late 16th century, and four out of five correspond in a remarkable degree with the authenticated guns at Inverary. It is therefore more than probable that in these guns Bideford possesses ordnance captured from the Spanish Armada. They are now mounted and placed in front of the new Technical School on the river bank.

The Post Office, in High street, was erected in 1886 from designs by Mr. G. Malam Wilson M.S.A. architect, of this town, and is in the old English Domestic style; the Inland Revenue office is in High street; and the Harbour Office on the Quay.

There is now no shipbuilding here, and the trade in timber and coal has diminished, but the prosperity of the town has greatly increased since 1883 by the rapid development of the cuff and collar manufactures: there are now (1901) about 800 persons, chiefly females, so employed; the principal factories being those of Vincent and Duncan, McBryde, Orr and Haswell and Frederick Cooper and Co. of London. Here also is the iron foundry of Messrs. Stephens and Martin, and there is also a small pottery, a tannery and a number of malting establishments. There are four banks and a savings bank.

A fair was formerly held here on February 14th, but now abandoned.

The market days are Tuesday and Saturday, the former being the principal one. A corn market is also held on Tuesday.

The early closing day is on Wednesday at 2 p.m.

The Infirmary and Dispensary, in Meddon street, erected from the designs of Mr. G. Malam Wilson M.S.A. architect, of this town, was opened 31st March, 1887, in commemoration of the Queen's Jubilee, and was extended in 1895. The Infirmary is available for 22 patients: during the year 1900 607 out-patients and 339 in-patients were under treatment.

Charities amounting to £20 yearly are distributed in bread and money.

On an eminence above the bridge near East-the-Water are the remains of Chudleigh Fort, a small castellated building commanding the river approaches to the town: there was once another fort on the west side of the river, as well as one at Appledore: these were garrisoned for the Parliament, during the Civil War, by Major-General Chudleigh, but after the action fought at Torrington in 1643, and mentioned by Lord Clarendon, were surrendered to the Royalist commander, Colonel Digby, Sept. 3 in that year, and received a garrison of the King's party.

Moreton is the seat of the Dowager Lady Stucley. The manor belongs to the Corporation of the town.

The area is 3,393 acres of land, 5 of water, 51 of tidal water and 122 of foreshore; rateable value, £20,541; the population of the parish and municipal borough in 1891 was 7,831, and in 1901 was 8,754, including 6 officers and 98 inmates in the union.

SCHOOLS.

The Grammar School is supposed to be an ancient foundation, but there are no records relating to it earlier than the year 1625; it has been reorganised, & a body of governors appointed under a scheme of the Endowed Schools Commissioners. There are now six exhibitions arising from the Bridge Trust endowment. The school has classical & modern sides, & prepares for University, University Local, civil service & other public examinations. The scholars attend the Municipal Technical schools, free of charge. Scholarships awarded by the County Council for Devon are tenable in this school; Rev. John Faulkner M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin, head master

The Municipal Science, Art & Technical Schools were established in 1875 in connection with the department of Science & Art, South Kensington & the Devon County Council. In 1896 premises were erected on the river bank, at a cost of about £2,265 (including furnishing), from designs by Mr. G. Malam Wilson M.S.A. architect of this town. The building is of red brick & consists of two floors, together with caretaker's apartments; on the first floor is a chemical laboratory for 16 students; Stephen Thomas A.R.C.A. head art & science master; Rev. John Faulkner M.A. science master; John Whitlock Narraway J.P., C.C. honorary secretary & treasurer

Edgehill Girls' College is a denominational institution, with a distinctively religious basis, but in no sense sectarian. It is open to members of all religious persuasions. The Technical Education Committee of the Devon County Council appoint representatives on the governing body & maintain a certain oversight of the work; Rev. William B. Reed, governor & chaplain; Miss Reed, head mistress & lady superintendent

A School Board of 7 members was formed January 16, 1871; Henry Russell Bazeley B.A. 28 Bridgeland st. clerk to the board; John S. Milsom, 1 Elmsleigh terrace, Clovelly, attendance officer

BIGBURY is a parish and village, in a healthy situation, commanding a fine view of the sea, 9 miles south from Ivybridge station on the South Devon section of main line of the Great Western railway, about 2 south-west from Loddeswell station on the Kingsbridge branch of the same line, 5 north-west from Kingsbridge, 16 south-east from Plymouth, 4 south from Modbury, and 2 from Bigbury bay: it is in the Southern division of the county, hundred and petty sessional division of Ermington and Plympton, union and county court district of Kingsbridge, rural deanery of Woodleigh, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Lawrence is an ancient structure, chiefly in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch, private chapel belonging to the Duchess of Cleveland, and a western tower, with spire, containing 6 bells: there is a slate monument, with a quaint inscription, to a man and his wife of the Pierce family, dated 1592: in the east window is a memorial to the Rev. James Parker Harris, chaplain at Lucknow during the siege in July, 1857, and on the south side of the chancel is a memorial window, placed in 1882 to Mrs. Frederic Farrer: in the church is a large slab, with the brass effigy of a lady, 2 feet 4½ inches in height, attired in a long mantle and mitred head-dress, with two dogs gambolling at her feet; the stone is powdered with scrolls, bearing alternately the words "Ihu mercy," "Iady helpe" but some of these, as well as the male effigy and two shields, are lost; the remaining shield displays the arms of Burton, and there is a part of a marginal inscription to Elizabeth, wife of William Bigbury, next of Thomas Arundell, and lastly of Robert Burton; there is another slab with a similar effigy, and one shield of Burton, impaling Bigbury, and a scroll with "Ihu mercy;" other shields and inscription lost: the pulpit and oak eagle lectern were given by the Rev. Elias Whittier, curate of Abberton about 1777: in 1872-3 the church was restored at a cost of £1,200, under the direction of Mr. J. D. Sedding.

architect, and affords 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1678. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £390, including nearly 100 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the trustees of the late Duchess of Cleveland (d. 1900), and held since 1803 by the Rev. Algernon Barrington Simeon M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford. Bigbury Court was the seat for many generations of the knightly family of Bigbury; and Hingeston and Houghton, now farm houses, were formerly seats of ancient families of those names. The representatives of the late Duke of Cleveland K.G. (d. 1891) are lords of the manor. John Wroth esq. and Mrs. J. Alfred Pearse are the principal landowners. The soil is light and sandy; subsoil, shale. The chief crops are corn and roots. The area is 2,885 acres of land, 26 of tidal water and 181 of foreshore; rateable value, £2,946; the population, including the hamlets of St. Anne's Chapel, ½ mile north, and Combe, 2 north, was, in 1901, 271 in the civil and 2,886 in the ecclesiastical parish.

By Local Government Board Order, 16,312, Challons Combe was transferred to this parish from Kingston, March 24, 1884.

Post Office.—John Arum, sub-postmaster. Letters by mounted post from Kingsbridge arrive at 8 a.m.; dispatched at 4.20 p.m. Postal orders are issued here, but not paid. Aveton Gifford is the nearest money order & telegraph office, 3 miles distant

BISHOPSNYMPTON is a parish and village near the road from Tiverton and South Molton to Barnstaple, 2½ miles south of Bishopsnympton and Molland station, on the Taunton and Barnstaple branch of the Great Western railway, and is 3 miles south-east from South Molton, about 15 west from Tiverton and 193 from London, in the Northern division of the county, Withridge hundred, South Molton petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of South Molton, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary is an ancient building of mixed styles, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing a clock and 6 bells, restored in 1883 at a cost of £100: on the south side of the tower is a canopied niche containing a figure; the east window is stained, and there is a memorial to the Rev. Canon Heberden: the font is Norman and has a square basin placed on a circular shaft, with others at the angles: on the north side of the chancel is an altar tomb, with quatrefoiled sides, but without any figure or inscription, probably erected to Sir Lewis Pollard kt. born about 1465, King's Sergeant in 1507 and subsequently a Justice of the Common Pleas; he died in 1540: the church was entirely restored in 1869 at a cost of

£1,500, and in 1877 £1,090 was expended on various improvements: in 1889 a stained window was erected to the late W. Keates esq. to whose memory a stone pulpit was also placed in the church at the same time by his tenants and friends at a cost of £80: in 1895 an organ chamber was built, and the organ was completely renovated at a cost of £200 in commemoration of the 60th year of the reign of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, a new clock was placed in the tower, 1897, by subscriptions amounting to £125: there are 350 sittings. The register dates from the year 1556. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £239, with residence and 8 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1882 by the Rev. Edward Augustus Lester M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. The great tithes, value £421, are held by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. The vicarage house was built at the cost of a former vicar in 1838. Here is a Wesleyan chapel, and one for Bible Christians, built in 1892. There are charities of about £20 yearly value. A cattle fair is held on Whit Monday and on the Wednesday before 25th October. "Whitechapple," an old house in the Elizabethan style, formerly belonging to the Basset family, but now the property of Miss Isabella Sanger, of Taunton, is occupied as a farmhouse. Another farmhouse, called the "Parsonage," was once occupied by the rector of the parish. to members of the Chichester family and to the late Rev. John Durand Baker, a former vicar: the church was restored in 1866, and has 350 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £385, including 26 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1896 by the Rev. Peter Nettleton Leakey M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge. There is also a church on the Chichester estate, built in 1888 by Charles and Beatrice Chichester: it affords 160 sittings. The charities amount to £13. Hall, the seat of Charles Chichester esq. D.L., J.P. is a fine mansion, beautifully situated on an eminence and commanding a fine view of the valley of the Taw. It contains a galleried banquet-hall, with rich oak carving dating from 1513, as well as many interesting relics, including a carved oak bedstead, with pillars and tester. The Duke of Bedford, who is lord of the manor, and Charles Chichester esq. are chief landowners. The soil is light; subsoil, gravel and clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley, turnips &c.; there is beautiful grazing land. The area is 2,864 acres of land, 17 of water, 12 of tidal water and 2 of foreshore; assessable value, £3,993; the population in 1901 was 780. Newport, formerly in this parish, was transferred to that of Barnstaple by Local Government Board Order 15,901, March 25, 1885.

BISHOPSTEIGNTON is a large village and parish on the southern slope of a hill on the north side of the Teign valley and commanding extensive views of the river Teign, 2 miles west from Teignmouth, where the nearest railway station is, 4 east-north-east from Newton Abbot and about 11 south from Exeter, in the Mid division of the county, Exminster hundred, Teignbridge petty sessional division, Newton Abbot union, Newton Abbot and Torquay county court district, rural deanery of Kenn and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. John the Baptist is a building of stone in the Norman and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave of five bays, north aisle and an embattled tower at the west end of north aisle, with 8 crocketed pinnacles, containing a clock and 6 bells re-hung in 1900: the western doorway is a fine example of Norman work: there are eleven stained windows, and monuments to Sir Peter Lear bart. ob. 1682, and Sir Thomas Lear bart. ob. Dec. 1705, and to William Martyn, of Lyndridge, ob. 1640, as well as several tablets: on the outside of the south wall are figures, supposed to represent the "Adoration of the Magi." The register dates from the year 1540. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £126, including 8 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Rev. Pelham R. Ogle M.A. vicar of Mackworth, Derby, and held since 1886 by the Rev. Arthur Joseph Saville Ogle B.A. of St. John's College, Oxford, who is also vicar of Luton. There is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel here, another for Plymouth Brethren and a Baptist chapel at Badway, with sittings for 150 persons. The hydropathic establishment of Mr. C. F. Carpenter is pleasantly situated at the foot of Haldon hill, and is well suited for invalids; services are held on sundays in the hall at 3 p.m. Coleman's charity, left in 1719 for the free education of 20 poor children, now produces £52 yearly. Broad Meadow charity, producing £9 yearly, is given to such poor as are not in receipt of parish relief. There are almshouses for seven inmates, with an endowment of £10 yearly, left by the late Mrs. Rhodes. In the parish are some remains of the ancient palace of the Bishops of Exeter, considerably enlarged by John de Grandison, bishop 1328-70. Lyndridge, the seat in the 17th century and later of the Lear family, is now the property and residence of Captain John George Edmund Templer J.P. late Highland Light Infantry: the house is a handsome edifice of stone, standing in a park of 145 acres, approached from Chudleigh by a fine double avenue of lofty elms and from Newton by a beautiful and finely varied drive through a romantic wood of a mile in extent.

BITTADON is a parish on the high road from Barnstaple to Ilfracombe, about $4\frac{1}{2}$ miles east from Morthoe and Lee stations on the Ilfracombe branch of the London and South Western railway, $6\frac{1}{2}$ north from Barnstaple and $5\frac{1}{2}$ south from Ilfracombe, in the North Western division of the county, hundred and petty sessional division of Braunton, union and county court district of Barnstaple, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Peter is a small and ancient edifice of stone in the Early English style, covered with ivy, and consisting of chancel, nave, south transept, vestry, south porch and a small western tower containing one bell: there is an ancient stone font in good condition: in the chancel is a memorial to Arthur Ackland esq. ob. 1675, and another in the transept to Henry Chichester, ob. 1661, and Hester, his wife, ob. 1622: there is also an ancient marble monument in the Braund Rev. Ebenezer, Rectory

BLACKAWTON is a parish and village, $6\frac{1}{2}$ miles west from Kingswear station on the Dartmouth branch of the Great Western railway, 9 south from Totnes and 6 west from Dartmouth, in the Southern division of the county, Coleridge hundred, Stanborough and Coleridge petty sessional division, Kingsbridge union and county court district, rural deanery of Woodleigh, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The river Garrah flows through the parish to Slapton Ley, a fresh water lake, separated from the sea by a sand bank, through which the water percolates into Start Bay, on the south-eastern boundary of the parish. The church of St. Michael is a building of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 6 bells, 5 of which were cast in 1782: the chancel retains piscina and sedilia and in the aisle there is a fine brass to Nicholas Forde, of Forde, ob. 1582, and Margaret (Fountain?) his wife: the rood loft stairs still exist, as well as a carved oak screen, curiously painted with varying shades of vermilion and blue, also remains, but in a dilapidated condition; and there is a Norman font: on some of the capitals of the pillars are sculptured the arms of Torr Abbey, which possessed large estates in the parish, and the adjoining estate of Abbotsleigh in Halwell parish: a new organ was provided in 1900, at a cost of £200: the church, with the exception of the chancel, was restored in 1887, when it was new-roofed, re-floored and re-seated, at a cost of £700: in 1893 the chancel was restored, a new vestry and south porch added and heating apparatus fixed throughout, at a cost of about £125; in 1895 the chancel was re-floored and white marble altar steps constructed, at a cost of £40 and the windows were renewed in 1898: there are 400 sittings. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £60, including $9\frac{1}{2}$ acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the trustees of Mrs. Clements, and held since 1891 by the Rev. George Hartridge Clements Theol. Assoc. K.C.L. There is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities amount to £7 yearly, of which £1 rs. is paid to the vicar for a sermon on St. Jude's Day and 10 shillings to the parish clerk; the remainder is distributed in bread. After the dissolution of the monasteries, Torr Abbey and a large portion of the abbey property passed to the Ridgways, of Torrwood, Torquay. From an unpublished manuscript preserved at Sheplegh Court, it appears that in A.D. 835 King Echbert's great battle against the West Wealas was fought at Hingeston, in the north-west of the parish, south of Stanborough camp and barrows, and not as generally supposed, at Hingeston Down in Cornwall. The name of Blackawton itself is derived from this very camp, whose Saxon name of Stanborough, or stone barrow, was preceded doubtless by the British name of "Blagheadun," the hill fort. There are two manors in this parish—Blackawton and Strete or Treverbyn. Henry Limbrey Toll, of Strete manor, is lord of the manors of Treverbyn and Blackawton; Sir William Henry Edward Chaytor bart. of Croft, Darlington, Yorks, William S. Dimes esq. Lewis Richard Netherton esq. of Stoke Fleming, the Messrs. N. P. L. and J. Oldieve and the trustees of the late John Grant are the chief landowners on the north side of the parish; and H. L. Toll and the Right Hon. Charles Seale-Hayne P.C., M.P. of Kingswear Castle, in the Strete district. The soil is generally a rich loam; the subsoil is clay slate, and the best land is in the dunstone. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 7,447 acres of land, 8 of water and 28 of foreshore; rateable value, including Strete, £6,725; the population in 1901 was 591. By Local Government Board Order 16,310, a detached part of Halwell was added to the parish March 24, 1884.

BLACKBOROUGH is a chapelry, about 5 miles north-east from Culmpton station on the Bristol and Exeter section of the main line of the Great Western railway and 10 east from Tiverton, in the North Eastern division of the county, Hayridge hundred, Culmpton petty sessional division, Tiverton union and county court district, rural deanery of East Tiverton and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of All Saints, which occupies an elevated site and forms a very striking object for miles round, was rebuilt in 1838, at the sole expense of George Francis, 4th and last Earl of Egremont, and is a building in the Pointed style, consisting of chancel, nave, side chapel and a western tower, with spire, containing one bell, hung in 1883 at a cost of £50: in 1900 the spire was rebuilt and battlements added to the tower, at a cost of nearly £400: the church was thoroughly restored in 1894-5 at a cost of £250, and contains many valuable gifts, including pictures, brass work and embroidery, and an oak rood screen: there are sittings for 350 persons: the ancient church of Allhallows, dating from 1274 or earlier, stood near Allhallows farm, and the site was marked until about 1897 by an ancient yew tree. Previous to the rebuilding of the church the registers were kept with those of Kentisbeare, which date from

BLACK TORRINGTON is a village and parish, bounded on the north by the river Torridge, 4½ miles north-east from Halwill and Beaworthy station on the Okehampton and Holsworthy branch of the London and South Western railway, and 6 west-by-north from Hatherleigh, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Black Torrington, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Holsworthy, rural deanery of Holsworthy, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary is an edifice of stone, in the Late Perpendicular style of the 16th and Early 17th centuries, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle and a fine embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing a clock, which chimes the quarters, and 6 bells, cast in 1772, the weight of the tenor being 11 cwt.; the 4th and 6th were re-cast by Mears, of London, in 1826, and the rest by John Pennington and Co. in 1772: there is a memorial window in the chancel to the Coham family, one dated 1875 in the south aisle to Mrs. Penleaze, and others, including one to the Rev. John Penleaze, a former rector, placed in 1880: there is a mural monument of stone to John Parsons, of Beara, in this parish, ob. 1675: the pulpit is of oak, with a sounding board: the church affords sittings for 500 persons. The register dates from the year 1543. The living is a rectory, yearly value £331, including 191 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of and held since 1883 by the Rev. John Samuel Jephson Gardiner M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. The Bible Christian chapel here, erected in 1843 and enlarged in 1865, was restored in 1885 at a cost of £160, and will seat 200 people: there is another at West Chilla, erected in 1893, and seating 114. Specott's charity consists of a small estate in the parish, five-ninths of the rents of which are given to the poor of Holsworthy and four-ninths to the poor of this parish. There is also a church lands charity, which brings in about £40 yearly. The old mansion was ruinous in 1822. Coham, since 1547 the property of the ancient family of Coham, is now the property of J. Blyth Coham-Fleming esq. D.L. J.P.; it was rebuilt by W. H. B. Coham esq. and is encompassed by fertile pastures and rich woodland. Beara Court, about a mile from the church, the property and residence of Lucius Hurlock Reichel esq. is an ancient Elizabethan building, in part recently rebuilt of 1601. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £50, including 72 acres of glebe, in the gift of Wm. Wyndham, esq. and held since 1893 by the Rev. Edward Henry Gilchrist de Castro M.A. of Queen's College, Oxford. Blackborough House, now in part the residence of Mrs. and Miss Dennis, is an elegant mansion in the Italian style, built by the late Earl of Egremont, who occasionally resided in it: it is beautifully situated amidst the Blackdown hills, which are remarkable for the salubrity of the air and magnificent scenery. William Wyndham esq. of Dinton House, Salisbury, is lord of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is sandy; subsoil, sandy. The chief crops are oats, wheat and barley. There are 508 acres included with Kentisbeare; the population in 1891 was 65 and in 1901 was 58.

Post Office.—Charles Radford, sub-postmaster. Letters from Culmpton arrive at 8.30 a.m.; dispatched at 5.10 p.m. week days only. Postal orders are issued here, but not paid. The nearest money order office is at Kentisbeare & telegraph office at Uffculme, 4 miles distant granite, surrounded by oak trees and fine yews and commanding extensive views of the country. Braundsworth, formerly the property of Mr. George Braund, now belongs to Mr. Marshall Eyles. Whiteleigh, partly in this parish and partly in that of Halwill, belonged to the Woolcombes, of Ashbury, but now to W. J. Harris esq. J.P. of Halwill manor. Lana Forda, West Chilla and East and West Graddon are the property of the trustees of the late Miss Clarke, of Macclesfield; Addehole and Ley belong to George Leach esq. A court leet and court baron are held yearly. The manor formerly belonged to the Zouch family, from whom it passed to various families, all of whom resided at Totleigh. The trustees of the late Miss Clarke, of Park House, Macclesfield, Cheshire, who are lords of the manor, J. B. Coham-Fleming esq., William James Harris esq., of Halwill Manor, L. H. Beichel esq., Edwin and James Bisdon, James Sparke and the rector are the principal landowners. The soil is clay; subsoil, stone. The chief crops are wheat, oats and roots. The area is 5,681 acres of land and 13 of water; rateable value, £2,490; the population in 1901 was 512.

East and West Chilla and Totleigh are hamlets.

BONDLEIGH is a parish and village on the River Taw, 3 miles north from North Tawton station on the main line of the London and South Western railway, 8 east from Hatherleigh, in the Northern division of the county, North Tawton hundred, South Molton petty sessional division, Okehampton union and county court district, rural deanery of Chulmleigh, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. James is a building of stone, in the Norman style, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 4 bells, of which the first is dated 1653; the second and third are both inscribed in Old English characters, "Est michi collatum hic nomen amatum"; the tenor weighs 14 cwt.: on the north side of the chancel is the recumbent effigy of a priest, fully vested: fixed to the porch is a sun-dial dated 1706. The church was restored in 1889-90, at a cost of £816, and affords 150 sittings. The register of baptisms and marriages dates from the year 1734; burials, 1742. The living is a rectory, net yearly income £136, including 56 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of William Wyndham esq. and held since 1893 by the Rev. Samuel Sidney Heathcote B.A. of Exeter College, Oxford. The Plymouth Brethren have a small chapel here. There is a small charity consisting of the interest on £15, left by James Raymont in 1857. The manor belongs to William Wyndham esq. of Dinton House, near Salisbury, by inheritance from the late Earl of Egremont. The principal landowners are the lords of the manor, the trustees of the late John Quicke esq. of Newton St. Cyres, Lord Alington and the Rev. A. W. Owen M.A. of the Old Palace, Richmond, Surrey. The soil is dun land; the subsoil is chiefly clay and rock. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 1,626 acres of land and 6 of water; rateable value, £1,164; the population in 1901 was 143.

NORTH BOVEY is a parish and village on the banks of the beautiful river West Teign, otherwise called the "Bovey river," $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles south-west from Moreton Hampstead station on a branch from Newton Abbot of the district of Newton Abbot and Torquay, rural deanery of Moreton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. John the Baptist is an edifice of granite, in the Early English, Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave of five bays, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 6 bells: the east and west windows are stained: the chancel retains a priest's doorway, and some of the carved bosses of its roof display carved heads representing Edward I. and his queens, Eleanor of Castile and Marguerite of France; another boss exhibits figures of three rabbits, the ears of which meet and form a triangle: the fine Perpendicular rood screen of oak remains in fair condition, but its original decoration has been obliterated by repeated coats of paint; the lower portion is panelled, and the sides of the entrance arch are enriched with carved figures of apostles and saints under crocketed canopies; the openings on either side are filled with Perpendicular tracery, and the cornice is richly carved with vine foliage and grapes; two other screens inclose the eastern portions of the aisles, which formed chapels, but the piscinae as well as the doorway to the rood loft were formerly blocked and plastered over, but are now opened out; the turret containing the rood stairs projects externally: the church was restored in 1874-6, at a cost of £700, and is seated with open oak benches, many of which are ancient, and affording sittings for 200 persons. The register dates from the year 1572. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £180, including 22 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Hon. W. F. D. Smith M.P. and held since 1866 by the Rev. William Henry Thornton M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. Near the parish is Grims-pound, a very remarkable circle of stones, generally regarded as Druidical, but originally forming the inclosure of an early walled village: the fence, constructed of huge masses of granite, is of considerable thickness, usually about 9 feet, and the space inclosed has a diameter of from 450 to 500 feet, and comprises within it a number of smaller circles, with entrances towards the south. On the village green stands an ancient and rude cross of granite about 5 feet

Great Western railway, 14 south-west from Exeter and 12 north-west from Newton Abbot, in the Mid division of the county, Teignbridge hundred, Crockernwell petty sessional division, Newton Abbot union, county court

2 inches high, with a square base; the shaft lay for some years in the Bovey brook, but was recovered and replaced by the Rev. Mr. Jones, then curate, in 1820. Yaal or Hall cross, which stands on the road from North Bovey to Beeton, was re-set in 1868 by the Earl of Devon; it consists of a quadrangular base bevelled off at the top into an octagonal shape, and rising from this a tapering shaft, surmounted by a cross pattée; Bennett's Cross, on the moor near the road from Moreton to Tavistock, is a boundary mark, with a tapering shaft about 6 feet 4 inches in height, and bears the letters "W.B." for "Warren Bounds." Hospit, or Stumpy Cross, sometimes called "Bovey Cross," and 1 foot 10 inches high, now serves as an index post, and has cut on it the letters M. N. O. B. indicating the roads to Moreton, Newton, Okehampton and North Bovey. From the lofty hills of East Down and Hamilton Tors, in this parish, magnificent views of the neighbourhood are obtained. There were formerly several tin mines in this parish, but they are not now worked. The Hon. William Frederick Danvers Smith M.P. of Greenlands, Bucks, who is lord of the manor, and Launcelot T. S. Newbury and Leavitt James Taylor esqrs. are the principal landowners. The soil is peaty, resting on granite. The chief crops are barley, oats and grass. The area is 5,582 acres of land and 7 of water; rateable value, £2,533; the population in 1901 was 398.

Vitifer Tin Mines is a hamlet, 5 miles south-west, and Littaford, alias Forder, 3 miles west.

By Local Government Board Order, 16,337, Sanduck was transferred to Lustleigh, March 25, 1885.

BOVEY TRACEY is an ancient but extinct borough, and parish with a station on the Moreton Hampstead branch of the Great Western railway, and is 6 miles north-west from Newton Abbot, 4 south-west from Chudleigh and 6 south-east from Moreton Hampstead, in the Mid division of the county, Teignbridge hundred and petty sessional division, Newton Abbot union and county court district, rural deanery of Moreton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The town, which is lighted with gas from works established in 1879, consists principally of one long street, commencing at the border of the level and barren tract of land known as Bovey Heathfield, and extending a considerable distance up the south-western slope of a high hill. Extensive views of the country are to be obtained from the higher part of the town. Bovey was a borough by prescription, with the style of "the mayor and freeholders of Bovey Tracey," its officers including a mayor, bailiff, portreeve, constables and subordinates; the constables' staves, still preserved in the Town Hall, bear the arms of the lord of the manor. The church of SS. Peter and Paul, originally dedicated to St. Thomas à Becket, was erected, according to tradition, in 1170, as an act of penance, by Sir William de Tracy, who took the lead in the assassination of Thomas à Becket, but some wall paintings, discovered in the church in 1857, during the time it was undergoing repair, appeared to indicate that St. Michael was the patron saint: about 150 years after it was built, nearly the whole was destroyed by fire, but was afterwards restored: it is now an edifice in the Perpendicular style, and consists of chancel, nave, two north aisles and a south aisle, parted from the nave by arcades of five bays, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing a clock and 6 bells: the screen was restored in 1887: on the panels are painted several repetitions of figures which apparently represent the disquisitions between the King and St. Thomas à Becket: the pulpit is of stone, elaborately carved and richly decorated in gold and color; in the chancel are altartombs with canopies to Nicholas Weleigh, and to Elizeus Hele, who, in 1636, bestowed large estates to "godly purposes and charitable uses": the church was restored in 1887-8 at a cost of £3,246, when an organ was placed in the church at a cost of £1,000: there are 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £270, with 7 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Crown, and held since 1897 by the Rev. Walter Benjamin Vere-Stead M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. St. John the Evangelist's is an ecclesiastical parish, formed in 1895 from St. Thomas, Bovey Tracey: the church, erected in 1853 at the expense of the late Rev. and Hon. Charles Leslie Courtenay M.A. vicar of Bovey Tracey 1849-1897, is an edifice in the Gothic style, from the designs of the late Mr. Carpenter, architect, and consists of a beautifully-decorated chancel, with sculptured reredos, nave, aisles, organ chamber and a western turret containing 2 bells: all the windows are stained, several being memorials: there are 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1895. The living is a vicarage, yearly value £210, in the gift of Keble College, Oxford, and held since 1895 by the Rev. Henry Martyn Wickham. There is also an iron chapel of ease at Heathfield, holding about 60 persons. The Baptist chapel seats about 500 persons; the Congregational chapel 130, and the Wesleyan Methodist chapel 200 persons. A cemetery was formed in 1889, and is under the control of the parish council. A vestry hall has been erected under the provisions of the Vestry Act. About 250 hands are employed at the very extensive pottery and brick works, at Heathfield, of Messrs. Candy and Co. Limited, where, fire bricks, paving bricks, sanitary stone ware, and white and coloured glazed bricks are made. There are three hotels, the principal of which is the "Dolphin," where conveyances and fishing tickets can be obtained. A market, long disused, and a fair for three days, were granted to Henry Tracey in 1259. The Devon House of Mercy for the Reception of Fallen Women, in this parish, was established in 1861, and formally opened in 1863, the foundation stone of the permanent house having been laid by the late Earl of Devon in 1865: 90 inmates are received from all parts of the country, and instructed with the view to their establishment in some respectable calling: the institution is supported by voluntary contributions, and is under the care of members of the Clewer (Windsor) Sisterhood; in connection with this house is the St. Gabriel's Mission for work among the poor, carried on by the same Sisterhood. The chief objects of interest in the immediate locality are the celebrated Haytor Rocks and Granite Quarry, Botor Rock, Lustleigh Cleave, Horseman's Steps, Becky Fall and the beds of lignite or Bovey coal. Colehays, about 1½ miles west, and standing in about 400 acres of park land, is the seat of Mrs. Levett. Parke, the seat of William Robert Hole esq. J.P. is a handsome mansion, erected about 1825, near the site of the ancient seat of the Traceys, of which there are now no remains, and stands in about 60 acres of park land. To the south of Bovey Tracey is Indio, the seat of Mrs. Bentinck. Wolleigh House, the seat of Henry Tanner Ferguson esq. M. Inst. C.E. about one mile north, is a building of stone in the Gothic style, beautifully situated in about 75 acres of land. On January 9, 1646, the town, then the head quarters of Lord Wentworth's brigade, was suddenly attacked by Lieutenant-General Cromwell, with a part of the Parliamentary army, under the command of Sir Thomas Fairfax; a great many prisoners were made, though a portion of the Royalists escaped during the night. The manor of Bovey was formerly held by the Traceys, Barons of Barnstaple, but is now the property of Mrs. Bentinck. The principal landowners are Mrs. Bentinck, the trustees of the late Captain Levett, William Robert Hole esq. Miss Divett, John Harris esq. Joseph Harris esq. Harry Trelawney Eve esq. M.A., K.C. and Edmund Meek Slater esq. The soil is light loam; subsoil, clay.

BOW (or Nymet Tracey) is a parish and large village, on the river Yeo and on the old road from Exeter to Okehampton, with a station $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles south, on the main line of the London and South Western railway, 7 miles west from Crediton, 10 from Okehampton, 15 north-west from Exeter, and 187 $\frac{1}{2}$ from London, in the Northern division of the county, North Tawton hundred, Crediton petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Oadbury, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Bartholomew is an ancient building of stone, originally Early English, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 5 bells, of which the 1st, 3rd and tenor date from 1754; the 2nd, 1764; and the 4th, 1765: the tower and nave, which are in the Decorated style, were probably built about 1370, and the north aisle, which is Perpendicular, was added about 100 or 150 years later: the chancel was rebuilt in 1862, and its windows are filled with stained glass: a carved oak screen divides the nave from the chancel, and there is a parclose

on the north : this church is one of three built in this county by Wm. de Tracy, in expiation of the part taken by him in the murder of Thomas à Becket, archbishop of Canterbury, 29 Dec. 1170: it was restored in 1889-90, when the chancel was rebuilt and nine windows filled with stained glass, as memorials, at a cost of £1,500: there are 400 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1607; marriages and burials from 1604. The living is a rectory, with that of Broad Nymet annexed, yearly value £386, including 103 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Frederic Burrow esq. LL.D. of The Waldrons, Culmpton, and held since 1886 by the Rev. William Hugh Bowden, of the University of Oxford. The church of St. Martin, at Broad Nymet, is a small structure in the Early English style, with lancet windows, but has no tower. There is a Congregational chapel with 200 sittings, and the Plymouth Brethren have also a place of worship capable of seating 150 persons. The ruins of the castle of William de Tracy are still standing in the south-east part of the parish. The village has been supplied since 1859 with water brought from a mile and a half distant, through the exertions of the late John Bibbings; W. Packe esq. bequeathed £360 for the purpose and the remaining expense, £199, was given by the Misses Wreford. Charities amounting to £6 16s. yearly are distributed in bread: there is also Hoyles' charity, amounting to £35, and Hole's charity which provides ten sixpences to be given away in the church annually on Christmas Day. The W. H. Kelland charity, which brings in 18s. 6d. every second year, is given for tools for poor labourers. Hill Down Manor, the property of John Jackman esq. is now the residence of James Ponsford esq.; it was formerly occupied by the Moon and Penridge families, and was purchased by the present owner in 1881; Gratton House is the property of William Lane esq.; Nymet belongs to William Kelland esq. of Exeter; Collitons is the property of John Pope esq. of Wellington; Treedown House is the property of J. B. Howell esq. of The Tower, Hathersage, Derbyshire; Speatos Grange, also the property of J. B. Howell esq. is the residence of Mrs. Conry; Cot belongs to the Rev. A. H. Martin-Wilson, of Exeter. The manor of Bow, anciently belonging to the Tracy family, passed successively to the families of Martin, Audley, Fitzwilliam and Hankford, and to the Bouchiers, Earls of Bath: it was sold by the late Sir T. Lethbridge bart. and is now the property of William Lane esq. The other landowners are John Jackman esq. the Rev. A. H. Martin-Wilson, Messrs. Wreford, Hole, Edmund W. Rickett esq. of Hillerton Cross, J. B. Howell, William Kelland esq. of Exeter, John Baker, and Richard Davy esq. F.R.C.S. of Burston, Zeal Monachorum. The soil on the north of the parish is rich red sandstone with marsh land and clay on the south. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and roots. The area is 2,867 acres, rateable value, £3,246; the population in 1891 was 790 in the ecclesiastical parish, including Broad Nymet and Appledore, and 724 in the civil parish.

By a Local Government Board Order (26,552), which came into operation March 25, 1884, a detached part of the parish known as Appledore was amalgamated with Clannaborough.

Parish Clerk & Sexton, Richard Davy.
Post, M. O. & T. O., T. M. O., S. B., Express & Parcel Delivery & Annuity & Insurance Office (Railway Sub-Office. Letters should have R.S.O. BRADFORD is a parish and village, on the river Torridge and intersected by the river Waldon, 2½ miles north from Dunsland Cross station on the Okehampton and Bude branch of the London and South Western railway, and 7 east from Holsworthy, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Black Torrington, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Holsworthy, rural deanery of Holsworthy, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of All Saints, a building of stone in the Norman and later styles, consists of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch, and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 5 bells; the 1st is dated 1847, the 5th, 1811, and the 3rd, 1837; the 2nd and 4th were re-cast in 1891; there is a beautiful Norman doorway; the tower, which had been injured by lightning, was restored in 1550, as appears by a date on one of its stones: the nave and chancel are Early Decorated: in the church were formerly brasses and inscriptions to the Hengscote and Dabernon families: a large slate slab 6 feet 4 inches long by about 2 feet wide, with crosses at the angles, and probably an altar-stone which sometime lay on the chancel, it is now encased in oak, and forms the top of the communion table: and the north aisle, which is Late Perpendicular, retains a beautiful piscina and a portion of an altar stone, and has two memorial windows, to the Dunsland and Bovacott families, and there is another to the Rev. Robert Lewis Bampffield, rector 1885-90, besides tablets of various dates to the Bickford, Maynard, Heysett, Venton, Bovacott and Coham families: in the tower is a stained window, presented by the late J. T. English esq.; carved oak choir stalls were added in 1894 and a carved oak pulpit in 1899 by Mrs. English, in memory of her late husband, J. T. English esq.; a carved oak screen was placed across the tower arch in 1899 by C. M. Saunders esq. J.P. of Bovacott, in memory of his late wife: the church was restored in 1860, and again during 1875-89, when the chancel was rebuilt at a cost of £800: the tower was restored and new pinnacles added in 1891; there are 200 sittings. The register (an unusually early one), dates from the year 1530. The living is a rectory, yearly value £247, including 70 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Bampffield's trustees, and held since 1890 by the Rev. Francis Russell-Rawes M.A. of Caius College, Cambridge, and rural dean of Holsworthy. There is a Bible Christian chapel, erected in 1839, and seating 150 persons: attached is a Sunday school and a small burial ground. Miss Bickford bequeathed to this parish a sum of £459, and the interest now (1901) about £13 is equally divided between the poor of this parish and Cookbury. W. Will's charity of £25 is lost. At Hengistcot, the estate of Earl Stanhope, is a fortified camp, which tradition reports to have been formed by Hengist. Dunsland, mentioned in Domesday, and possessed soon after the Conquest by John Cadiho, from whom it descended through the families of Daubernon, Batten, Arscott and Bickford to that of Coham, is now the property of Mrs. Dickinson, sister of the late W. H. B. Coham esq. of Coham, and in the occupancy of Captain Leonard Paul Irby; the mansion was enlarged in 1609 and retains over one of the windows a quartered shield of the Bickfords, with their alliances, and on either side the arms of Bickford and Parker; over the east entrance is a shield with the coat of Bickford impaling Prideaux; in the church room, redecorated in 1660; are the arms of Bickford impaled with that of Arscott; in the billiard room, which is the old justice hall, are the arms of the different families who have owned Dunsland. Bovacott is the property and residence of Clervaux Morley Saunders esq. J.P. At the entrance of a lane leading to the house is the celebrated "Crooked Oak," a well-known meeting place of fox hounds, and jealously preserved not only by Mr. Saunders, but by all residents; it is supposed to be over 800 years old and has the reputation of being haunted. The representatives of the late Joseph Thomas English esq. are lords of the manor. The other principal landowners are Earl Stanhope F.S.A., C. M. Saunders esq. Mrs. Coham and John Blyth Coham-Fleming esq. of Coham, Black Torrington. The soil varies much, from good on stone subsoil, to bad on clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and roots. The area is 4,133 acres of land and 18 of water; rateable value, £1,866; the population in 1901 was 847.

By Local Government Board Order, 14,687, a detached part known as the Western hamlet was added from Black Torrington, March 24, 1884, for civil purposes.

BRADNINCH (originally spelt Braynes and Braneis), once an ancient borough, and now a village and parish, is 1 mile north from Hele station on the Bristol and Exeter section of the main line of the Great Western railway, 2 miles south from Cullompton, 9 north from Exeter, and 18½ from London, in the Tiverton division of the county, hundred of Hayridge, Cullompton petty sessional division, Tiverton union and county court district, rural deanery of East Tiverton and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. It was formerly a borough of great antiquity and claimed prescriptive as well as chartered rights: the oldest known charter was granted in the year 1208, but the common seal bears date 1136, when probably the place came into the possession of Reginald (de Dunstanvill) Earl of Cornwall, natural son of Henry I.: from the time of Edward II. to and in the reign of Henry VII. the borough sent two members to Parliament; but the privilege being found burdensome by the inhabitants, the borough, in the reign of Henry VII. was excused upon the payment of five marks (£3 15s. 3d.). The place received its first charter from Reginald (de Dunstanvill) Earl of Cornwall in 1135, and another from King John; it was re-incorporated by James I. in 1604, and by Charles II. in 1681, the corporation consisting of a mayor, twelve masters and an indefinite number of burgesses or freemen, as well as a recorder, town clerk, two sergeants-at-mace and constables. The corporation was abolished by the Municipal Corporations Act, 1883 (46 and 47 Vict. ch. 18), but did not finally cease to exist till Lady Day, 1886. The church of St. Dionysius or Denys is a building of stone in the

Later Perpendicular style, partly rebuilt in 1841, at an expense of about £1,100, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, vestry, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles containing 6 bells; in 1881 the latter were repaired and put in thorough order, the south porch built from designs by Messrs. Hayward, architects, of Exeter, as a memorial to William Drew esq. of Kensham, and the tower arch opened and restored: the north aisle was built in the reign of Henry VII.: at the east end of the aisle was the chapel of St. John, founded by the fraternity of St. John, or the guild of Cordwainers, and endowed with land worth £19 in 1547 A.D. when it was dissolved: the fine panelled screen dates from 1528; the subjects on the panel of the central door are quaint but careful representations of "The Annunciation" and "The Salutation"; and the remaining panels are adorned with figures of the Latin doctors, judges, sibyls, and allegorical groups; part of the screen which has been placed at the west end illustrates in its panels the legends of St. Christopher, St. Francis of Assisi and St. Sebastian: there are several good modern stained windows, and the porch windows contain figures of St. Denys and of St. George; the stained west window is a memorial to A. Linnington esq.: and on the south side is a stained window presented by the Hon. George West, a native of this town, and a member of Congress U.S.A. who also presented the lamp over the entrance gate of the churchyard; the windows in the chancel are memorials to Messrs. Henry, William and Charles Matthews; on a corbel of one of the chancel windows is the figure of a demi-angel bearing an impaled shield with the arms of the Precentor of Exeter and those of Richard Norton, who held this office in 1512: the brass altar rails were given in 1804 by Miss E. M. Drew in memory of Miss Marion Drew and Miss Evans; the organ was finally completed in 1807: the carved eagle lectern is a memorial to Miss Dulcibella Linnington: the stone pulpit was designed by Mr. Parsons, architect, and executed by Hems: a vestry and heating apparatus were added in 1888: the tower was struck by lightning in 1887, but has since been restored at a cost of over £100. In 1888-9 the church was thoroughly restored at a cost of £1,522: there are 410 sittings: the churchyard is under the control of the Parish Council, and contains an ancient preaching cross, restored about 1850. The parish registers date from A.D. 1559. The living is a perpetual curacy, net yearly value £190, including 37 acres of glebe, in the patronage of the Dean and Canons of Windsor, and held since 1807 by the Rev. Charles Croslegh D.D. of Trinity College, Dublin. Here is a Baptist chapel. The charities, amounting to £111 yearly, are distributed in kind and money. There are two paper mills in this parish; one at Kensham, now disused, and the other at Hele, occupied by the Hele Paper Co. Limited. The Guildhall and Gaol were rebuilt in 1835: but under a scheme approved by the Charity Commissioners, the Guildhall is now converted into assembly and reading rooms and offices. The insignia of the now extinct corporation included two maces, four staves and two borough seals; the maces, each 2 feet 10 inches in length and dating from 1839, are wooden pales, with solid wooden heads, all painted and gilt, and surmounted by open arched crowns of gilt brass; the heads bear on one side the royal arms, and on the other an eagle displayed, the symbol of the town: the staves, also of wood, are 6 feet, 6 inches long, painted with an eagle displayed, and the motto "Fidelis regi et patrias"; the borough seals both bear the town device and a legend, and there is a large china punch bowl 21 inches in diameter and decorated with paintings of mythological subjects, which had been in the possession of the corporation for several generations. The old Parsonage House, now called the "Manor House," and occupied by John Bowell esq. jun. was for many generations the residence of the ancient family of Sainthill, members of which have in the earliest periods of our parliamentary history represented the county of Devon, the city of Exeter and the borough of Tiverton. Peter Sainthill esq. a devoted Royalist, was a privy-councillor, master in chancery and a steward of the Stannary courts of Cornwall, in the reign of Charles I. and also represented Tiverton in Parliament. The name of Sainthill has now become extinct in this parish, the last person of that name being Elizabeth Margaret Sainthill, who married Rear-Admiral Thomas Pearse: the Sainthill property, since the death of the late George Pearse esq. has all been sold. The Manor house contains richly-carved oak rooms of the Elizabethan period in fine preservation, and a bedroom, in which, according to tradition, Charles I. once slept. A fair formerly held here was abolished June 3, 1873. There are several small freehold estates within the parish, but the greater part belongs to the Duchy of Cornwall. Courts leet and baron were formerly held half-yearly for the Duchy of Cornwall, but are now discontinued; by the charter of creation of the Duchy, 17th March, 1337 (11th Edward III.), the right of free warren through the manor of Bradninch and other lands and manors was granted to Edward, the Black Prince, then Duke of Cornwall, and to his successors. The soil is various; subsoil, gravel; the chief crops are wheat, barley and apples. The area is 4,375 acres of land and 24 of water; rateable value, £9,767; population in 1901 was 1,521.

Trinity is a hamlet 1 mile north.

BRADSTONE is a township and parish, on the old road between Tavistock and Launceston and on the Cornwall border, 4 miles south from Lifton station on the Launceston branch of the Great Western railway, 4½ south-east from Launceston and 8 north-west from Tavistock, in the Western division of the county, Lifton hundred and petty sessional division, Tavistock union, county court district of Launceston, rural deanery of Tavistock, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Nonne, supposed to have been rebuilt in the reign of Henry VI. is an edifice principally in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave of four bays, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower with crocketed pinnacles containing 5 bells, all re-cast by Taylor of Oxford in 1827 and fitted in 1892 with chiming apparatus; the south doorway is Early English, but about 1888 the original Norman doorway was discovered: a screen of four bays, with double doors, was existing in 1840, but has since disappeared. The church was restored in 1892, when the panelled timber and plaster roof was renewed, the whole church re-seated, the chancel screen replaced, choir stall and a new pulpit erected and the chancel embellished. During the operations, some ancient wall-painting was discovered which crumbled away when exposed to the air, but a large portion of the design was copied by the rector. The old rood-loft doorway was also uncovered, and a door has been placed in it, as well as in the west doorway now reopened: there are 80 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1657; marriages, 1656. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £150, with 64 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1897 by the Rev. Alexander Hawken, of Queen's College, Birmingham. Bradstone Hall, formerly a fine old mansion, once the seat of the Cruwys family, is now a farmhouse: the gateway, containing a lofty apartment, together with considerable and interesting portions of the original edifice, built by the Cloberys, still remain, and is well preserved. Frank Bradshaw esq. of Lifton Park, who is lord of the manor, and the Rev. Maitland Kelly M.A. of Kelly, Lifton, own all the land in the parish except the glebe. The soil is light loam; subsoil, limestone. The chief crops are barley, oats and roots, but most of the land is in pasture; the area is 1,300 acres; rateable value, £1,284; the population in 1891 was 100.

BRADWORTHY is a large parish and village on the river Walden, 8 miles north-north-west from Holsworthy station on a branch of the London and South Western railway, and 14 south-west from Bideford, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Black Torrington, Holsworthy petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Holsworthy, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. John the Baptist is an ancient edifice of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower with crocketed pinnacles, restored in 1897 at a cost of £140, and containing 5 bells, the first dating from 1835 and the rest from 1757: it was restored and re-seated in the year 1840, and a memorial window erected to Mrs. Hotchkys: there are other memorial windows, placed in 1898 and 1900 respectively to B. Bosanquet esq. and the Rev. James Bardon Clyde B.A. vicar here 1845-93: there is a finely-carved Jacobean pulpit, and a stone font of Norman date, with a square basin supported on a central shaft surrounded by 4 smaller ones: a new organ was provided in 1899 at a cost of £155: in the chancel and other parts of the church are remains of the ancient tiled floor: there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1548. The living is a vicarage, with the chapelry of Pancras annexed, joint net yearly value £254, including 24 acres of glebe at Bradworthy and 8 at Pancras, with residence, in the gift of the Crown, and held since 1893 by the Rev. William Thomas Wellacott M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. There are Wesleyan and Bible Christian chapels in the village, a Bible Christian chapel at Atworthy, and a Wesleyan chapel at Bradworthy Cross. Fairs for horses, sheep and cattle are held here on the 9th September and the 2nd Monday in June. The charities amount to £26 annually, which sum is distributed at Christmas. There are many places in this neighbourhood with the affix "worthy," from the A.S. "weorthig," a place warded or protected. In the parish of Bradworthy are many indications of Roman settlements. The trustees of the late Mark Shephard esq. are lords of the manor, and the land has for the most part been divided into small holdings. The soil is various; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are oats, barley and wheat. The area is 9,792 acres of land and 37 of water; rateable value, £3,784; the population in 1901 was 847.

BRAMPFORDSPEKE is a parish and village, on the river Exe, with a station on the Exe Valley branch of the Great Western railway, and is 5 miles north from Exeter, in the North Eastern division of the county, Wotton hundred and petty sessional division, St. Thomas union, Exeter county court district, rural deanery of Cadbury, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Peter, rebuilt in 1853, is an edifice of stone, in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, south transept, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing a clock and 6 bells, all cast by T. Billbie in 1755; the treble bell was added in 1896: the east window is stained, and there are others bearing the arms of the lords of Cowley from the reign of King John to that of Edward VI. as well as those of the families of Treminet, Speke, Gibbs and Pierce, lords of the manor of Bramford from Henry I. to George II.: there are 150 sittings. The register, dating from the year 1739, and existing in 1831, has since been destroyed. The living is a vicarage with Cowley annexed, net yearly value £200, with residence and 32 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1882 by the Rev. Thomas Blundun, of St. Augustine's College, Canterbury. The charities amount to £13 13s. and are distributed in bread and money. The Earl of Idlesleigh C.B.

is lord of the manor and principal landowner and Lieut.-Col. Frederick Davies, of Bramford House, is also a landowner. The soil is clay; subsoil, clay and sand. The chief crops are corn and root crops. The area is 1,135 acres of land and 28 of water; rateable value, £2,979; the population in 1901 was 313.

By Local Government Board Order 16,545, Cowley Barton was amalgamated with Upton Pyne, March 24, 1884, for civil purposes.

BRANSCOMBE is a scattered village and parish on the coast, in a picturesque valley, surrounded by lofty hills, 4 miles south-by-west from Seaton terminal station, 6 east from Sidmouth terminal station (both branches of the London and South Western railway), and 10 south from Honiton, in the Eastern division of the county, Colyton hundred, Honiton union, petty sessional division and county court district, rural deanery of Ottery and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Winifred is a cruciform building of stone, in the Norman and later styles, consisting of chancel, nave, transepts, peculiar as standing to the west of the tower, which is Late Norman, and contains 5 bells: the chancel is Early Decorated: in the north transept are some ancient and curious monuments, including one with small kneeling effigies to Joan (Tregarthin) and her two husbands, John Kelleway esq. and John Wadham of Merrifield esq.: by the latter she was the mother of Nicholas Wadham, the founder in 1610, through his wife, of Wadham College, Oxford: at the back are the figures of 19 children, 14 of the Kelleway and 5 of the Wadham family, and above are the arms of Tregarthin, Kelleway, Wadham and others; the inscription, now obliterated, is given in Prince's "Worthies," and shows that she died in Sept. 1581: there are 457 sittings; in the churchyard is a tombstone to Joseph Braddick, d. 1673, an ancient stone coffin, and a stone with incised cross. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1539; marriages, 1545; burials, 1573. The living is a vicarage, net yearly income £225, with residence and 11 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and held since 1872 by the Rev. Robert Swansborough B.A. of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge. Here is a small Wesleyan chapel. In the neighbourhood are quarries of excellent freestone. Many females are still employed in making the Honiton lace. The Dean and Chapter of Exeter, Henry Ford esq. who is lord of the manor, and C. Langdon esq. are chief landowners. The soil is mixed; the subsoil is limestone and chalk. The crops are wheat, barley, oats and early potatoes, which are grown principally on the slopes of the cliffs facing the sea. The area is 3,429 acres of land and 56 of foreshore; rateable value, £3,356; the population in 1901 was 627.

BRATTON CLOVELLY (or Clevelly) is a village and extensive parish, 3½ miles south from Ashbury and North Lew station on the Halwill to Okehampton branch of the London and South Western railway and 8½ west-by-south from Okehampton, in the Western division of the county, Lifton hundred and petty sessional division, Okehampton union and county court district, rural deanery of Okehampton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is a building of stone, in the Early English and later styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a fine embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing 6 bells, all cast in 1767, and a clock, presented in 1895 by Mrs. Manning: the nave is Early Decorated, dating from about 1375; the chancel and base of the tower are Early English; the font is Norman: two windows in the vestry contain ancient stained glass, including the arms of the Barnby family; the other windows have modern stained glass as memorials to Thomas Ellis Manning and his relatives; the window in the tower is a memorial to Oliver Veale Pengelly, formerly of this parish: in 1891-2 the church was thoroughly restored and re-seated in oak, and a carved oak pulpit, erected at a cost of about £2,000 by Mrs. Manning, of Eversfield, in this parish, who also presented a richly-carved alabaster reredos, and relaid the chancel floor with highly-polished Devonshire and Irish marble as a memorial to her sister, Mrs. Mary Younge, who died in 1891: the screen was removed in 1820: the nave will seat 180 persons. The register dates from the year 1555. The living is a rectory, yearly income £264, including 140 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of

son Bateman, Assoc. K.C.L. There are two Bible Christian chapels here—one in the village and one at Rexon Cross—and a Wesleyan chapel at Boasley. Fairs are held here on the second Tuesday in May and the first after October 19th. Henry de Bracton, a celebrated lawyer and judge (1185-1267) and author of "De Legibus et Consuetudinibus Anglie," the best of judicial classics, is supposed to have been born in this parish. Calehouse belongs to Wm. Brown esq. of Hughslade, Okehampton; Boasley, to Terdenham Hugh Spry esq. of Broadwood Widger; Metherell belongs to Mr. Richmond Gorle; Ellacott, which formerly belonged to the Earl of Morley, is now the property of Wm. James Harris esq. of Halwill manor; Higher Vowden belongs to the trustees of the late T. Brown; Banbury, originally Burnaby, belonged to the ancestors of Col. Fred G. Burnaby R.H.G. killed in the Soudan, at the battle of Abu Klea, 17 Jan. 1885, now to T. Hugh Spry esq. Mrs. Manning, of Eversfield, is lady of the manor. Mrs. Manning, Percy Rbt. Kenyon Slaney esq. the trustees of the late Thomas Brown, William James Harris esq. Tredenham Hugh Spry esq. of Broadwood Widger, and Mrs. Symmons are the principal landowners. The soil is chiefly clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 7,254 acres; rateable value, £3,169; the population in 1901 was 436.
By Local Government Board Order 16,406, a detached part of this parish was transferred to Broadwood Widger, in Launceston union, March 25, 1885, for civil purposes

BRATTON FLEMING is a parish with a village standing on an acclivity, with a station (opened in 1897) on the Lynton and Barnstaple railway and is 7 miles east-north-east from Barnstaple, in the North Western division of the county, Braunton hundred and petty sessional division, Barnstaple union and county court district, rural deanery of Sherwill, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. At Chelfham, in this parish, on the line of railway from Barnstaple to Lynton, opened Feb. 25, 1897, is a viaduct built of Marlard brick, and consists of eight arches rising from stone piers, seventy feet above the roadway; it is about 400 feet long, and cost £6,500. There is also a station at Chelfham. The line in continuation between Bratton Fleming and Blackmore Gate crosses six valleys, viz., Southcott, Nightacot, Specott, Hunnacott, North Thorne and Westland Pound; at the last there will be a station. The church of St. Peter is an ancient building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and a western tower, with pinnacles, containing 6 bells, cast in 1792: there are 240 sittings. The register dates from the year 1673. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £500, including 250 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Caius College, Cambridge, and held since 1875 by the Rev. Philip John Wodehouse M.A. late fellow of that college and dean of Sherwill. There is a Baptist chapel here and another at Stowford, and also one for Bible Christians. There are six almshouses maintained and built by public subscription. A fair is held on the 19th of August yearly for cattle. About 1840 a considerable inclosure of waste land took place. Capt. Sir Edward Chichester bart. C.B., O.M.G. of Youlston, who is lord of the manor, Sir Charles Thomas Dyke Acland bart. Mr. W. C. Bowden and the rector are the chief landowners. The soil is clayey; the subsoil is clay slate. The greater part is grass land. The area is 5,888 acres of land and 5 of water; rateable value, £5,492; the population in 1901 was 511. The hamlets are:—Haxton, 1½ miles south; Benton, 2 miles south-east; Leworthy, 2 miles east; Stowford, 3 miles north; Nightacot, 1½ miles north; Chumwill, 1½ miles south-west.

BRAUNTON is a parish and village, on the banks of a rivulet, with a station on the Ilfracombe branch of the South Western railway, 2 miles from the coast and Taw estuary, 5½ north-west from Barnstaple, 8 south from Ilfracombe and 217 from London, and is the head of the petty sessional division, in the North Western division of the county, Braunton hundred, Barnstaple union and county court district and in the rural deanery and archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Brannock is a large and ancient building of stone, in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel and nave and transepts, north and south porches and a tower on the south side with spire, containing a clock and 8 bells: the nave has a panelled oak roof of considerable span, repaired about 1850, and exhibiting on one of its panels a carved representation of a sow with a litter of pigs, alluding to a tradition that St. Brannock, who preached Christianity here A.D. 300, was directed, in a dream, to build a church on the spot where he should first meet such a group: there is an interesting palimpsest brass, having on one side the effigy of a knight in basinet and camail, c. 1200, and on the other the effigy of a lady kneeling at a prie-dieu; this is inlaid above a stepped cross incised in a large stone slab, and at the foot is a brass inscription to Lady Elizabeth Bowker (Bourchier), daughter of John, 1st Earl of Bath, and wife of Edward Chichester esq. ob. 24th August, 1548: the church contains some of the finest examples of wood carving in Devonshire, especially on the bench ends in the nave: a new organ was erected in 1896 by public subscription: in 1887 the nave of the church was new-roofed and the bells rehung, with the addition of two new ones, at an expense of £1,200, under the direction of Mr. William White F.S.A. architect, of London: the south transept, formed by the ground storey of the tower, has also been restored, in memory of Mr. Edward Mock, by his widow, and the chancel by the late Mr. Ewan Christian: a heating apparatus was fixed in 1893, the cost being defrayed by subscription: there are 450 sittings. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £330, including residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1890 by the Rev. Edward Robert Gotto M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. On a neighbouring hill are some remains of an ancient chapel, said to have been built by St. Brannock, and known as "St. Anne's chapel." Here are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels and a meeting room for the Brethren. The charities amount to £30 yearly. Near the sea is a large sandy tract of land called "Braunton Burrows," abounding with rabbits: here is also a lighthouse and a lifeboat station. The Earl of Devon, the trustees of the late Lord Rolle (d. 1842) and the Ecclesiastical Commissioners are lords of the manor; and Mrs. Incledon-Webber, Sir William Robert Williams bart. of Upcott House, Barnstaple; Augustus Langham Christie esq. of 42 Great Cumberland place, London W.; Mrs. Basset and J. W. Gifford esq. of Chard, are the chief landowners. The soil is sandy loam; the subsoil is clayey. The chief crops are wheat, barley, potatoes and root crops. The area is 10,265 acres of land, 17 of water, 82 of tidal water and 1,393 of foreshore; rateable value, £12,136; the population in 1891 was 2,171.

The hamlets are:—Bearcharter, 2 miles north-east; Pipacott, 2½ east; Hallsinger, 2 north-east; Winsham, 1½ north-east; Knowle, 1 north; Nethercott, 1½ north-west; Saunton, 2 north-west-by-west and Lobb, 1½ miles north-west.

Saunton Sands, 3 miles north-west-by-west, is an extension of Saunton, and has a small mission church, served by the clergy of Braunton.

early date: the church was restored in 1878-9, at a cost of £2,500, the organ was thoroughly restored in 1899, and the church was lighted with gas in 1886, at a cost of £230, and has 550 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1677; marriages, 1678. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £700, including 30 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of and held since 1866 by the Rev. William Speare Cole, of Exeter College, Oxford. Here are Congregational and Wesleyan chapels: The parish lands produce about £142 yearly, one third of which is applied to church purposes, one third to education and one third is given to the poor. On the hill-side is a tablet, erected in January, 1873, as a token of gratitude to Sir W. P. Carew bart. for giving water to this parish. There are two small flour mills. A cattle and horse fair is held on the last Tuesday in April and September and cattle market on last Tuesday in February, August and November; the September fair is noted for the large number of Dartmoor ponies which are brought here direct from the moors. A monthly market is also held here on the last Wednesday in the months of January, March, May, June, July, October and December, and on the last Tuesday in February, August and November. Here are the kennels of the Dartmoor Otter Hounds. J. B. T. Kingwell esq. J.P. who is lord of the manor, the Misses Carew, of Hacombe, F. J. Cornish-Bowden esq. of Black Hall, Avonwick, and Messrs. S. and W. Ashford, Charles G. Wills and John Adams are the principal landowners. The soil is variable, resting on stone. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 10,180 acres of land, 3,000 of which are common, and 24 of water; rateable value, £8,924; the population in 1891 was 1,580 (which included 300 men then working on the branch line to Kingsbridge) and in 1901 it was 1,360. There is also good grazing land.

Part of the village of Avonwick and the hamlets of Aish, Harbourford and Luton are in this parish.

BRENTOR (or Brent Tor) is a small parish with a station on the Plymouth, Devonport and South Western Junction railway, and is $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles south-west from Liddford station and 2 miles north-west from Mary Tavy station, on the Tavistock and Launceston branch of the Great Western railway, 5 north from Tavistock and 14 south-east from Launceston, in the Western division of the county, Tavistock hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Tavistock, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The hamlets of North and South Brentor, in the parish of Lamerton and the district of West Black Down, in Mary Tavy, were added to this parish for ecclesiastical purposes, in 1879, and for civil purposes by Local Government Board Order 15,033, March 25, 1885. The church of St. Michael de Rupe is a very small edifice, in the Norman and Perpendicular styles, the interior measuring only 37 feet by 14½, and consists of chancel, nave, north porch, and a low embattled western tower, of Early English date, only 32 feet in height, and containing 3 bells: it is built almost on the edge of a precipitous rock, on the summit of a very steep and tall conical hill, 1,130 feet above the sea level, which is said to have been the first spot of land seen by a merchant from Plymouth Sound, who, during a storm at sea, vowed to build a church thereon if he were safely landed: on the tower is a sun-dial: the church was restored in 1889-90 by the 9th Duke of Bedford K.G. at a cost of £765 and affords 50 sittings: around the church is a small graveyard with a few ancient grave-stones. The register dates from the year 1720. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £210, including 2 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Duke of Bedford, but pro hac vice the Crown by lapse, and held since 1881 by the Rev. Robert Joseph French Smith M.A. of Clare College, Cambridge, who resides at North Brentor. There is a Bible Christian chapel, erected in 1841, and a Wesleyan chapel at Heathfield, seating 100 people. The poor have about £14 yearly from Miss Zoë Herring's charity

BRIDGERULE (anciently Bridgerauld) is a village, partly on the river Tamar, 5 miles west from Holsworthy, $1\frac{1}{2}$ north-east from Whitstone and Bridgerule station, on a branch of the London and South Western railway, and $6\frac{1}{2}$ east from Bude. For civil purposes it is divided into East and West Bridgerule, but is one parish only for ecclesiastical purposes, and is in the Western division of the county, hundred of Black Torington, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Holsworthy, and in the rural deanery of Holsworthy, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The portion of this parish on the west of the Tamar was transferred from Cornwall to Devonshire by the Acts 2 and 3 William IV. cap. 64 (1832) and 7 and 8 Victoria, cap. 61 (1844). The church of St. Bridget is an ancient building of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, north transept, south porch and an embattled western tower with crocketed pinnacles containing 5 bells; the first was recast in 1865 and the third in 1877; the second and fourth date from 1777 and the fifth from 1818; the whole peal was rehung in 1877; the chancel retains a piscina; the church was thoroughly restored in 1878, at a cost of over £1,000, when a vestry was added, with money left by the Rev. T. Simcox: there are four stained windows: and on the north wall of the nave is a brass to William Henry Napier, who fell in the battle of Hindon, May 31, 1857: over the south porch is a sun-dial, and in it are preserved the ancient village stocks: the church was lighted with lamps in 1888 at a cost of £22, and in 1891 a side chapel was added to the north transept, and a carved oak rood screen and choir seats provided; the lower part of the screen is filled with paintings of the twelve Apostles: in 1892 an organ was erected at a cost of £400, and in 1895 a baptistery was formed by enclosing part of the interior with carved oak screens, at a cost of £220: the cost of restorations and improvements from 1873 to 1891 amounted to £1,400: there are 250 sittings. The register dates from the year

1561. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £210, including 184 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Herbert Napier Kingdon esq. and held since 1888 by the Rev. Frank Hawker Kingdon Assoc.K.C.L. Here are Bible Christian and Wesleyan chapels. The Whitstone Brick and Tile Co.'s works are in this parish. The late Rev. T. H. Kingdon, in 1853, bequeathed £400, the interest to be given annually to 12 persons, male and female; and in 1856 Mr. Usherwood bequeathed £108, the interest to be distributed in bread and fuel. The mansion of Tackbere, now a farm house, occupied by Mrs. Elizabeth Rogers and Sons, is the property of A. de C. Glubb esq. of Penlean; the interior retains some shields of arms of its former owners, and other ornamental work in stucco. The manor of Tackbere, once very extensive, may be traced from the time of the compilation of Domesday in 1086. Mrs. Richard Ford, of Pencarrow, Cornwall, who is lady of the manor, Albert de Castro Glubb, of Penlean, Liskeard, Edward Mucklow esq. of Whitstone, Cornwall, and Herbert Napier Kingdon esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is chiefly clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and roots. The area of East Bridgerule is 1,618 acres; rateable value, £738; the population in 1901 was 126. The area of West Bridgerule is 1,016 acres of land and 8 of water; rateable value, £813; the population in 1901 was 223.

BRIXHAM is a market and seaport town and extensive fishing station and parish on the southern headland of Torbay, connected with the Dartmouth and Torbay branch of the Great Western railway by a branch line from Churston station, 2 miles in length, authorized by Act of Parliament in 1864, and opened for passenger traffic 28th February, 1866, and for goods traffic in May the following year. The town is 9 miles east-by-south from Totnes, 5 north-east from Dartmouth, 30 south from Exeter, $8\frac{1}{2}$ south from Torquay (on the opposite side of the bay) by road, or 5 by water, and 22 $\frac{1}{2}$ from London. The town extends in a long straggling street for more than a mile south from Lower Brixham, or Brixham Quay, with a picturesque valley opening to the quay, and bounded on the east by lofty sea cliffs and by Berry Head, the most easterly point of the bay: the parish is in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Haytor, petty sessional division of Paignton, union and county court district of Totnes, rural deanery of Ipplepen, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter.

The "Local Government Act, 1858" (21 and 22 Vict. c. 98), was adopted by Lower Brixham Sept. 19, 1862, but the town is now governed by an Urban District Council, formed under the Act of 1894 (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73), and consisting of 12 members. The powers of the Harbour and Market Commissioners have been transferred to the Urban District Council by the "Brixham Harbour and Market Act of 1896." The town has been well drained under the superintendence of E. Appleton C.E. considerable additions having been made from time to time, and the main outfall was further extended into Torbay in 1899. Water is supplied from a reservoir constructed in Higher Brixham, at a cost of about £4,000: during 1888 the part of the town on Furzeham and the higher levels has been supplied with water by water and steam power and a large tank erected on Furzeham Common.

The harbour, being well protected by the bold high promontory of Berry Head, is a place of refuge for shipping in stormy weather; and during westerly winds great numbers of vessels may be seen riding at anchor here and in other parts of the bay. The old pier was built under the powers of the Harbour and Market Improvement Act, passed in 1799, and was finished in 1804; but the harbour not being sufficiently large for the increased size of the vessels and the general trade of the port, a new pier and breakwater was begun in 1843, and up to the present time a length of 1,363 feet has been constructed and the fabric strengthened from time to time at a cost of £28,000.

Brixham depends entirely on its fishing industry; there are at present over 300 fishing smacks, varying from 20 to 50 tons, which hail from this port; and the population not engaged as fishermen, are mainly employed in building these smacks and in making ropes, sails and other requisites for outfit.

On the 5th of November, 1688, William, Prince of Orange, landed here at the invitation of the Whig leaders, the Earls of Shrewsbury, Devonshire and Danby, Admiral Russell and others, to preserve, in the words on his banner, "the Protestant religion and the liberties of England," and on the quay, protected by an iron railing, is a stone on which, it is said, he first set foot on landing: the Prince was entertained during his stay at the house of Christopher Farwell, mayor of Totnes in 1656: the bicentenary of this event was celebrated on the 5th of November, 1888, by a public meeting and a grand banquet, and a statue of William III. has since been erected, at a cost of £700, from the model by Messrs. Wills, of London; the foundation stone of the pedestal was laid by His Excellency Count Van Bylandt, Netherlands Minister, and the statue unveiled 5th November, 1889, by C. A. Bentinck esq. J.P. In July, 1815, H.M.S. "Bellerophon," Captain Maitland, anchored in the roadstead here, after receiving on board the Emperor Napoleon, and remained several days before sailing for St. Helena. This coast was visited with a very severe storm on the night of January 10th, 1866, when upwards of 40 merchant vessels, out of a fleet of 64 then anchored in Torbay, were driven from their anchors and wrecked or stranded, most of them being totally lost, and more than 100 men are supposed to have perished, 29 of whom are buried in Brixham churchyard: a monument, surmounted by a cross and anchor, was erected to their memory by the Brixham Shipwrecked Sailors' Relief Committee, from the surplus of £3,211 9s. 5d. entrusted to them by a generous public, after relieving the widows and orphans and other sufferers from the gale.

The parish church of St. Mary the Virgin, which stands in the higher part of Brixham, is an ancient building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, transepts, aisles, two side chapels, south porch and an embattled western tower 103 feet high, with pinnacles, containing a clock and 6 bells, all cast by Abel Rudhall in 1737; in 1852 it was repaired at a cost of about £665, and in 1867 the church was re-roofed and other repairs executed at a cost of £1,100; the south porch has a finely-groined roof, the centre-boss representing the Virgin crowned, with two angels incensing on either side; in the church is a monument to Sir Francis Buller bart. justice of the Common Pleas, and ancestor of the present Lord Churston, who died 5th June, 1800; the stained east window was presented jointly by the late Lord Churston and the late vicar, and there are also two memorial windows in the chancel, inserted in 1881, to the Rev. B. Holdsworth, late vicar, by his daughters: the font dates from the 14th century and is richly carved; the fine screen once here disappeared before 1861; there are 700 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1587; marriages 1556; burials 1560; and the books contain the names of the vicars from 1566 to the present time. The living is a vicarage, with the chapelry of Churston Ferrers annexed, joint net yearly value £280, with residence, in the gift of the Crown, and held since 1900 by the Rev. Richard William Perry Circuit Assoc.K.O.L. The church was formerly served by the monks of Totnes Priory, and the vicar has to pay a sum of £1 3s. 6d. yearly as a fee farm rent to the present possessor of these rights. The population in 1891 was 2,106. John Travers M.A. vicar in 1645, a cousin of "the judicious Hooker," and a learned and amiable man, was ejected for his unshaken loyalty to the king, and never restored; his son, also a clergyman, was taken prisoner by the Parliamentary soldiers while conducting divine service in the church.

Lower Brixham is an ecclesiastical district, formed September 20, 1825.

The church of All Saints, erected in 1820, is a building of stone, consisting of chancel with aisles, nave, aisles, organ chamber and vestry, added in 1872: the chancel was built as a memorial to the Rev. J. B. Hogg, late vicar: in 1886 a south aisle was added, at a cost of £1,800; and in 1892 a new north aisle was erected, heating apparatus fixed and the seats re-arranged at a cost of £2,300: the west front and stained west window, completed at the same time, form a memorial to the late Mrs. Hogg, of Berry Head, and were erected at the cost of her relations and friends: in 1898 the nave roof was renewed, at a cost of £800, in memory of the late Rev. Robert Bissett Fenwick Ebrington M.A. vicar 1854 to 1889: the church affords 1,000 sittings. The register dates from the year 1826. The living was declared a vicarage April 3rd, 1866; net yearly value £224, including 8 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Crown, and held since 1889 by the Rev. Stewart Sim M.A. of Trinity College, Oxford, and surrogate. The Rev. H. F. Lyte, author of the well-known hymn, "Abide with me," was the first incumbent of this parish.

The St. Peter's Mission Church for Seamen, erected in 1874, at a cost of £2,212, is a building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave and north aisle, with organ chamber: there are 350 sittings. The Rev. Arthur Baring-Gould M.A. of Magdalene College, Oxon. has been curate-in-charge since 1901.

The Baptist chapel, in Market street, was rebuilt in 1838 and restored in 1895.

The Congregational church in Bolton street, erected in 1843, at a cost of £2,000, was restored in 1872, and will seat 500 persons.

The Wesleyan chapel in Fore street, erected in 1816 at a cost of £2,000, was enlarged and improved in 1871 at a cost of about £200, and has sittings for 800 persons; the Sunday schools on the opposite side of the street, erected in 1889 at a cost of about £1,100, are of stone in the Gothic style.

The cemetery, which adjoins the churchyard in Higher Brixham, is $\frac{1}{2}$ acres in extent, additional ground having been consecrated by the Bishop of Exeter in 1900.

The Freemasons' Hall, in Church street, is a building of dressed limestone, erected in 1886, at a cost of about £500; the Temperance Hall, Bolton street, erected in 1869, at a cost of £1,100, including the site, is let for entertainments and lectures, and will seat about 450 persons.

The market is held daily.

The early closing day is on Wednesday.

The market, built in 1877, at a cost of £3,000, on a site presented by H. W. Nelson esq. The Hyde, Middlesex, comprises market and public halls, magistrates' room, Urban District Council and school board offices. The Artillery Volunteers drill at the market buildings; the Royal Naval Reserve Battery, whose head quarters are in Berry Head road, numbers about 400 men.

A regatta for vessels ranging from 15 to 60 tons is held occasionally in the month of August.

The Conservative club, in Bolton square, was erected in 1900, at a cost of £1,500, and contains reading, billiard, committee, card and refreshment rooms, caretakers' apartments and offices and kiel alley.

The Liberal Club, in Bolton street, was erected in 1898, at a cost of about £700, and comprises reading, card and billiard rooms, kiel alley and caretaker's premises in the rear.

In 1858, during the progress of some quarrying, a cavern containing stalactites and bones was discovered and thoroughly explored by the Royal Geological Society, who obtained a lease of the place for one year. The first crust consisted of a foot of stalactite flooring, underneath which was a stratum of bone, averaging three feet in depth, out of which upwards of 2,000 different specimens were recovered, consisting of flint implements, bones and teeth: below this formation were water-worn pebbles, varying in depth: the extent of the cavern, which has been much affected by aqueous action, exceeds 600 feet, and the stalactites with which it is encrusted are remarkable for the fantastic character of their formation.

Messrs. J. W. and A. Upham, Mr. S. Dewdney, Mr. D. Dewdney, Mr. R. Jackman, shipbuilders, each employ 20 or 30 men, and there are two roperies, in which 40 men and boys are employed. This town also contains the works of the Torbay Paint Company, where "Calley's" Torbay paint, well known and largely used throughout the world for the preservation of iron and steel, is manufactured.

The British Seamen's Orphan Boys' Home for the western counties was originally established in the Berry-head road, in this parish, in 1859, by the late William Gibbs esq. of Tyntesfield, near Bristol, for the purpose of making provision for the orphan sons of seamen, and subsequently a new building near to Rock House was opened in December, 1863, and completed in 1864; in 1873 these premises were enlarged, and in 1875 a separate school room for 50 boys was erected at the cost of the Baroness Burdett-Coutts. An entirely new wing was built by subscription in 1888-9, at a cost of £1,400. The freehold of the Home and Rock House and its grounds, now the chaplain's residence, have been vested by Mrs. Gibbs in the Bishop of the diocese as trustee. The Home is now available for 70 boys, and there are at present (1901) 45 boys in residence: it is maintained by voluntary subscriptions and managed by a committee. The Rev. Tom Lumsden Brown L.Th. of Durham University, is resident chaplain and secretary.

Lang's charities, producing £33 yearly, are distributed in clothes and money. The charity of G. H. Cutler, of Upton, produces £23, which is distributed in coal and blankets to the poor of Higher Brixham only.

Nethway, the residence of Llewellyn Llewellyn esq. J.P. is an ancient mansion of historic interest, situated midway between Brixham and Kingswear.

There are manorial rights: the manor was formerly held in four parts, one-fourth by the Duchess of Cleveland and the Earl of Sandwich, one-fourth originally by 12 fishermen, who were styled Quay lords, and the other two-fourths were held by Sir Henry Paul Seale, of Dartmouth, the Right Hon. Charles Seale-Hayne P.C., M.P., J.P. of Kingswear Castle, and the representatives of the late W. Gillard esq. Waste lands and commons have been allotted to several proprietors under an award made by Mr. W. Bovey, acting for the Inclosure Act Commissioners: a recreation ground, containing 8 acres, and an allotment garden for the poor, containing 4 acres, have been laid out.

The principal landowners are Lord Churston, The Right Hon. Charles Seale-Hayne P.C., M.P. Llewellyn Llewellyn esq. Nethway, Mrs. Philip Gillard, Black House, Higher Brixham, Thomas Lakeman esq. Thomas Bedford Bolitho esq. and William Green esq. of Burton villa. Llewellyn Llewellyn esq. is lay impropriator of the great tithe of this parish, and also of Kingswear and Churston Ferrers. The soil is light; subsoil, slate, Durstone limestone. The chief crops are oats, barley and wheat and pasture. The area of the civil parish and Urban District is 5,611 acres of land and 141 of foreshore; rateable value, £23,559; the population in 1891 was 7,978. At the time of each census being taken several hundred men and boys were at sea. The population of the Urban District and parish in 1901 was 8,090. The population of the ecclesiastical parishes in 1891 was:—St. Mary the Virgin (parish church), 2,106; All Saints, Lower Brixham, 6,439.

BRIXTON is a parish and village on the road from Plymouth to Modbury, 3 miles south-east from Plympton station on the South Devon section of the Great Western railway and 5 east from Plymouth; in the Southern division of the county, Plympton hundred, Ermington and Plympton petty sessional division, East Stonehouse county court district, Plympton St. Mary union, rural deanery of Plympton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary is a building of stone in the Perpendicular and earlier styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, vestry, south porch and a lofty embattled western tower containing a clock and 5 bells, all cast by Abel Rudhall, of Gloucester, in 1737: the church was partially restored in 1887, at a cost of £2,500, and further restored in 1894 at a cost of about £2,000 and now affords 316 sittings. In November, 1899, a piece of ground was given for the enlargement of the churchyard by Hawtrej Collinsplatt esq. The register dates from the year 1668. The living is a perpetual curacy, net yearly value £187, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Canons of Windsor, and held since 1899 by the Rev. Charles Everitt Green B.A. Christ's College, Cambridge. Here is a Bible Christian mission hall. The Brixton Institute was the gift of Miss Frances Collinsplatt. A charity of about £29 yearly, derived from parish lands, is equally divided between the poor and general church purposes. The Kennaway endowment, founded in 1874 and amounting to £2 ros. yearly, is equally divided between the poor and the schools. The Binnear charity produces about £6 yearly, which is distributed in coals to the aged poor. A family, taking its name from this place, was anciently resident here, as were also the Calmady, Copleston, Drake, Fortescue, Maynard and Pollexfen families; the Heles held the mansion in the 17th century, and in 1635 Eliza Hele, of Wollaton, bequeathed it with his other estates to charitable uses. James E. Moon esq. of Cloudeleigh, who is lord of the manor, Hawtrej Collinsplatt esq. of Brixton House, Mr. Joseph Cane, Baldwin John Pollexfen Bastard esq. of Kitley, Sir Francis G. A. Fuller-Elliott-Drake bart. of Nutwell Court, Exeter, John Kingwell esq. of South Brent, and Mr. William Peter Vosper, of Merafield, Plympton St. Mary, are the principal landowners. The soil is loamy; subsoil, limestone. The chief crops are wheat, barley and green crops. The area is 3,126 acres of land, 5 of tidal water and 93 of water; rateable value, £5,445; the population in 1891 was 622.

BROADCLYST is a parish, with a station, $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles south-east from the village, on the main line of the London and South Western railway, and is $16\frac{1}{2}$ miles from London and 5 north-east from Exeter, in the North Eastern division of the county, Clifton hundred, Wonford petty sessional division, St. Thomas union, county court district of Exeter, rural deanery of Aylesbeare and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. John the Baptist is an ancient building of stone, in the Perpendicular style, repaired about 1834, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing a clock and 8 bells, of which 6 were cast by Thomas Bilbie in 1768, from a previous peal of 5, and rehung in 1893, in 1897 the peal was increased to 8 by the addition of 2 trebles cast by Messrs. Mears & Stainbank: the church retains three stone sedilia, with buttresses and pinnacles and rich foliated canopies: in the south wall of the chancel is a fine monument, with the effigy of a knight, in plate armour, probably representing Sir Roger de Nonant, c. 1350, whose family held the manor of Broadclyst, from the reign of Henry I. to that of Edward III.: here also is a tomb and monument to Henry Borough, gent. and Elizabeth, his wife, daughter of George Reynell esq. of Malston, dated 1605: on the north and south faces of the tower are quartered shields, with the coats of Chudleigh, Merton and Nonant: there are four memorial windows; the church affords 600 sittings. The registers date from the year 1653. The living is a vicarage, net yearly income £621, with residence and 84 acres of glebe, in the gift of Sir Charles Thomas Dyke Acland bart. and held since 1896 by the Rev. Charles Probart Whitaker M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford. The chapel of St. Paul, Westwood, erected in 1873-4, at a cost of £1,100, out of trust funds provided by A. H. D. and C. A. W. Troyte esqs. lay impropiators of the rectorial tithes, and consecrated Jan. 19, 1874, is a building of stone in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave and a small western turret containing one bell. Here is also a Baptist chapel, erected in 1883. Burroughes' Alms-houses, built by Mr. Henry Burroughes and endowed by him by will in 1605 with £23 11s. payable out of the tithes of Nether Exe, were rebuilt by subscription in 1854 and consist of 12 rooms for 12 single inmates. The "Barker" fund, of about £496 £2½ per Cent. Consols, was founded by deed in 1862, for increasing the stipend of the inmates of these alms-houses and supplying them with coals: other charities of £68 4s. yearly value are distributed in bread and money, and there are educational endowments amounting to £34 10s. yearly. On Killerton Hill is a camp. Killerton, the residence of Sir Charles Thomas Dyke Acland bart. M.A., D.L., J.P. stands in a beautiful expanse of well-wooded land, nearly surrounded by the rivers Culm and Clyst and well stocked with game and deer: the park, which is 160 acres in extent, affords very fine views of the surrounding country for many miles, including Dartmoor to the west, Woodbury to the south and Black Down to the east; within the park stands the domestic chapel of the Holy Evangelists. There is also a private chapel at Culm John for use in connection with a private burial ground. Sprydoncote is the residence of Lady Walrond. The manor was sometime held by the Chudleigh family, who became possessed of it through the marriage of John Chudleigh with Jane (Beauchamp), daughter of Sir John Beauchamp and Alice (Nonant), his wife. Sir C. T. Dyke Acland bart. who is lord of the manor, Lord Poltimore J.P., W. F. Richards esq. Thomas Wish, Richard Merry, William Merry, Henry Trump and John Trump esqs. are chief landowners. The soil is chiefly loam and clay; subsoil, gravel. The crops are roots and cereals. The area is 9,302 acres of land and 24 of water; rateable value, £17,679; the population in 1901 was 1,899.

The hamlets of Bare, to the north, and Westwood, to the west, are each 3 miles distant.

BROADHEMBURY is a parish 1 mile from the high road from Honiton to Cullumpton, 5 miles north-west from Honiton and 6 south-east from Cullumpton station on the main line of the Great Western railway, in the Tiverton division of the county, Hayridge hundred, Cullumpton petty sessional division, Honiton union and county court district, rural deanery of Ottery and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Andrew is an ancient building of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, north porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing a clock and 5 bells: there are seven memorial windows: the rood screen was removed c. 1851 and afterwards burnt with an outhouse in which it had been placed: in the chancel is a marble tablet to the Rev. Augustus Montague Toplady B.A. author of the hymn "Rock of Ages," and some time vicar here, d. 11 Aug. 1778; and there are several similar memorials of the 15th century to the Drewe family: the church affords 380 sittings. The registers date from the year 1538. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £240, including 49 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and held since 1892 by the Rev. Charles Lister James M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. There is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities amount to about £57 yearly value. Between this place and Buckereil is Hembury Fort, the finest earthwork remaining in East Devon and probably identical with the "Mordunum" of Antonine. Kerswell or Careswell Priory, the remains of which are now occupied by Mr. William Weeks, was founded by Matilda Peverell about 1250, as a cell to the Cluniac Monastery of Montacute, in Somerset; its clear annual value in the time of Edward II. being £12 10s. 6d. but at the time of its suppression in 1540 the annual value was £28 16s. 4d. and it was then granted to John Etheridge esq. who sold it to William Peverell, Solicitor-General to Queen Elizabeth: it is now owned by Mr. Charles Montague Furze of Uffculme. In this parish there was once a chapel dedicated to St. Andrew and situated near St. Andrew's Wood. The Grange is the seat of Arthur Charles Edward Locke esq. J.P. who is lord of the manor and chief landowner. The soil is loam and marl; subsoil, gravel and sand. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The acreage is 4,820; rateable value, £5,430; the population in 1901 was 554.

DULFORD hamlet is 2½ miles north-west; Dulford House is the property and residence of Albert Abid esq. Kerswell hamlet is 1½ miles west; here is a Congregational chapel. Coliton, 1 mile south-west; Luton, 2 miles south-west, are hamlets.

Post Office.—Mrs. Martha Drewe, sub-postmistress. Letters arrive from Honiton at 8.30 a.m.; dispatched at 4.35 p.m. Postal orders are issued here, but not paid. The nearest money order office is at Kentisbeare & telegraph office at Plympton, 3½ miles distant

BROADHEMPSTON is a parish, $2\frac{3}{4}$ miles north-east from Staverton station on the Ashburton branch of the Great Western railway, $4\frac{1}{2}$ north from Totnes, 4 south-east from Ashburton and $5\frac{1}{2}$ south-west from Newton Abbot, in the Mid division of the county, Haytor hundred, Teignbridge petty sessional division, Newton Abbot union, Newton Abbot and Torquay county court district, rural deanery of Totnes, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of SS. Peter & Paul, standing on high ground in the south-west quarter of the village, is an ancient edifice of stone, rebuilt in 1402, and consisting of chancel, nave, north and south aisles, divided from the nave by arcades of five arches, south porch and an embattled western tower, containing 6 bells, 5 of which were cast in the churchyard in 1781, by John Christopher and William Pennington, of Lezant; the 6th was added in 1887 as a memorial of the Queen's Jubilee: the font, richly carved, is of earlier date than the church and has an octagonal basin, adorned with quatrefoils and shields bearing alternately two keys and two swords in saltire: the rood screen, of carved oak, much mutilated, is rudely painted in various colours; it extends across both aisles, and has attached parclooses, formerly inclosing chantry chapels; the upper part of the screen retains some good Perpendicular tracery; the lower stage was once painted with figures of saints, now no longer visible: some of the windows retain fragments of ancient glass, including the arms of the Barnhouse and Rowe families: there are three sedilia in the chancel and piscinae in the chancel and aisles: the stained east window is a memorial to Mrs. Adams, formerly of this parish, and there is another memorial window to Miss Williams: traces of an aspersorium or stoup remain in the porch: in the chancel is a tablet with arms, to Robert Warreyng and Ellinor, his wife, 1656; and to Robert Warreyng, Mary, his wife, and Avis, their daughter, with arms and a rhyming epitaph; on the floor are grave stones inscribed to William Jesse, 30 years vicar here, ob. 27 March, 1679, and to Elizabeth and William Jesse, 1645-6: in 1879 the chancel was thoroughly restored and re-roofed with pitch pine: the communion plate, partly the gift of the Rev. Samuel Whaley, vicar in 1712, consists of a chalice, two patens and an alms-dish: the nave and aisles were thoroughly restored in 1866 at a cost of £1,200, and the screen is now (1901) about to be restored at an estimated cost of £500: there are 200 sittings. The churchyard is large and neatly kept and contains

BROADWOOD-KELLY is a parish and village, 7 miles south-west from Eggesford station and 6 north-west from North Tawton station on the main line of the London and South Western railway, $5\frac{1}{2}$ east-by-north from Hatherleigh and 9 north from Okehampton, in the Western division of the county, Black Torrington hundred, Hatherleigh petty sessional division, Okehampton union and county court district, rural deanery of Okehampton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of All Hallows is a building of stone in the Perpendicular and Early English styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing 5 bells: the stained east window was presented by the Rev. Nathaniel J. B. Hole B.C.L. late vicar, in 1868: on the south porch is an ancient sun-dial: the church was thoroughly repaired, re-pewed and new-roofed about 1868, at a cost of £1,100, and has 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1616. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £190, and 73 acres of glebe, with several fine yew trees. The register of burials dates from the year 1678, baptisms and marriages 1681. The living is a vicarage, net yearly income £247, including 37 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Crown, and held since 1873 by the Rev. Frederick Townshend Chamberlain M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. There are Wesleyan and Baptist chapels; the latter was built in 1844 by Edward Palk esq. then lord of the manor. An ancient almshouse of Perpendicular date stands near the churchyard. The charities consist of £3 yearly, left by William Jesse, vicar in 1679; and 20s. yearly from Petre's charity, left by John Petre, of Exeter, who died 3 Feb. 1576; these are distributed in kind to the poor at Christmas. Richard Palk esq. is lord of the manor; Lord Percy St. Maur of Burton Hall, Leic. the trustees of the late Major Twist, William Mann esq. William James Waye esq. William Blackler esq. Daniel Robt. Scratton esq. of Ogwell, Newton Abbot, and the trustees of the late R. Bowerman West esq. of Streatham Hall, Exeter, are the principal landowners. The soil is clay; subsoil, slate and dunstone. BROADWOOD WIDGER is an extensive parish and village, 3 miles east from Tower Hill station and 3½ from Ashwater station, both on the London and South Western railway, the latter being the more convenient station for the north part of this parish; it is also 3 miles north from Lifton station on the Launceston branch of the Great Western railway, 12 north-west from Tavistock, and 7 north-east from Launceston, in the Western division of the county, Lifton hundred and petty sessional division, Launceston union and county court district, rural deanery of Trigg Major, archdeaconry of Bodmin and diocese of Truro. The church of St. Nicholas is an ancient structure of various styles and dates, consisting of chancel with south chapel separated from the chancel by an arcade of two arches, and forming an organ chamber, nave of four bays, south aisle, north transept, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles containing 5 bells, all cast in 1775: in the south chapel is an altar tomb, panelled with niches, containing small figures, and on the upper slab lies the mutilated recumbent effigy of a knight in plate armour of unusual character and covered with an open flowing robe; the hands and legs are missing; the figure, according to Westcote, represents William Shilston, of Upcott, in this parish: one of the windows in the south aisle is stained: the church retains a good oak chancel screen and some richly carved benches, dating from 1529: the fabric was restored in 1871, and has sittings for 140 persons. The register dates from the year 1654. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £292, including 60 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Bristol, and held since 1893 by the Rev. Townley George Loarn Blackwood-Price M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge. The Mission Church of St. Patrick Ivy house was erected in 1897 and will seat 70. There is a Wesleyan chapel at Downacarry, a Bible Christian chapel at Grinnicombe Moor, another at Rexton Cross, and a Baptist chapel at Cross Green. Witherdon, a mansion in the Gothic style, is the residence of Trednam Hugh Esq. J.P. The manorial rights are divided. Trednam Hugh Esq. J.P. John Albert Rundle Perkin esq. James Oag esq. J.P. Alexander Macbeth esq. J.P. John Penhale esq. The Misses Gamlen, of Dawlish, Jams Hargrave esq. of Lyme Regis, Dorset, Mrs. Richd. Ford, of 17 Park street, Park lane, London W. Frank Bradshaw esq. of Lifton Park, and Henry Fairfax Harvey esq. of High-croft, Heavitree, Exeter, are the principal landowners. The soil is loamy; subsoil, clay and slate. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and pasture. The area is 10,630 acres of land and 25 of water; rateable value, £5,519; the population in 1901 is 713. By Local Government Board Order 15,034, which came into operation March 24, 1884, a detached part of Lifton, known as Westweek, in Tavistock union, and a part of Bratton Clovelly, was amalgamated with this parish.

BRUSHFORD is a small parish in the Taw valley, 3 miles south from Eggesford station on the North Devon branch of the London and South Western railway, 5 south from Chulmleigh and 10 east from Hatherleigh, in the Northern division of the county, North Tawton hundred, South Molton petty sessional division, Crediton union and county court district, rural deanery of Chulmleigh, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary is an ancient building of stone of mixed styles, consisting of chancel and nave, south porch and a wooden tower with short spire containing 3 bells: the church retains an ancient wood screen in perfect condition, and there are several tablets to the Luxton family, by whom the church was restored in 1876-7, at a cost of £530: there are about 100 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1695; marriages, 1697; burials, 1694. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £53, in the gift of the Rev. F. W. Bussell D.D. of Mundham, Norfolk, and held since 1893 by the Rev. William Bentley, who is also rector of and resides at Honeychurch. Nearly the whole of the land belongs to the Luxton family, by whom it has been held since the reign of Queen Elizabeth, previous to which the manor and tithes belonged to Hartland Abbey. West Brushford farm is the property of Mrs. W. Luxton, of Tawbridge, Coleridge, and Lower Reeve of A. W. Luxton esq. of Brushford Barton. The soil is dun land; subsoil, clayey. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The acreage is 920; rateable value, £740; the population in 1901 was 69.

BUCKERELL is a parish and village on the river Otter, 2½ miles north-east from Sidmouth Junction station on the main line of the South Western railway, 3 west from Honiton and 15 east from Exeter, in the Eastern division of the county, Hemyock hundred, Honiton petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Ottery and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of SS. Mary and Giles is a fine cruciform building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, transepts and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 5 bells: a magnificent old oak screen divides the chancel from the nave, partly restored in 1892 by Hems, of Exeter, and there is a 15th century piscina and a monument to Samuel Graves, Admiral of the White, of Hembury Fort, 1717: five of the windows are stained: in the vestry is a tablet which gives the date of the church as 1430, but from a charter, by which Queen Elizabeth bestowed the advowson and tithes upon the Dean and Chapter of Exeter in perpetuity, it appears that the benefice existed in 1280, when it was in possession of the neighbouring Abbey of Dankseswell: the church will seat 198 persons. The register of baptisms and marriages dates from the year 1654; burials, 1653. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £153, with residence and 3 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and held since 1884 by the Rev. Alfred William Ford Th. Assoc. of King's College, London. The poor have £8 3s. 6d. a year distributed in blankets and clothing, derived from £272 10s. 9d. in the funds, which was purchased with £300 left in 1817 by the late Rev. Thomas Howe. The mansion of Hembury Fort is the seat of the Rev. the Hon. Graham Colborne M.A. rector of Dittisham; the view from the fort itself, a fortified camp occupying a site of considerable elevation and covering an area of about one and one-fifth acre, is extensive and beautiful, and includes the vale of the Otter and the sea at Budleigh Salterton. Deer Park, the residence of Walter Fell Smith esq. is situated in the midst of beautiful scenery, about midway between Honiton and Feniton: according to tradition it was in ancient times a royal hunting box, this part of the country being famous for the chase of the deer and the otter, from whence the river close by derives its name; the park is about 30 acres in extent: attached to the mansion, which is over 150 years old, is a private Catholic chapel. Buckerell Lodge is now the residence of William Steer Riding M.D. The land is all freehold. Alexander Macartney Read esq. of Silvertown, Exeter, William Alexander Lindsay M.A., K.C., F.S.A., Windsor Herald, College of Arms, Queen Victoria street, London E.C. the Rev. the Hon. Graham Colborne M.A. R. M. Davy esq. J.P. of Topsham, and Mrs. Northcote, 62 St. Andrew's road, Exmouth, are the chief landowners. The soil is clay; subsoil, exceedingly rich and chiefly marl. The chief crops are oats, peas, beans, roots and pasturage. The area is 1,336 acres of land and 3 of water; rateable value, £2,461; the population in 1901 was 217.

By Local Government Board Order 16,349, which came in operation March 24, 1884, detached parts of this parish were transferred to Awliscombe and Gittisham, and parts of those parishes added to Buckerell.

Weston is a hamlet one mile distant, partly in this parish, but mostly in the parish of Awliscombe.

BUCKFASTLEIGH is a small manufacturing town on the river Dart and the high road from Plymouth to Exeter and London, having a station on the branch of the Great Western railway from Totnes to Ashburton, and is 22 miles south-west from Exeter, 6 north-west from Totnes, 21 by road and 30½ by rail from Plymouth and 105 by road from London and 230 by rail, in the Southern division of the county, Stanborough hundred, Stanborough and Coleridge petty sessional division, Totnes union and county court district, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The scenery around here, with Dartmoor in the distance, is very beautiful, and the trout and salmon fishing in the Dart is very good.

Under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1884" (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73) the original parish has been divided into East and West, the former governed by an Urban District Council of nine members formed December 4, 1894. The church of the Holy Trinity, standing on a lofty eminence, is an ancient edifice of stone in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and transepts, south porch and an embattled western tower with spire containing 6 bells: there is a memorial window erected by Mr. and Mrs. John Fleming, of Bigadon, to their daughter, and two others to a former vicar and his wife, and to a Mr. James Powning and his son: the stained east window, with four smaller ones, were the gift of Richard John King esq. who formerly resided in the parish: the west window was erected by Miss Lowndes in memory of her parents: the carved oak pulpit is the work of the late Mr. John Pope: the covers of the Bible are also exquisitely carved: in 1897 the chancel was renovated and refloored, and a new altar presented, the cost being defrayed by John Fleming esq. J.P. of Bigadon, and his wife; there are 400 sittings: east of the church, but detached from it, is a portion of a building, apparently of Early English date, supposed to have been an anchorite's cell, and overgrown with ivy. The parish register dates from the year 1602. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £225, with 29½ acres of glebe, and residence, in the gift of and held since 1891 by the Rev. William Henry Browne Tucker M.A. of St. Mary Hall, Oxford, and surrogate. St. Luke's chapel of ease in Plymouth road was erected in 1894 on a site presented many years ago by the late J. May esq. of Barkington, and was dedicated by the Bishop of Exeter, October 22nd in the same year; the cost, amounting to about £1,800, was defrayed by subscriptions, £500 being given by Mr. J. Symons. The great tithes, arising out of the lands comprised within the manor of Brook and the town manor, belong mostly to the Earl of Macclesfield, and those arising out of the lands within the manor of Kilbury to Jeffery Edwards esq. and the rector for the time being of the sinecure rectory of Ermington in this county, now the Rev. William Hale Andrews M.A. of Carlton Colville, Suffolk; the last mentioned great tithes formed part of the possessions of the monastery of Montague, in the county of Somerset, on its dissolution. There is a Wesleyan chapel in Chapel street and a smaller one at Buckfast; also a Congregational chapel, built at a cost of about £1,350 in 1872. Buckfastleigh Town Hall and Institute, in Bossel road, erected on freehold ground at a cost of £1,350, is a building of local limestone, with Bath stone and brick facings, and comprises a spacious hall, 6ft. by 31ft. with a stage for various purposes measuring 23ft. by 14ft.; the hall will seat 450 persons: there is also a library, billiard room, with a large table, the gift of H. B. Mildmay esq. and club and reading rooms, with a residence for the caretaker: the whole is managed by a committee of 12 members. The woollen manufacture is carried on here and large contracts are executed for the supply of navy serge and blankets: Messrs. Hamlyn Bros. Lim. (who have 2 mills) employ about 500 persons, and Messrs. John Berry & Sons Lim. about 400; Messrs. Churchward have a wool-combing factory, and there is a paper mill and an iron foundry in the town and two tanneries; there are also extensive lime and limestone quarries belonging to and worked by Messrs. William Richard Coulton and Sons, and in the neighbourhood are tin and copper mines, but at the present time they are not worked. Black Rock and Bakers pits, near the parish church, have several openings leading into a series of caverns which extend for considerable distances. Fairs are held here on the third Thursday in June and the second Thursday in September. Charities producing about £50 yearly are distributed in blankets, money and bread. The abbey of Buckfastre or Buckfast is said by common local tradition, and probably with truth, to be more ancient by some centuries than the neighbouring town of Buckfastleigh; which, in fact, was originally the "ley" or pasture belonging to the abbey: the Saxon name was Buckfasten, i.e. "deer-faestness," as appears from Bishop Aelfwold's charter, granted in 1016: the Saxon abbey of St. Mary of Buckfasten was founded in the reign of King Edgar, about A.D. 980: in the reign of Henry II. it was refounded by Ethelward de Pomeri as a Cistercian monastery, and colonized from Savigny in Normandy, and eventually became the richest house of that order in Devonshire; at the period of its surrender by the last abbot, Gabriel Donne, there were 10 monks, and revenues estimated at £466: after the Dissolution the roofs of the abbey buildings were stripped of their lead, and for nearly two centuries the ruins appear to have furnished building materials for the locality: the site remained uninhabited till 1796, when the erection of a house in the Gothic style on the west side of the destroyed cloisters was begun, and finished in 1806: the abbey, situated 1 mile north of the village on the right bank of the river Dart, included a fine church, 200 feet long internally, and consisting of choir with aisles and eastern chapels, transepts 85 feet north to south, also with eastern chapels, nave with aisles, and probably a central tower; on the south side were cloisters, 94 feet square, with sacristy adjoining the south transept, next, the chapter house, 40 feet by 20 feet, slype and frater, or common room; on the south side the frater (refectory) and kitchen; and on the west side the "Domus Conversorum"; at the south-west angle of the cloister was a Perpendicular tower with stair turret, still in good preservation, and the tithe barn, a large structure 100 feet in length, is also extant, but of the church, and other buildings, only scattered fragments, some archways and other entrances and portions of the foundations are left. In 1882 the abbey was purchased from Dr. Gale, of Plymouth, by a colony of Benedictine monks from Pierrequi-vire in Burgundy, by whom the monastery has been partially rebuilt on its ancient foundations; and, pending the restoration of the Abbey church, which it was intended to rebuild in the Early English style, a small church, dedicated to the Immaculate Heart of Mary, has been erected to the south of the abbot's tower, which was carefully restored in 1883, under the direction of F. A. Walters esq. F.S.A. architect, who has also superintended the recent excavation of the site; the great road in this church was executed by Hems, of Exeter; the Right Rev. Stephen Denis, abbot; the Rev. Benedict Gariador, prior. The house called "Buckfast Abbey," built out of the materials of the monastery in 1805-6, has beneath it a Saxon crypt: the house is now occupied by the community mentioned above. The monks find employment in manufacturing a kind of salve for wounds &c. the composition of which is a secret. The chief land-owners are the Earl of Macclesfield, who is lord of the manor, John Fleming esq. J.P. of Bigadon, William R. Coulton, John Bovey esq. J. Bickford esq. and Messrs. Hamlyn Brothers. The soil is loamy; subsoil, slate and limestone; the chief crops being wheat, barley, pasture and apples. A large quantity of cider is made, most of which is of very superior quality. The area of East Buckfastleigh and Urban Council District is 1,260 acres; rateable value, £8,768; the area of West Buckfastleigh is 3,601 acres; rateable value, £2,400; the united population in 1901 was 2,520.

BUCKLAND BREWER is a parish and village, 6 miles south from Bideford station and 4½ west from Great Torrington terminal station of a branch of the London and South Western railway, in the North Western division of the county, Shebbear hundred, Bideford petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Hartland, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The original church of St. Mary and St. Benedict, a Norman structure, was destroyed by lightning in 1399, but an enriched Norman doorway still remains. The present church, rebuilt in 1779, is an edifice of stone in the Norman and Later styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, built in 1399, 76 feet high and containing 6 bells, the original 4 having been recast into 6 by Taylor, of Oxford, in 1825, at a cost of £148, and in 1899 the entire peal was rehung by J. Taylor and Co. at a cost of £280; weight of tenor, 12cwt. 3qrs. 16lbs.: the church, with the exception of the tower, the pinnacles of which were renewed, was rebuilt in 1879-80, under the direction of Mr. Hooper, architect, of Hatherleigh; a new lych gate and porch were also erected, the total cost being about £1,550: in the Orleigh chapel are monuments to the Dennys family, former possessors of the Orleigh estate: these include a large monument with effigies of a gentleman and lady kneeling at a desk facing each other, three kneeling children and some infants; at the top of the monument are three shields of arms and the motto:—"Ita Deo placuit"; at the back an inscription to Anthony Dennys esq. of Orleigh, ob. 19th June, 1641, and Elizabeth (Wyse) and Gertrude (Grenville), his wives: on flat stones are inscriptions to William Dennys, of Orley, ob. 10th June, 1605 and Elizabeth (Dennys), wife of William Alston esq. of Strixton, ob. 4th June, 1664: John Davey, of Orleigh, d. 1710 and Maria, his wife, d. 1709: there are 343 sittings. The register dates from the year 1604. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £126, with residence and 9 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Crown, and held since 1898 by the Rev. John Heywood-Waddington M.A. Owens College, Victoria University, Manchester. In the village is a Wesleyan chapel and one for Bible Christians. At Ekeworthy is a Baptist chapel and there are Bible Christian chapels at Thornhill Head and Twitching. The "Hester Turner" charity of about £3 yearly is distributed to poor parishioners at Christmas. Here is an encampment, called "Henbury Fort," with a double rampart, possibly of Roman origin. Orleigh Court, the residence of Thomas Rogers esq. J.P. is a fine old Gothic building, with a large entrance hall. The Hon. M. G. K. Rolle, who is lord of the manor, John Curzon Moore-Stevens esq. of Winscott, Marland, Thomas Rogers esq. J.P. and Lieut.-Col. Richard Arthur Moore-Stevens J.P. of Cross, Torrington, are the chief landowners. The soil is clayey; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 6,111 acres; rateable value, £3,267; the population in 1901 was 639 in the civil and 632 in the ecclesiastical parish. Under the provisions of the Divided Parishes Act Milford was transferred to Buckland Brewer from Frithestock, and by Local Government Board Order 14,829 Howley Green and Hill were added to Parkham from Buckland Brewer, for civil purposes.

Tythecott is a hamlet, 2 miles south.

BUCKLAND MONACHORUM is a parish and village, bounded on the west by the river Tavy, $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles south-west from Horrabridge station and $2\frac{1}{2}$ north-west from Yelverton junction, in this parish, on the Tavistock and Launceston branch of the Great Western railway, and $4\frac{1}{2}$ south from Tavistock, in the Western division of the county, Roborough hundred, Midland Roborough petty sessional division, Tavistock union and county court district, and in the rural deanery of Tavistock, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Andrew is an edifice of stone in the Third-Pointed or Perpendicular style, and consists of chancel, with aisles, nave of five bays, north and south transepts, south porch and a fine western tower with four crocketed pinnacles and containing a clock and 6 bells: in the church is a fine monument by the elder Bacon to George Augustus (Eliott), 1st baron Heathfield, the famous defender of Gibraltar during the period 1779-83, against the combined forces of France and Spain; his lordship married Anne Pollexfen (Drake), daughter of Sir Francis Henry Drake bart. and died at Kalkofen, near Aix-la-Chapelle, 6th July, 1790, and was buried here in the Drake vault; there are also inscribed stones to the Crymes family, including William Crymes, 1641: the south side of the chancel is vaulted with granite, and the nave has a fine open roof: there are good carved oak bench ends in the nave and aisles and richly carved modern oak stalls in the chancel: the screen across the tower arch is composed of fragments of an ancient rood screen: a modern stained window in the north transept represents four of the chief missionaries of the British Church, S. Patrick, S. Columba, S. Boniface and Bishop the gift of Earl Fortescue, and held since 1894 by the Rev. Ernest George Beckwith M.A. of New College, Oxford, who resides at Filleigh. There are small charities of about 25s. yearly value. Earl Fortescue is lord of the manor and chief landowner. The soil is loamy; subsoil, skillett. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 1,160 acres; rateable value, £1,520; the population in 1901 was 96.

re-laid, the oak roof opened, the interior re-seated with oak benches, incorporating the old work, and a vestry erected, the expense being defrayed by William James Browne esq. as a memorial to his son: there are 91 sittings. The register dates from the year 1622. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £145, including 87 $\frac{1}{2}$ acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1875 by the Rev. John Robert Powell M.A. of Jesus College, Oxford, chaplain to the Earl of Halesbury, and surrogate. A small charity, the interest of £10, left by the Rev. William Walter, a former rector, is given to the poor yearly. Mrs. Vallance, the present tenant of Bradleigh, has in her possession a finely carved oak bedstead, date 1605. Arthur Scott Browne esq. who is lord of the manor, Lord Clinton, John Reddaway esq. of Curworthy House, Inwardleigh, and the rector are the chief landowners. The soil is clay; subsoil, stone. The crops are oats. The area is 3,011 acres; rateable value, £1,846; the population in 1901 was 183.

Patteson, with panels below the figures illustrating their lives and deaths: the east window retains some ancient glass, illustrating events in the life of St. Andrew, and on the south side of the chancel is a memorial window to the late Sir Thomas Trayton Fuller Elliott Drake bart. d. 6th June, 1870: in 1886 the remains of an old piscina were found in the south transept wall, which also shows traces of ancient colouring: the porch has an oak roof, and above the entrance is a curiously canopied niche, once containing a figure of St. Andrew: here are also the remains of a stone shaft once supporting a stoup: a Norman font, dug out of the foundations of this church in 1857, is now in the church of St. Paul, Yelverton: there are 300 sittings. The register of burials dates from 1538; marriages, 1540; baptisms, 1552. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £255, including 49 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of and held since 1855 by the Rev. Richard James Hayne M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford, prebendary of Exeter and chaplain to the Bishop of Exeter. In the vicarage grounds are remains of the ancient vicarage house, believed to have been the residence of John Toker, last abbot of Buckland. Milton, a hamlet $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles from Buckland, is remarkable for its scenery, at once singular and romantic. The church of the Holy Spirit, a building of stone, erected in 1878 at a cost of £1,200, consists of chancel, nave, west porch and a bell turret, and has 120 sittings. The temporary church of St. Paul, Yelverton, was erected in 1895, and has 180 sittings. The ancient font of Buckland parish is preserved in this church. There are Wesleyan and Baptist chapels here, and one for Bible Christians called "Rock chapel," at Yelverton. A cemetery of one and a half acres was formed in 1882 at a cost of £400, and is now under the control of the parish council. The ancient stone cross, which formerly stood in the centre of the village, was restored in 1897, in commemoration of the Jubilee of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, and now stands in the churchyard. At Yelverton is a Public Hall for entertainments &c. There are charities producing £31 yearly, given by Matthew Elford esq. by will, 5th March, 1723; Catherine Ilbert, by will dated 17th August, 1759; John Burrows, lieut. R.N. by will dated 22nd June, 1818, and others; these charities are chiefly distributed in bread and money. A fair, formerly held here on Trinity Monday, is now obsolete. Here is the Bertha Consols Limited copper and mundic mine; the Devon Poldice and the Franco Consols copper and tin mines, none of which are now worked. Roborough Down, upon which there are two barrows, is in this parish. An ancient inscribed stone, formerly standing in the village, is now in the vicarage garden at Tavistock. The abbey of SS. Mary and Benedict was founded here on the eastern bank of the Tavy in 1278 by Amicia, widow of Baldwin de Redvers, 7th Earl of Devon, for monks of the Cistercian order and colonized from Quarr Abbey, Isle of Wight; the abbey was surrendered by John Toker, or Tucker, the last abbot, the revenues at the Dissolution being valued at £241 17s. 9d. there being then 12 monks, besides the abbot. The site of the abbey church and monastic buildings was granted 26th May, 1541, to Sir Richard Greynfeld, or Grenville, kt. of Bideford, for a sum of £233 3s. 4d. Sir Richard Grenville in 1575 converted the abbey church into a mansion, belonging to the Drake family, and now called "Buckland Abbey," which incorporates the piers and arches once supporting the central tower of the church: the house, surrounded by pleasant grounds, once the abbey orchard, contains some interesting relics of Sir Francis Drake, including a drum, and his portrait by Jansens, dated 1594; a noble barn, 180 feet in length, with a profusion of buttresses, also remains, and adjoining the stables is a low tower of the Perpendicular period. The abbey is now the residence of Lady Drake. Bickham, a mansion here, is now occupied by Mrs. Phillips. The Right Hon. Sir Massey Lopes bart. P.C. of Maristow, is lord of the manor, Sir F. G. A. Fuller-Elliott-Drake bart. of Nutwell Court, and the Duke of Bedford are chief land-owners. The soil is various; subsoil, clay. The land is principally pasture. The area is 6,685 acres of land, 30 of water and 8 of tidal water; rateable value, £11,663; the population of the parish of Buckland in 1891 was 1,414, inclusive of the ecclesiastical parish of St. John, Horrabridge.

BUCKLAND-IN-THE-MOOR is a parish and village adjoining Dartmoor Forest, $\frac{3}{4}$ miles north-west from Ashburton station on the Ashburton branch of the Great Western railway, and 10 west from Newton Abbot, in the Mid division of the county, Hayter hundred, Teignbridge petty sessional division, Newton Abbot union and county court district, rural deanery of Moreton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church, dedicated to St. Peter, as appears from the will of Robert Carsalegh, dated 22nd June, 1547 (1 Edward VI.) and proved at Exeter, is an ancient building, chiefly in the Perpendicular style, and consisting of chancel, nave, separated from a north aisle by an arcade of three arches on clustered piers, north transept, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 5 bells: the font is of late Norman date and has the zigzag ornament and cable moulding: the screen is handsome and has figures of saints in the panels, and at the back are grotesque paintings. Buckland church formerly belonged to Torre Abbey, but had been alienated previously to the dissolution of monasteries:
there are 120 sittings. The register dates from—marriages, 1694; baptisms, 1692; burials, 1728. The living is a rectory, annexed to the vicarage of Ashburton, joint net yearly value £350, including 14 acres of glebe, in the

BUCKLAND TOUT SAINTS is a township and chapelry, 3 miles north-east from Kingsbridge and 3 south-east from Loddiswell station, on the Kingsbridge branch of the Great Western railway, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Coleridge, petty sessional division of Stanborough and Coleridge, union and county court district of Kingsbridge, rural deanery of Woodleigh, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. A mill stream flows to the west of the township. The chapel of St. Peter, rebuilt in 1779, is a building of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, transepts, north porch and an embattled western tower containing one bell: there are monuments to the Clark and Brunsell families: the chapel was thoroughly restored in 1890-4, at a cost of £500, and a stained east window erected to the Brunsell family by Mrs. Irwin, late of Buckland Manor House: the chapel affords 125 sittings. The register dates from the year 1807. The living is a chapelry, annexed to the vicarage of Loddiswell, joint net yearly value £241, including 114 acres of glebe at Loddiswell, in the gift of Mesdames Cameron, Cooper and Richards, and held since 1887 by the Rev. Thomas Francis Boulthbee gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and held since 1900 by the Rev. Richard James Bond, who is also a surrogate, and resides at Ashburton. There is a bequest of £38 yearly value for repairing the church. Buckland Beacon, a point about 1,200 feet high, affords a very extensive view, and the sea-coast from Teignmouth to Torquay is plainly discernible on a clear day. Buckland Court, the seat of Baldwin John Pollexfen Bastard esq.

D.L., J.P. is a handsome mansion of stone, commanding a fine view of the Dart Valley and Holne Chase: the extensive drives in the Buckland woods, surrounding the mansion, are open to carriage visitors three days in the week during the summer months. B. J. P. Bastard esq. is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is of a loamy nature; the subsoil is principally granite. The chief crops are cereals and roots of all kinds. The area is 1,488 acres of land and 5 of water; rateable value, £800; the population in 1901 was 87.

woodland scenery. Slade is the seat of Mrs. Arthur. The area is 1,870 acres; rateable value, £2,174; the population in 1901 was 258.

Goveton and Lidstone are hamlets, ecclesiastically attached to Charleton parish, but for civil purposes have been annexed to Buckland Tout Saints by Local Government Board Order 16,312, March 24, 1884. The Mission chapel at Goveton is of stone and seats 150 persons; services are conducted at 6.30 p.m. on Sundays. At Goveton are the kennels of the South Pool Harriers, belonging to H. F. Brunskill esq.

WEST BUCKLAND is a parish and village, pleasantly seated on an acclivity, $\frac{2}{3}$ miles north from Filleigh station, on the Taunton and Barnstaple branch of the Great Western railway and 6 north-west from South Great Western railway, 6 north-west from South Molton and 8 east from Barnstaple, in the Northern division of the county, Braunton hundred, South Molton petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of South Molton, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Peter is a building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of a chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch and a lofty embattled western tower containing 6 bells: the east window is stained: in the church are memorials of William Butterfield, d. 1777, and his wife, d. 1771: in the early part of the present century this church possessed an ornate and interesting screen, but on the rebuilding of the church it was taken down and not replaced, and in 1880, its then remaining fragments were incorporated in the screen of Swymbridge church: the church, with the exception of the tower, was entirely rebuilt about 1860, and affords 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1684. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £135, including 35 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Arthur Francis Basset esq. of Tehidy Park, Cornwall, and held since 1880 by the Rev. Josiah Newman M.A. of Magdalene College, Cambridge. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. Stoodley Manor was the original seat of the Buckinghams; it is now a farm, the property of Mrs. Robertson Buckingham. Murry Thorne George esq. is lord of the manor; Earl Fortescue is chief landowner. The soil is sandy; the subsoil is skillett. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley and artificial grass. The area is 2,591 acres; rateable value, £1,357; the population in 1901 was 363.

Schools.

The Devon County School stands on high ground, 650 feet above sea level, partly in this parish & partly in that of East Buckland: the school was founded in 1861 by the late Earl Fortescue & Prebendary Brereton, to provide a public school education for boys of the middle classes of this & the adjoining counties. The buildings, erected at a cost of £12,000, are adapted for the reception of nearly 200 boarders & attached are playing fields & shrubberies, covering about 24 acres. The late Earl Fortescue also gave £1,000 to endow a chaplain to the school, at the same time rebuilding & enlarging East Buckland church for the use of the boys; Wm. Arthur Knight M.A. head master; Adelbert Taylor, sec.; Rev. Ernest Charles Harries B.A. chaplain; Robert Heron Spear B.A. Adelbert Taylor & Henry Pickard, assistant masters

EAST BUDLEIGH is a parish and village, with a station called "Budleigh," on the newly-constructed branch of the London and South Western railway from Tipton to Salterton. It is pleasantly situated in the vale of the Otter, 2 miles north-east from Budleigh Salterton, which is on the sea coast, at the mouth of the estuary of the Otter, 11 miles south-east-by-east from Exeter, 6 north-east from Exmouth and 5 south-west-by-west from Sidmouth, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of East Budleigh, petty sessional division of Woodbury, union of St. Thomas, county court district of Exeter, rural deanery of Aylesbeare and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The village is well supplied with water, free of charge, through mains laid by the Hon. Mark G. Kerr Rolle, at a cost of £320, and distributed through eight taps, provided by the inhabitants at a cost of £23; a stone, with inscription to commemorate the Jubilee of the late Queen Victoria of 1887 has since been erected in the village. The church of All Saints is an ancient edifice of stone, in mixed styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower, containing a clock and 6 bells, 5 being cast, apparently, in 1755, and one added in 1875: the chancel was repaired about 1853: in the nave is a tomb with floriated cross to Joan, and wife of Walter Raleigh, inscribed:—"Orate pro aia: Johanne Rale, Noverc: Waltri Rale Armig. Que obiit x die Mensis Junii ano D...": the church retains benches with finely-carved ends, displaying foliage, tracery and figures supporting shields of arms of the Chiverston, Courtenay, St. Clere and Tidswell families, and dating from 1534, and there is a fair screen of five bays: the church was restored in 1885-7 at a cost of £1,100, when the galleries and the rooms in the tower which disfigured the west end and blocked up a fine window were removed, and the whole of the west end and both aisles re-seated in oak, the flooring re-laid throughout with Purbeck stone and a vestry and organ chamber built. In 1894 a carved oak pulpit, by Hems of Exeter, and costing over £200, was presented, and in 1896 the west window was filled with stained glass by the Hon. Mark G. K. Rolle, both as memorials to the late Mr. Lipscombe, for 27 years agent for the Rolle estate. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1555; marriages, 1556; burials, 1562. The living is a discharged vicarage, net yearly value £230, with residence and 9 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Hon. Mark G. Kerr Rolle, and held since 1884 by the Rev. William Frederick Green M.A. of Oriol College, Oxford. The great tithes are held by the Hon. Mark George Kerr Rolle D.L., J.P. of Bicton, J. Askew Bell esq. Edward James esq. and George Beloe Ellis esq. There is a Congregational chapel in the village and a meeting house for the Plymouth Brethren. Sir Walter Raleigh was born here in 1552, at a house called "Hayes Farm," or "Hayes Barton," one mile from the village. The charities amount to about £250 yearly, £84 of which was left by the late John Hine esq. of Leeford: this charity is disposed of as follows:—£29 for the parochial schools; £27 ros. to the poor of the parish and £27 ros. to the East Budleigh and Budleigh Salterton Benevolent Society; there is also a sum of £73 7s. arising from the "Non nobis Domine" charity for the poor. The Hon. Mark George Kerr Rolle, of Stevenstone, is lord of the manor and chief landowner. The soil is sandy; subsoil, marl. The chief crops are the usual cereals, especially barley. The area is 3,173 acres of land, 6 of water, 5 of tidal water and 42 of foreshore; rateable value, £3,949; the population in 1901 was 776.

Kersbrook is a small hamlet. Great and Little Knowle are hamlets, and are given with Budleigh Salterton, which has been under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1895," formed into a township, and will be found under a separate heading.

BUDLEIGH SALTERTON is a seaport and rising watering place, and has a station on a branch of the London and South Western railway, which joins the Sidmouth branch at Tipton, 6½ miles distant, with an intermediate station near Otterton Bridge and East Budleigh, called "Budleigh" station. This place is also about 5 miles east-by-north from Exmouth terminal station on the London and South Western railway, from whence a line is now (1901) in course of construction, and 8 south-east from Exeter, and is in the Eastern division of the county, East Budleigh hundred, Woodbury petty sessional division, St. Thomas union, Exeter county court district, rural deanery of Aylesbeare and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. It was formerly governed by a Local Board of 9 members, formed in 1878, but under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894," it is now controlled by an Urban District Council. By the same Act it was formed into a civil parish, and by an Order in Council of May 22nd, 1900, the district was constituted a separate ecclesiastical parish. Budleigh Salterton has risen during the present century from a collection of fishing huts into a fashionable watering place, pleasantly situated on the south coast and built along the bottom and sides of a small but picturesque valley opening to the sea. A stream of water flows through the centre of the main street, which occupies the bed of the valley, and is crossed by a number of small bridges, giving the place a singularly pleasing appearance. The streets are lighted with gas from works established in 1867. The town is supplied with excellent water from springs at Sherbrook and

Kersbrook, the latter being an additional supply obtained in 1894, when a reservoir with a capacity of 150,000 gallons, pumping station &c. were erected by the Urban District Council at a cost of £1,080. The cliffs, rising perpendicularly from 100 to 250 feet, are occasionally broken into romantic caves with rocks jutting out into the sea, and command fine sea views. For some distance along the coast here, large circular pebbles are found, which are used for paving and building purposes; the hill sides on either hand are dotted with villas, or broken into terraces, giving the place a most picturesque appearance. The view from the cliffs embraces Peak Hill, with the valley of the Sid, Salcombe Height and the Dorsetshire coast to Portland on the east and Berry Head on the west, with Haldon Hills and the valley of the Exe to Woodbury Common northwards. The church of St. Peter was erected in 1893 at a cost of over £10,000, defrayed by the Hon. Mark G. Kerr Rolle, and is a building of limestone nobbling, with Monk's Park and Douling dressings, in the Early Geometrical Decorated style, from the designs of Mr. G. H. Fellowes Prynne, architect, of London and Plymouth, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, transepts, south porch, lady chapel, vestries and an organ chamber: the stained east window was presented by the Hon. Mark G. Kerr Rolle; in the lady chapel are memorial windows to Mrs. Patrick: and there are two others presented by Lady Alice Ewing: the church affords 800 sittings. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £185, in the gift of the Hon. Mark G. Kerr Rolle, and held since 1900 by the Rev. Rees Charles Price M.A. of St. Edmund

Hall Oxford. A new burial ground with a lich-gate and wall laid out and planted with trees, was presented to the parish in 1900, by the Hon. Mark G. Kerr Rolle. The Wesleyan chapel was erected in 1817, at a cost of £1,700, and has registers of births and baptisms from 1820. There is a baptist chapel at Little Knowle, built in 1884. The Public Rooms, erected in 1861, at a cost of £850, by a limited company, are on the West road, and comprise a large room used for concerts and lectures, capable of seating 350 persons, a reading room and a library, containing over 1,000 volumes, in connection with the Literary Institution. The Masonic Hall, erected in 1891, in West Hill road, is a structure of brick with freestone dressings, and consists of reception and retiring rooms and large hall, capable of seating 200 persons. The early closing day is on Thursday. The Golf Club has excellent links one mile from Salterton, overlooking the valley of the Otter and commanding extensive land and sea views; there is a commodious pavilion with ladies' and gentlemen's dressing rooms, lockers &c. New golf links, with a course of 18 holes, are now being laid out by the Hon. Mark Rolle, on West Down Beacon. The Croquet and Lawn Tennis Club have excellent grounds, comprising 7 tennis courts and 3 croquet grounds; an open croquet tournament is held annually. There are branches here of the Wilts and Dorset Banking Co. Limited, the Devon and Cornwall Banking Co. Limited and the Exeter Bank (Sanders, Snow and Co.). The "Rolle Hotel," which is well-appointed and commodious, was renovated in 1897 and a billiard room added: capital trout and other fishing in the preserved portion of the river Otter is available to visitors staying at the hotel. The Cottage Hospital, on the East Budleigh road, occupies, with its grounds, an area of about three-quarters of an acre, given by the Hon. Mark Rolle: it is an edifice of red brick, erected in 1888 at a cost of £900, in commemoration of H.M. Queen Victoria's Jubilee, and has 14 beds, and an endowment of £1,000, given by the Rev. James Boucher M.A. curate of Littleham and Exmouth, who has also given another sum of £1,000 for the endowment of a Needy Patients' and Surgical Aid fund in connection with the hospital. During the year 1900, 53 patients were admitted. Here is a coastguard station with rocket life-saving apparatus (No. 42). The port is under the jurisdiction of the Exeter Custom House. The area is 783 acres; rateable value, £10,285; the population in 1901 was 1,883.

GREAT KNOWLE, 1 mile north-west, AND LITTLE KNOWLE, adjoining Budleigh Salterton, are hamlets. A mission church was erected at Great Knowle in 1893 on ground given by the Hon. Mark Rolle; it is a plain structure of brick, consisting of chancel and nave only, and has 150 sittings; it is served by lay readers. Leeford, the residence of Lieut.-Col. Herbert John Onchertlony Walker J.P. (late R.A.), occupies a well-sheltered site, in the midst of a spacious lawn.

BULKWORTHY is a parish and village, on the river Torridge, 8 miles south-west from Torrington station on a branch of the London and South Western railway and 12 south-west from Bideford, in the North Western division of the county, Shebbear hundred, Bideford petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Holsworthy, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The chapel of St. Michael, built by Sir William Hankford K.B. Chief Justice of the King's Bench, 1414-22, is an edifice of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle and a turret containing 2 bells, one dated 1640: the lower part of a screen, cut down to the level of the pews, existed until 1847: the chapel was restored in 1873 at an expense of £587, chiefly defrayed by J. C. Moore-Stevens esq. and affords about 120 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1714; burials and marriages, 1724. The living is a chapelry, annexed to the vicarage of Abbots Bickington, joint net yearly value £98, in the gift of the Hon. Mark G. Kerr Rolle, and held since 1889 by the Rev. George Pinchin Allan Blomfield B.A. of St. Catherine's College, Cambridge, who resides at Abbots Bickington. There

BURLESCOMBE is a scattered village and parish, on the borders of Somerset, with a station on the Bristol and Exeter section of the main line of the Great Western railway, and is 175 miles from London and near a tunnel three-quarters of a mile in length, between this and Wellington railway stations; it is 10 miles east-north-east from Tiverton and 5 south-west from Wellington, in the North Eastern division of this county, Bampton hundred, Cullompton petty sessional division, Wellington union and county court district, rural deanery of East Tiverton and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. There are four tithings: Burlescombe Town, in the hundred of Bampton, and South Appledore, Ayshford and Westleigh, or Leigh Boty, in the hundred of Halberton. The church of St. Mary, situated on elevated ground, is a fine building of stone, chiefly in the Perpendicular style, and consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, north porch, and an embattled western tower with turret containing 5 bells, dating from 1636 to 1642: the church retains a highly decorated rood screen, repaired about 1865, and a fine altar tomb enriched with canopies, under which are monks holding shields: in the north aisle are marble mural monuments to Roger Ayshford, ob. 1610, and to Elizabeth Ayshford, daughter of Viscount Wilmot of Athlone, ob. 1635: a tombstone on the floor of the north aisle has the following inscription:—"H.A.E. Christ Jesus have mercy upon us. E.M.V. 1563": a fine mosaic reredos was erected in 1896, and in 1887 a carved oak pulpit was provided in commemoration of the Jubilee of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria: the building was repaired during the years 1847 to 1856, and has 400 sittings: the deed of endowment bears date 1324. The register dates from the year 1579, but there are no entries of baptisms from 1583 to 1588, of marriages from 1581 to 1588, or of burials from 1582 to 1588; and no entries of any kind from 1660 to 1688. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £196, including 19 acres of glebe (value £21), with residence, in the gift of William Ayshford Sanford esq. and held since 1866 by the Rev. Thomas Charles Tanner LL.B. of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge. The parish has the privilege of appointing a governor to the Ayshford Grammar school at Uffculme. There is a chapel of the 14th century at Ayshford Court, adjoining the former manor house of the Ayshford family, which is now occupied by Mr. John Merry, farmer; the chapel is endowed with £14 per annum for fourteen lectures yearly, and was thoroughly repaired in 1860: the Rev. T. C. Tanner LL.B. has been chaplain since 1866. At Westleigh is a is a chapel for Bible Christians. John Curzon Moore-Stevens esq. of Winscott, Great Torrington, who is lord of the manor, and Miss Dayman, of Mambury, East Putford, are chief landowners. The soil is loamy; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are oats and wheat. The area is 1,498 acres of land and 6 of water; rateable value, £647; the population in 1901 was 103.

Hankford, 1 mile north-west; Stowford, 1 north; Heytown, three-quarters west; and Waffapool, 2 miles north, are places here.

By Local Government Board Order 14,830, which came into operation March 25, 1885, Eastacott, Bower and Muddy Pit were transferred from Frithelstock, in Torrington union, to Bulkworthy.

Congregational chapel, erected in 1818. At Canon's Leigh are the remains of a Benedictine nunnery, founded by Maud, Countess of Devon, in the time of Henry III. in place of a house of Austin Canons, established by W. Clavel in the reign of Henry II.; it was dedicated to the Virgin Mary, St. John the Evangelist and St. Etheldreda, and in the spring of the year 1539, when it was surrendered into the hands of Henry VIII. there were 18 nuns, and revenues estimated at £197; the greater portion of the buildings was then razed. A cattle market is held on the last Monday in the month. Here are limekilns and extensive quarries, the property of the Westleigh Stone and Lime Co. Limited, yielding an inexhaustible supply of blue lias lime and stone for macadam and paving sets, and connected by a permanent siding with the Great Western railway. William Ayshford Sanford esq. of Nynhead Court, Somerset, who is lord of the manor, the Dunsford trustees, Richard Bowerman esq. Richard Hall Clarke esq. of Bridwell House, Halberton, W. Lloyd esq. W. Gimblett, of Dunster, and Mrs. Rayer, of Holcombe Rogus, are chief landowners. The soil is light; the subsoil is limestone and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 3,627 acres of land and 18 of water; rateable value, £9,624; the population in 1891 was 719 and in 1901 was 677.

South Appledore, 1½ miles south; Ayshford, 3 miles south-west and Westleigh, 1 mile west, are tithings.

BURRINGTON is a parish and village, about 2 miles south-west from South Molton Road station and about the same distance south from the Portsmouth Arms station, both on the North Devon branch of the London and South Western railway (the latter being in the parish), 4 north-west from Chulmleigh and about 12 south-west from South Molton, in the Northern division of the county, North Tawton hundred, South Molton petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Chulmleigh, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of the Holy Trinity is an ancient edifice of stone, in mixed styles, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch and an embattled tower on the north side containing 6 bells: the church was entirely restored in 1869, and has an open oak roof, the piers supporting it being solid monoliths of granite: there is a handsome carved oak screen and a memorial window to the Rev. James Buckingham, rector here from 1814: a new organ was provided in 1898: the church affords 350 sittings. The register dates from the year 1592. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £256, including 105 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Rev. Mortimer Drury Buckingham M.A. rector of Clys St. George, and held since 1897 by the Rev. Matthew Thomas Loveband M.A. of Caius College, Cambridge.

Here are Bible Christian and Baptist chapels. The poor receive £2 a year from Pyncombe's charity. A fair is held on Trinity Monday yearly for cattle and sheep. The Earl of Portsmouth, who is lord of the manor, A. W. Buckingham esq. of Northcote Manor, William Owen esq. of Satterley, and Michael Tout Leamon esq. of 1 Bedford villas, Tavistock, are the chief landowners. The soil is dun land; the subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and some land in pasture. The area is 5,323 acres of land and 26 of water; rateable value, £4,224; the population in 1901 was 669.

CALVERLEIGH, anciently "Calwodeleigh," a small parish amalgamated by Local Government Board Order 16,307, for civil purposes, March 25, 1885, with the parish of Loxbeare, is on the road from Tiverton to South Molton, 2 miles north-west from Tiverton station on the Exe Valley branch of the Great Western railway, in the North Eastern division of the county, Tiverton hundred, union and county court district of Tiverton, rural deanery of Tiverton West and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary is a building of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 6 bells, the original tenor dated 1790, and 4 of modern date: the south aisle, called "Southcott's aisle," built between 1337 and 1349, is separated from the nave by an arcade, one of the piers of which bears a shield and the initials "I.S."; there are two carved oak screens, both of which were carefully restored in 1839: at the east end of the aisle is a large monument surmounted by one female and two male busts and a kneeling female effigy, with inscriptions to George Southcott esq. ob. 1589; Thomas Southcott esq. ob. 1621 and Mary (Crocker), his wife, ob. 1603; and Mary (Southcott), wife of George Colman, of Tiverton, gent. ob. 13

March, 1636: on the floor is a slab inscribed to George Southcott esq. ob. 6 March, 1654: a window in the aisle contains some valuable stained glass of the 14th century, transferred from the church of St. Treneur, in Brittany, as explained by a brief Latin inscription at the foot: the chancel and nave were rebuilt during the period 1890-93 and the church has also been reseated throughout: there are 100 sittings. The register dates from the year 1679. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £111, including 72 acres of glebe, in the gift of Capt. Nugent Chichester, and held since 1886 by the Rev. Donald Millman Owen B.D. of Balliol College, Oxford, who resides at Tiverton. The charities amount to £2 yearly. Calverleigh Court, pleasantly situated, is the seat of Capt. Nugent Chichester J.P. who is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is clayey; subsoil, rocky. The chief crops are wheat, barley, fruits &c. The area and rateable value are given with Loxbeare; the population in 1891 was 77.

CHAGFORD is a parish and small market town on the borders of Dartmoor, near the river Teign, 4 miles north-west from Moreton Hampstead terminal station of a branch of the Great Western railway, 10 south-west from Okehampton, 16 south-west from Exeter and 230 from London, in the Mid division of the county, Wonford hundred, Crockernwell petty sessional division, Okehampton union and county court district, rural deanery of Moreton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The town was lighted with gas in 1869; but the streets and most of the larger houses are supplied with the electric light by The Chagford and Devon Electric Light Co. Limited, incorporated November 18th, 1890; waterworks were established in 1880: there are some good houses, and convenient apartments are to be had both in the town and neighbourhood. The church of St. Michael, dedicated July 30, 1261, by Bishop Branscombe, is a building of granite in the Early Perpendicular style, restored and reseated in 1865, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing a clock and 8 bells, 6 of which are dated 1766 and 2 1877: a new organ was erected in 1891 and enlarged in 1899, at a cost of £450: there is a large Renaissance monument in the chancel to Sir John Whiddon, serjeant-at-law, temp. Edward VI. justice of the Queen's Bench, knighted January 27, 1555, ob. January 27, 1575: in the south aisle is a memorial to John Prouss, dated 1664: there are various modern brasses, principally to the Hayter family, and several stained windows: the large east window, erected in 1860, is a memorial to Rev. W. Hames, a former rector of the parish: and below it is a triptych presented in 1888 as a memorial to the late rector, by his widow and son, and a stained window has been erected to his memory by the parishioners: in 1894 a edilia and a memorial window to the late Mrs. Hayter-Hames were presented by her relatives: there are 400 sittings. The register of marriages and deaths dates from the year 1598 and of baptisms from 1700. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £400, including 48 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Colville George Hayter-Hames esq. and held since 1886 by the Rev. Gerald Lewis Henry Ley M.A. of Pembroke College, Oxford. There are Wesleyan and Bible Christian chapels. The Rev. John Hayter and John Hooper esq. gave the annual interest of £200 to teach yearly six poor children reading, writing and arithmetic, and to place out one or more such children in apprenticeship to some trade: this £200, now invested in new Consols, was a legacy given by will of John Weekes, in 1790, to the said Rev. John Hayter and John Hooper esq.; it now produces £5 yearly, and under a scheme of the Charity Commissioners, dated 2nd December, 1892, this sum is in future to be applied by the trustees for the benefit of deserving poor children who are bona fide resident in the parish of Chagford, who are and have, for not less than two years, been scholars in a public elementary school or schools, and who have received from the managers of the school or schools such a certificate or certificates in writing of their good conduct, regularity in attendance and progress in learning, as shall be satisfactory to the trustees, in one or more of the following ways, as they think fit, viz.:—(a) In granting prizes or rewards to children qualified as aforesaid, and in providing them with Bibles and books of common prayer upon their leaving school: (b) in paying the cost of apprenticing to some trade or occupation children, qualified as aforesaid, upon their leaving school: (c) in contributing towards the cost of an outfit for children qualified as aforesaid upon their leaving school and entering upon a trade or occupation, or into service. In 1791 John Hooper esq. of Witcombe, left the clear yearly sum of £5 to be distributed on New Year's day to poor families who had not received any relief from the parish for one month preceding New Year's day. The church lands charity, the gift of an unknown benefactor, has been settled under the powers of the "Local Government Act, 1894," and in future two thirds of the income, or about £20, will go to the rector and churchwardens, and as a non-ecclesiastical charity the remainder, about £10, will be administered by trustees, viz.: the rector for the time being and two persons appointed by the Parish Council. Chagford was one of the Stannary towns of the Duchy of Cornwall from 1328 until the end of the 18th century, since which date the Stannary Court has been removed. Here is a reading room, with a library of about 500 volumes. There are large annual fairs for cattle and sheep on the first Thursday in May, September and October and the last Thursday in March. The scenery around Chagford is of a most romantic character. This portion of Dartmoor is much frequented in the summer time by invalids, its dry and bracing air having been found very beneficial to persons having a consumptive tendency; it is also a constant resort of tourists, antiquaries and anglers. The most interesting spots near here are Whiddon Park, the Sharpitor Rocks, Kistor Rock, Meldon Hill, Gidleigh Park and Holy Street. There are many Druidical and other relics of ages long gone by, including remains of stone circles, the ruins of a hut village on the moor near Kistor Rock, and the Drewsteignton cromlech, situated in a field adjoining Shilston farm, and consisting of monoliths of granite; the greatest length of the quoit or upper stone is 15 feet; breadth 10 feet and thickness about 2 feet; in Bushford wood is a Logan stone and a bowling-green: across the Walla brook is a primitive bridge of a single stone, 12 feet in length, 3 wide and 1½ thick. The river Teign affords good trout fishing. Here are the kennels of the Mid-Devon foxhounds: Chagford, Moreton Hampstead and Okehampton are convenient places for hunting visitors. Chagford House, the seat of Colville George Hayter-Hames esq. M.A., J.P. is a fine old mansion, pleasantly situated on an eminence and commanding extensive views: it is approached by a fine avenue of trees and sheltered by lofty downs. Whiddon Park, the property and residence of Commander Edward Seymour Evans R.N., J.P. is a mansion pleasantly seated in a park of 115 acres. Thomas Taylor Coniam esq. of Waye house, is lord of the manor, and William Ellis esq. is lord of the manor of Southteign, which extends into this parish; Colville George Hayter-Hames esq. Richard Vooght Clampitt M.D., L.R.C.P. Edin. of Coombe and 49 Merton road, Bootle, Lancs, William Ellis esq. and Mrs. Baines-Hooper are the principal landowners. The soil is loam, resting on granite. The chief crops are barley and oats. The area is 7,438 acres of land and 21 of water; rateable value, £7,995; the population in 1901 was 1,397.

CHALLACOMBE is a parish and village on the borders of Somersetshire, about 4 miles north-east from Bampton Fleming station on the new line of rail from Barnstaple to Lynton. 11 north-east from Barnstaple, and 14 south-east from Ilfracombe, in the North Western division of the county, Sherriff hundred, Braunton petty sessional division, Barnstaple union and county court district, rural deanery of Sherwill, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of the Holy Trinity is a building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and an embattled tower containing 4 bells, and in 1874 was thoroughly restored at a cost of £400, when the stained east window was inserted and a handsome reredos of Caen stone was erected: there are 130 sittings. The register dates from the year 1676.
 The living is a rectory, net yearly value £175, with residence, and 56 acres of glebe, in the gift of Earl Fortescue, and held since 1880 by the Rev. Thomas Evans Hughes B.A. of Jesus College, Cambridge. Here is a chapel for Bible Christians, Viscount Ebrington is lord of the manor and chief landowner. The soil is light loam on rock. The chief crops are pasture and oats, with a little barley and wheat. The area is 5,497 acres; rateable value, £2,630; the population in 1891 was 195.

CHARDSTOCK is a parish and village, on a peninsula, between the counties of Dorset and Somerset, and was transferred from Dorsetshire to Devonshire by a Local Government Board Provisional Order Confirmation (No. 3); it is $2\frac{1}{2}$ miles west from Chard Junction station, on the London and South Western railway, 3 south-south-west from Chard stations on the Great Western and London and South Western railways, 4 north from Axminster, and $9\frac{1}{2}$ north-west from Lyme Regis, in the Eastern division of the county, Axminster petty sessional division, hundred of Beamister Forum and Redborne, Axminster union and county court district, rural deanery of Bridport (Lyme portion), archdeaconry of Dorset and diocese of Salisbury. The river Kit runs through the village and joins the river Axe at Axe farm. The church of St. Andrew, formerly consisting only of chancel and nave, was rebuilt and enlarged in 1864 by the addition of north aisle, south porch, organ chamber, and vestry, a chapel and a western tower containing 7 bells and a clock with Cambridge chimes: the chancel, designed in the Early English style, has a stained east window of three lancets, and a reredos of Caen stone; the north side is Early Decorated, and the south Perpendicular: there are sittings for 600 persons. The parish registers date from the year 1590, and are in excellent preservation. The living is a discharged vicarage, net yearly value £245, with 35 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Salisbury, and held since 1883 by the Rev. Frank Parham M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford. The charities amount to about £100 yearly, derived from Lady Mead and White's charities left in land and funded property, the former is distributed by feoffees who are copyholders of the manor, and the latter is administered by trustees appointed by the Parish Council. Chardstock Court, now the property of Lord Henley, and occupied as a farm house, exhibits numerous traces of Early English work. Bowditch House is the residence of Capt. William King J.P., and Chardstock House of Edward Stanhope Rodd esq. J.P. The principal landowners are Lord Henley, of Watford Court, Northampton, who is lord of the manor, John Churchill Stuckey Langdon esq. of Parrocks Lodge, Chard, and

T. D. Eames esq. The soil is chalk and clay in parts. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and apples (apple trees being sent to all parts of Great Britain), and some land in pasture. The area is 5,090 acres of land and 9 of water; rateable value, £7,483; the population of the civil parish in 1891 was 1,075, and of St. Andrew ecclesiastical parish 924.

Alson, 1 mile south; and Tytherleigh, half-a-mile south-east, are hamlets in this parish; letters for Alson and Tytherleigh, through Chard. Crowley was for civil purposes annexed to Membury by Local Government Board Order 15,947, March 24, 1884.

Sexton, William Seward.

Chardstock All Saints is an ecclesiastical parish, formed out of the parishes of Chardstock and Axminster. The church, erected in 1840, is a plain building of stone consisting of chancel, nave and a western turret containing one bell: there are 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1840. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £216, including 33 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Salisbury, and held since 1898 by the Rev. James Hugh Pearson M.A. of Hertford College, Oxford. The population in 1891 was 444.

CHARLETON is a parish and straggling village, in the Southern division of the county, Coleridge hundred, Stanborough and Coleridge petty sessional division, Kingsbridge union and county court district, rural deanery of Woodleigh, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter, divided into two parts, East and West Charleton; the latter is only 2 miles south-east from Kingsbridge station, but extends 1 mile further through East Charleton, and includes part of the hamlet of Frogmore, the names for which place are given with Sherford. The church of St. Mary is an edifice of stone, chiefly in the Decorated style, restored, except the tower, in 1849-50, at a cost of £1,300, and consists of chancel, nave, transept, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower, with turret, formerly containing 4 bells, three of which have been recast and two new ones added at a cost of £250: the pulpit and font are of Caen stone: the chancel retains sedilia and piscina, and there are several tablets to the Twysden family: the stained east window is a memorial to the Rev. Thomas Twysden M.A. vicar 1842-88: there are also two small memorial windows to Mrs. Twysden, and a large tablet in the south transept to the Rev. Thomas Whinyates, a former rector: there are 350 sittings. The register dates from the year 1560. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £344, including 30 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Countess Compton, and held since 1891 by the Rev. Vincent Young M.A. of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge. There is also a mission chapel at Goveton, built of stone, and seating 150 persons; services at 6.30 p.m. on Sundays: it is used as a church school during the week. Charleton Bridge, in this parish, built in 1864, and rebuilt in 1873, consists of five arches. A drinking fountain in the village was the gift of the Countess Compton. Lady Ashburton is lady of the manor and principal landowner. The soil is clay and slate; subsoil, slate. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and roots and pasture land. The area is 1,094 acres of land, 14 of tidal water and 295 of foreshore; rateable value, £1,556; the population in 1901 was 234.

Goveton and Lidstone, about 3 miles north, are hamlets, added to Buckland Tont Saints by Local Government Board Order 16,312, March 24, 1884.

CHAWLEIGH is a parish and village, on the road from Crediton to Barnstaple, 2 miles north-east from Eggesford station on the North Devon branch of the London and South Western railway (which is in this parish), 2 south-east from Chulmleigh, 12 north-west from Crediton and 10 south from South Molton, in the Northern division of the county, North Tawton hundred, South Molton petty sessional division, Crediton union and county court district, rural deanery of Chulmleigh, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The Little Dart separates Chawleigh from Chulmleigh and Cheldon parishes on the north, forming the chief portion of the boundary on that side, and, running through the parish, joins the Taw on the west. The church of St. James is an ancient building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 6 bells: the nave is separated from the chancel by a very fine screen, with elaborate groining and an unusually high and effective cresting: the rood stairs also remain: in 1874 the interior of the church was thoroughly restored and a clock erected, at a total cost of £1,450: there are 300 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1544; marriages, 1547; burials, 1559. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £214, including 97 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Earl of Portsmouth, and held since 1879 by the Rev. John Vowler Tanner B.A. of Caius College, Cambridge: the rectory house was built in 1880. There are Bible Christian and Congregational chapels. The charities are of £90 yearly value. A fair is held on May 6, and another fair was formerly held on the Tuesday before the last Thursday in October, but the latter is at present in abeyance. A monthly market is held at the Fox and Hounds hotel on every second Wednesday, except in December, when it is on the first Wednesday, for cattle, sheep, horses, produce, implements &c. and is well attended. The Earl of Portsmouth, who is lord of the manor, Sir W. L. G. Stucley Stucley bart. of Hartland Abbey and Sir Wm. Robert Williams bart. of Heanton Court, are the principal landowners. The soil is loam; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and barley. The area is 5,493 acres of land and 39 of water; rateable value, £3,883; the population in 1901 was 648.

Chenson is a hamlet, 2 miles south.

CHELSTON, see Torquay.

CHERITON BISHOP is a parish and village in a pleasant dale, traversed by the high road from Exeter to Plymouth, and is 4 miles south from Yeoford junction station on the main line of the London and South Western railway, 10 west from Exeter and 7 south-west from Crediton, in the Mid division of the county, Wonford hundred, Moreton Hampstead petty sessional division, Crediton union and county court district, rural deanery of Kenn and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary is an ancient building of stone, in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and a fine embattled western tower containing 6 bells, all dated 1770, except the fourth, which was cast in 1803: the church retains a Norman font, and there are several stained windows and mural tablets to the Rev. Henry Fothergill M.A. 45 years rector of the parish, d. 1792, and John Davy esq. ob. 1695, and his two wives; the south wall and porch were rebuilt in 1884 by the late Edward Hyde Pennell esq. and the nave was new roofed in 1896, and the west end has since been re-seated; there are 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a rectory, net yearly income £327, including 56 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1887 by the Rev. Joseph Brettell Housman M.A. of Worcester College, Oxford. There is a small Plymouth Brethren chapel, seating 100 persons. The charities amount to about £15 yearly value, and are invested in the name of feeffees. A pleasure fair is annually held on Wednesday in Whitsun week. The manor, now dismembered, anciently belonged to the Bishops of Exeter, who had considerable landed property here. The manor of Eggbeare belonged to the Kells, afterwards to the Fulfords, and is now the property of Francis Drummond Fulford esq. of Great Fulford: the manor of Lampford, said to have been anciently the chief manor here, also belongs to him. The manor of Medland, which once belonged to Tewkesbury Abbey, is now held by George Pennell esq. Coxland belongs to Mr. J. L. Gorwyn; Horselake, to John Guscotte esq. Pitton, Mill and North Bowden, together 393 acres in extent, are partly in this parish and partly in Crediton, and were purchased in 1876 of the Pennells by Mr. William Cheriton Morris. Easton, held for generations by the Bragg family, is now the property of Mrs. Ponsford, of Budleigh Salterton. Hackworthy and Melhuish belong to F. D. Fulford esq. and Upper Mounson to Mrs. Tabb, of Redruth, Cornwall. The barton of Meston belongs to John Ponsford esq. and Woodleigh to R. A.

of Moore College, N.S.W. who is also curate of Chawleigh. The charities include £100 Government stock, left by Herman Storme May, in 1876, the interest of which, £2 14s. 0d. is distributed yearly in the parish. The Earl of Portsmouth is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is loam; the subsoil is clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 1,111 acres; rateable value, £576; the population in 1901 was 46.

Cuddeford esq. The principal seat is Venbridge House, the property of Henley Grose Smith esq. of St. Helen's, Isle of Wight, and now occupied by Reginald Templar esq. The chief landowners are Francis Drummond Fulford esq. of Great Fulford, Messrs. J. and W. Hole, Mr. W. G. Haydon, Mr. John Lambert Gorwyn, John Ponsford esq. H. G. Smith esq. G. B. Pennell esq. the trustees of Wm. C. Morris, Mr. Knapman, P. F. Bellew esq. John Strong, of Drewsteignton, William Henry Kelland esq. Mr. William Farley, W. E. Elphinstone-Stone, Mr. T. Tabb and B. A. Cuddeford esq. The soil is clayey; the subsoil is wet, yellow clay; the land has been improved by draining. The chief crops are wheat and apples. The area is 4,939 acres; rateable value, £3,119; the population in 1891 was 560.

Cheriton Cross is a hamlet on the road between Exeter and Okehampton, about half a mile south of the church. There is a small Wesleyan chapel here, with 100 sittings.

Crockernwell is a small village, about 2 miles south-west, and likewise on the main road, partly in Cheriton Bishop parish and partly in the parish of Drewsteignton. There is a mission chapel here, built in 1880 by the late Edward Pennell esq.; it consists of chancel, nave and a small vestry, and has 120 sittings.

CHERTON FITZPAINE is a parish and village, 1½ miles north-west from the Crediton and Tiverton road, 5 miles north-north-east from Crediton station on the main line of the London and South Western railway, 9 north-north-west from Exeter and 8 south-west from Tiverton, in the Northern division of the county, West Budleigh hundred, Crediton petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Cadbury, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary is an ancient structure in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing a clock and 6 bells, dated respectively 1770, 1767, 1727 (3 and 4), 1665, and the treble bell 1893, in which year the others were re-hung at a total cost of £130: at the east end are three stained windows: there is also a mural tablet to John Moore esq. of Upcott, d. 1700; and to Sara, his wife, d. 1695: the screen was destroyed in 1793: the church was thoroughly restored in 1885, at a cost of £1,262, and affords 300 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1660; marriages, 1663; burials, 1662. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £658, with 34 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of and held since 1873 by the Rev. William Henry Arundell M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford. The Congregational chapel here seats 150 persons, and the Bible Christian chapel has 100 sittings. There is also a Bible Christian chapel at Upham, erected in 1895, with 70 sittings. The charities, which are distributed annually amongst the poor of the parish, amount to £80. There are 6 well-built almshouses, endowed by Andrew Scut esq. in 1594, with a house now (1901) let for £42, for poor persons of the parish who have not received parish relief. The rector is lord of the manor. The principal landowners are Lieut.-Col. Sir John Davie Ferguson-Davie bart. of Creedy Park, Charles Fursdon esq. of Cadbury, and William Cornish Cleave esq. of The Sanctuary, Shobrooke. The soil is clayey and shillet; the subsoil, red sandstone, rock and clay. The chief crops are turnips and wheat. The area is 4,740 acres; rateable value, £5,950; the population in 1891 was 699 in the civil and 766 in the ecclesiastical parish. By Local Government Board Order 16,552, Comb Barton &c. was transferred to Shobrooke, and by Order 16,553, Thongsleigh added to Cruwis Morchard, in Tiverton union, March 24, 1884, for civil purposes.

CHITTLEHAMHOLT, an ecclesiastical parish, formed July 28, 1863, was originally a hamlet of Chittlehampton, but constituted a civil parish March 25, 1885, and is about 2 miles north-west from Portsmouth Arms station on the North Devon branch of the London and South Western railway, 7 south-west from South Molton station on the Somerset and Devon branch of the Great Western railway, and in the Northern division of the county, hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district of South Molton, rural deanery of South Molton, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. John the Baptist, built by the late Lord Rolle in 1838, is a small edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel and nave, with a western turret containing one bell: there are 180 sittings. The register dates from the year 1843. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £114, with residence and 3 acres of glebe, in the gift of Lord Rolle's trustees, and held since 1897 by the Rev. William Turberville Llewellyn Jenkins, of Brasenose College, Oxford. The Brethren have a chapel here. The Manor House, the property and residence of Mrs. and Thomas Bate esq. is picturesquely situated and affords a beautiful view of the river Taw and the surrounding country. High Bullen, a fine modern mansion standing on very high ground, commands a wide and extensive view, including the Dartmoor hills, and is the residence of William Robert Moore esq. B.A. Mrs. Bate, who is lady of the manor, and the Hon. Mark G. K.

Rolle, of Stevenstone, are the chief landowners. The area is 1,959 acres of land and 40 of water; rateable value, £1,744; the population in 1901 was 260.

CHITTLEHAMPTON is a parish and village on the river Taw, 2½ miles north-east from Umberleigh Bridge station on the North Devon branch of the London and South Western railway (which is in this parish), 5 west from South Molton and 8 south-east from Barnstaple, in the Northern division of the county, hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district of South Molton, rural deanery of South Molton, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Hieritha is an ancient building of stone in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, transepts, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing a clock and 8 bells, 6 of which, cast in 1739, were given by Samuel Rolle esq. of Hudscott; the remaining two were added in 1879: the north chancel aisle has a good panelled roof: the stone pulpit, of the same period as the tower, is adorned with carved figures of saints under canopies; and the east and west windows are stained: in the north transept is an altar-tomb with effigies, and two kneeling figures (male and female) below, and an inscription to John Giffard esq. of Brightley, and Honor, his wife, and their children, erected in 1625 by John Giffard, his grandson: in the north aisle of the chancel is a recumbent effigy of a lady, with inscription to Mistress Grace Giffard, ob. 1667: there are other fine monuments to the Rolle and Giffard families, including inscribed stones to Caesar Giffard esq. d. 1715; John Giffard, of Atherington, d. 1725, and Elizabeth, his wife; John Giffard esq. of Dublin, d. 1819, and Sir Ambrose Giffard kt. Chief Justice of Ceylon, d. 1827: on the floor of the chancel are brasses, with effigies and inscriptions to John Cobleigh, Isabella, his wife, ob. 1 Oct. 1446, and Joan, his wife, ob. 30 Sept. 1480; and to Henry Cobleigh, ob. 30 July, 1470, and Alice, his wife: there are also memorials to the Morris and Saunders families: the church was restored in 1871-4, at a cost of over £4,000, when an organ was given by Miss Trefusis, and a new lych-gate by Mrs. Short in memory of her husband, J. B. Short esq. who died at Hudscott; and has 450 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1575; marriages and burials, 1576, and the earliest entries are those of the Saunders family. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £358, with residence and 41 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Hon. M. G. Kerr Rolle, and held since 1890 by the Ven. Albert Eden Seymour M.A. of University College, Oxford, prebend of Exeter, Archdeacon of Barnstaple, and surrogate. Here is a Wesleyan chapel, and Bible Christian chapel at Blakewell. There are also mission churches at Umberleigh and Clappery Mill. There are charities of £40 yearly value, derived from church lands in Alverdiscott, and one of £1 yearly for the poor, arising from a gift made in 1887 by W. H. Kelland esq. of Kelland, Lapford, as a memorial to his mother, the representative of the Saunders family. Near the village, on the South Molton road, is an ancient stone cross, standing on a lofty pedestal, and near Brightley, on the road to Warkleigh, is one of larger size. Brightley Park has been ploughed over and the remains of the mansion converted into a farm; the walls of the ancient domestic chapel are still standing and a portion of the moat still remains. The Hon. Mark George Kerr Rolle, the Earl Fortescue and Mrs. Bater, of the Manor House, Chittlehamholt, are the chief landowners. The soil is loamy; subsoil is principally schistous rock. The chief crops are oats, barley and turnips. The area is 5,924 acres of land and 30 of water; rateable value, £5,998; the population in 1901 was 996. Ambow and Biddacott are outlying hamlets. The second is the property of Captain J. Saltren-Willett, of Monkleigh. Newton was purchased in 1668 by Arthur Saunders esq. the representative of an ancient family who had been resident here from 1542 to 1864: North Newton belongs, by inheritance from her mother (a Saunders), to Miss Eleanor Kelland, of Southsea: South Newton was sold by the Saunders family and now belongs to the Hon. Mark G. K. Rolle. Bradbury formerly the residence of the Saunders family, now belongs to Earl Fortescue, the owner of South Bray. Hudscott was formerly held by the Venners, and after them by the Rolle family: Samuel Rolle gave the property in the 18th century to Dennis Rolle esq. of Stevenstone and Bicton, who founded schools in this and the parishes of Bicton and Otterton; his son, the late Lord Rolle, was born at Hudscott: Hawkridge, to John Fleming esq. of Bigadon. George Saunders esq. of Warwickshire, and John Troke esq. of Morchard Bishop, still possess land here by inheritance, and represent the old Saunders family. The manor, which formerly belonged to the Clares, ancestors of Lady de Batho, is now the property of the Hon. Mark G. K. Rolle, in whose family it has been for 180 years. Brightley was for seven centuries the property of the Giffards of Halsbury, previous to which it was held by the Fitzwarren family; it now belongs, with the barton of Head, to the Hon. Mark G. Kerr Rolle.

By a Local Government Board Order, 16,346, which came into operation March 25, 1884, a detached part of this parish known as Leary was amalgamated with West Buckland for civil purposes, but ecclesiastically it still remains a part of Chittlehampton.

Eastacott is a hamlet 1½ miles south-west.

CHIVELSTONE is a township and parish, within a beautiful and secluded valley, 7 miles south-east from Kingsbridge station on a branch of the Great Western railway, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Coleridge, petty sessional division of Stanborough and Coleridge, union and county court district of Kingsbridge, rural deanery of Woodleigh, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Sylvester is an ancient edifice of stone, chiefly in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel with aisles, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 5 bells: the chancel is a century older than the nave and aisles; the pulpit, formed out of a solid block of oak, is richly carved, painted and gilded, as also is the screen, a beautiful specimen of carved work: the rood stairs remain and there is an ancient font and several monuments of some antiquity: the church was restored in 1897, and affords 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1684. The living is a chapelry, annexed, together with the vicarage of Sherford, to that of Stokenham, joint net yearly value £100, including 3 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Crown, and held since 1888 by the Rev. Conrad William Curling Finzel M.A. of Oxford University, who resides at Stokenham. South Allington House is the residence of Major Thomas Harris Pitts J.P. Henry Hurrell esq. is lord of the manor. Major T. H. Pitts, the Rev. Marcus Dimond-Churchward M.A. vicar of Northam, and William Swansborough esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is principally loam; subsoil, various. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats.

CHRISTOW is a parish and village on the river Teign, 1½ miles south-east from Ashton station on the Teign Valley branch of the Great Western railway, 7 east from Moreton Hampstead and 8 south-west from Exeter, in the North Eastern division of the county, Wonford hundred and petty sessional division, St. Thomas union, Exeter county court district, rural deanery of Kenn and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. There is a goods station on the Teign Valley branch of the Great Western railway, near Teign House inn, in this parish, about 1 mile from the village. The church of St. James is an ancient building of granite in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing a clock and 6 bells: in the church is a monument to Edward, first Viscount Exmouth G.C.B. captor of Algiers in 1816, d. Jan. 23, 1833, and there are memorials to other members of the Pellew family; the flag borne by Lord Exmouth's ship at the battle of Algiers is also preserved here: there is a memorial window to the Woodcombe family, and one to the Hon. and Rev. Edward Pellew, a former vicar, d. Aug. 29, 1869, and Mary Ann (Winthrop), his wife: the stained east window was presented by Viscountess Exmouth in 1900, in memory of Edward, 4th Viscount

The area is 2,715 acres of land and 97 of foreshore; rateable value, £2,492; the population in 1901 was 385. Post Office, Chivelstone.—Edwin Clayton, sub-postmaster. Letters from Kingsbridge by foot post received at 8.35 a.m.; dispatched at 4 p.m. Postal orders are issued here, but not paid. The nearest money order office is at East Prawle, 2 miles distant & telegraph office, Frogmore, 4 miles distant

FORD is a hamlet, 1½ miles north-by-east. Here is a Congregational chapel, endowed by Andrew Jeffery with the sum of about £10 yearly.

PRAWLE, 1½ miles south, is a hamlet on the sea coast. There is a Bible Christian chapel, erected in 1860. Here is a coastguard station, from which all passing ships are reported; it is also a private telegraph station to Kingsbridge.

Post & M. O. O., S. B. & Annuity & Insurance Office, East Prawle.—William George Samuel Beer, sub-postmaster. Letters from Kingsbridge, via Frogmore, received at 9.35 a.m.; dispatched at 3.20 p.m. Chivelstone is the nearest telegraph office, 2 miles distant

SOUTH ALLINGTON is another hamlet, 1 mile east. Iron ore was found here in 1873. Parish Clerk, Henry Quick.

A School Board of 5 members was formed Nov. 26, 1874; J. Harris Square, Kingsbridge, clerk to the board Board School (mixed), built in 1878, for 100 children; average attendance, 47; Miss Caroline Langdon, mist Coast Guard Station, Prawle, Thos. Howes, chief officer

Exmouth, who died in 1899: at the entrance of the porch is a stone to Nathaniel Busell, 46 years "clark heere, dyed 19th February, 1631," of whom tradition reports that he was killed in defending the church against Cromwell: the organ was presented in 1887, in memory of the Rev. J. T. Hassall, late vicar, by his son and daughter: a handsome corona was placed in the chancel in the same year by the 4th Viscount Exmouth: some remains exist of ancient oak screens: there are 300 sittings. In the churchyard are four very fine yew trees. The register dates from the year 1554. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £164, with 1 acre of glebe and residence, in the gift of Viscount Exmouth, and held since 1892 by the Rev. Courtenay John Bulteel B.A. of Magdalen College, Oxford. Here are Baptist and Wesleyan chapels. Charities producing £4 6s. 8d. are distributed in bread. The Tottiford and Kennick reservoir of the Torquay water works, situated mostly in this parish, on the Moreton road, is a fine sheet of water, comprising altogether nearly 74 acres, and is a great resort of anglers. The Wheal Frank Mills and Wheal Exmouth silver and lead mines here have not been worked for some time. Canonteign House, the seat of Viscountess Exmouth, is a fine mansion, standing on an eminence in park-like grounds, and affords extensive views of the surrounding country. The principal landowners are the trustees of the late Viscount Exmouth (d. 1899), who are lords of the manor, the Corporation of Torquay and the Commercial Union Assurance Company. The soil is loam; subsoil, granite. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and potatoes. The area is 3,096 acres of land and 73 of water; rateable value, £3,856; the population in 1901 was 520.

CHUDLEIGH is a parish, pleasantly seated on the high road between Exeter and Plymouth, with a station 1 mile south-west from the town on the Teign Valley branch of the Great Western railway and is 10 miles south-by-west from Exeter, 6 north-east from Newton Abbot, 7 west-by-north from Dawlish, 8 north-west from Teignmouth, 14 north-west from Torquay and 22½ from London, in the Mid division of the county, Exminster hundred, Teignbridge petty sessional division, Newton Abbot union, Newton Abbot and Torquay county court district, rural deanery of Moreton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The town is supplied with water from works constructed under the direction of E. Appleton esq. C.E. and is lighted with gas by a company. The church of SS. Mary and Martin, consecrated by Bishop Bronescombe, 6th Nov. 1259, is a building of stone and granite, chiefly in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, separated from the nave by an arcade of six arches, north transept or Hunt's aisle, and a massive embattled western tower containing a clock and 6 bells, all recast with additional metal in 1781 from a previous peal of 5: the base of the tower is of very early date, possibly Saxon, and there is a Transitional font: the stained east window is a memorial to a former vicar, and was presented by John Williams esq. at a cost of nearly £200; there are also memorial windows to Lady Dunn, placed by her husband, Admiral Sir David Dunn K.C.H. formerly of Rocklands, and to three other persons: on the north side of the chancel is a monument with kneeling effigies and shields of arms, inscribed to Sir Piers Courtenay-kt. ob. May 20, 1522, and Elizabeth (Shilston), his wife, ob. Nov. 8, 1605; there are other memorials to the Courtenay and Clifford families: the screen separating the chancel from the nave, restored divided into twenty compartments, each containing two panels, on one of which is an Apostle and the other a Prophet; the screen is carved on one side only: the old lectern by Hems, of Exeter, has been superseded by a brass lectern: the church was thoroughly repaired in 1848-9, at a cost of about £2,000, and has 600 sittings. The register dates from the year 1558. The living is a vicarage, net yearly income £375, with residence and 1 acre of glebe, in the gift of and held since 1885 by the Rev. Charles Thomas Ward M.A. of Wadham College, Oxford. The Congregational chapel, founded in 1710, and endowed with £20 yearly by Mr. Causely, of Ranscombe, was rebuilt in 1830, and will seat 150 persons: there is an attached school room, and a small burial ground, now closed. The Wesleyan chapel, built in 1837, seats 72 persons. The Baptist chapel, built in 1850 by W. Rouse esq. has sittings for 200 persons, and an attached burial ground. A cemetery was formed in 1876, at a cost of £1,200, and is under the control of the Parish Council. The Vestry Hall, in the Market place, erected in 1865, will hold 300 persons. The early closing day is on Thursday. The Chudleigh Provident Dispensary was founded in 1875, and registered as a Friendly Society June 30 of that year, for the purpose of enabling the benefit members to secure medical attendance and medicines for themselves and their families, by fixed payments in advance. It is managed by three trustees and the medical officer, hon. treasurer and hon. secretary.

The institution is supported, in addition to its provident members, by subscriptions of hon. members. It has £223 8s. 6d. invested in Consols and the Post Office. The charities include 52s. a year left by Sir John Ackland; 30s. yearly by Thomas Clarke, in 1705; 10s. by William Stowell, in 1735; 30s. yearly by Stephen Bloy, in 1673; £5 yearly by Richard Eastchurch, in 1692; £100 left by William Sidson, in 1818; £100 by John Wilcocks; and £1,000 left by John Williams in 1869; all these are now amalgamated into one common trust fund and produce about £80 yearly, the greater part of which is distributed in various charities. In 1887 a Community of Bridgettine Nuns was established here, on a site presented to them about a quarter of a mile from the town, and a Convent erected for their residence, with a chapel, dedicated to St. Saviour, Our Blessed Lady and St. Bridget of Syon. This Community is the only one of the pre-Reformation Communities that has come down to the present day, in unbroken continuity from its foundation in 1415. The monks and nuns were introduced into England in that year by King Henry V. who by a Royal Charter dated March 3, 1415, founded for them Syon House at Isleworth on the Thames. For the next two hundred years the Community flourished in great reputation and the convent became a favourite resort of the English royal family, from whom it received various marks of favour. Henry VII. endowed it with other revenues, and its property included St. Michael's Mount in Cornwall, the Priory of Oterton or Otryngton in Devon, the manor of Budleigh in the parish of East Budleigh, the manor and church of Sidmouth, those of Yarcombe and the manor of Axmouth, together with the right of holding courts in those places. At the dissolution of the monasteries in 1539 Syon House shared the common fate. Queen Mary, however, restored it to the Order; but it was suppressed again by Elizabeth, and eventually became the property of the Duke of Northumberland, in whose family it has remained. From England the Nuns fled to the Continent, and after various wanderings took refuge at Lisbon. They had, however, a constant succession of English nuns while in Portugal, and in 1861 returned to their native land, their first settlement being at Spettisbury, in Dorsetshire, where they remained a short time, eventually removing to their present abode at Chudleigh. Miss Agnes Teresa Jocelyn is the present Lady Abbess. Chudleigh Rock, with its glen, waterfall and deep cavern, is one of the most attractive sights in the district. Osbert, Bishop of Exeter (1074-1107), is said to have erected a palace here in 1080, with a chapel attached, some remains of which still exist near the rock. In 1282 the manor of Chudleigh was annexed by Bishop Quivil to the precentorship of Exeter cathedral, and in the register book of Bishop Stapleton it is stated that in the year 1308 the rental of the manor was £17 4s. 5½d. About this time the woollen trade was carried on extensively, and the fulling mill paid 20s. yearly to the see of Exeter. In 1547 Bishop Vesey granted the manor, town, palace and limekiln to Edward (Seymour), Duke of Somerset, on a lease for 99 years, but the duke's name does not again appear in connection with the property, which was soon afterwards alienated to Sir Peter Courtenay, whose daughter and co-heiress brought it to Anthony Clifford, of King's Teignton: the manor was afterwards purchased by Hugh, Lord Clifford, in whose family it still remains. The woollen trade appears to have been carried on with considerable activity during the reign of James I. and down to the end of the reign of George II. Fairfax lodged in the town during the Civil War, and Hams Barton is believed to have been occupied by Colonel Wise. The inhabitants observed a strict neutrality, receiving either party in turn. William, Prince of Orange, afterwards William III. slept in Chudleigh on the second night after his landing at Torbay, Nov. 6, 1688, and harangued the inhabitants from a window in broken English, "if not to their edification," says a local writer, "at least to their satisfaction, for he was universally hailed as a deliverer." On the 22nd May, 1807, a fire broke out in a bakehouse in Mill Lane, and resulted in the destruction of two-thirds of the town. Ugbrooke, the seat of Lord Clifford of Chudleigh D.L., J.P. is about a mile from the town: the mansion is a large quadrangular building, with two fronts, four towers and a Catholic chapel, dedicated to St. Cyprian: the park is undulating and well wooded, and on one of its hill tops, which affords many fine views of the neighbourhood, are the remains of an encampment; a grove of noble beech trees, known as "Dryden's Grove," is pointed out as being the favourite resort of the poet, who was a frequent visitor at Ugbrooke: the park of 600 acres is well stocked with deer. Lord Clifford of Chudleigh, who is lord of the manor, and the Earl of Morley are the chief landowners. Whiteway, a modern mansion of red brick, situated about 2½ miles north-east of Chudleigh, is the property of the Earl of Morley. The soil is heavy clay, loam, lime rock and sand. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 6,106 acres of land and 22 of water; rateable value, £9,855; the population in 1891 was 2,003 and in 1901 was 1,820.

Harcombe, 1½ miles north, Kerswell, 1 mile north, and Waddon, 1 mile east, are hamlets.

CHUDLEIGH KNIGHTON is a hamlet, formed into a separate ecclesiastical district, February 27, 1880, from the parishes of Hennock, Bovey Tracey and Kings-teignton. It is on the road from Exeter to Ashburton, about one mile north from Heathfield Junction station on the Great Western railway, and 5 north from Newton Abbot, in the Mid division of the county, Teignbridge hundred and petty sessional division, Newton Abbot union, Newton Abbot and Torquay county court district, rural deanery of Moreton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Paul, erected in 1841-2, at a cost of £1,200, is a cruciform structure of Haldon flint, with limestone quoins, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, transepts and a small turret at the east end containing one bell: there are 280 sittings. The registers of baptisms and burials date from the year 1875, and that of marriages from 1880; the older registers, which date from 1538, are kept at the mother church at Hennock. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £200 (without house), in the gift of the vicar of Hennock (ex-officio). The Congregational chapel here, incorporating part of an ancient chapel for many years used as a barn, will hold 150 persons. Pitt House, the seat of the Rt. Hon Charles Seale-Hayne P.C., M.P., J.P. is a handsome mansion of stone, situated on the main road from Newton Abbot to Chudleigh, in about 40 acres of park and pleasure grounds. The house was erected about 1845, from designs by the late Sir Gilbert Scott R.A.: it has been considerably enlarged by the present owner, and contains some good pictures and a collection of china and works of art. The population in 1891 was 559.

and 214 from London, in the Northern division of the county, Witheridge hundred, South Molton petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Chulmleigh, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter: the town was sewered and supplied with water during 1869-70, and in 1891 new water mains were laid down and drain pipes renewed, at a cost of about £300. The Little Dart, a tributary of the Taw, divides this parish from Chawleigh, and is crossed by two bridges, one being constructed for foot passengers only. The church of St. Mary Magdalen (formerly a collegiate church with five prebends attached) is a large building of stone, in the Early Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing a clock with dial, which was presented in 1891 by the trustees of the Chulmleigh Church Lands charity, at a cost of £150, and 6 bells, re-hung in 1889 at a cost of £160: in the chancel are three memorial windows to the Rev. George Hole L.L.B. a former rector, and there are others to Mrs. E. Davy and to Dr. Tidbald, both formerly of this town: the church retains a good roof, screen and an ancient helmet: the pulpit, the bench ends in the nave, and the aisle seats were executed by Hems, of Exeter: the organ was set up in 1887: the church was re-seated in 1880 and the upper stage of the tower restored in 1881, and other restoration was carried out in 1890, at a total cost of £2,144: in 1899 the south wall was repaired at a cost of over £200, defrayed by the trustees of Chulmleigh Church Lands Charity: there are about 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £659, with residence and 259 acres of glebe, in the gift of T. G. Gibson esq. of Lesbury Hall, Northumberland, and held since 1901 by the Rev. Charles Edward Green B.A. of Durham University. The Congregational chapel, originally founded in 1633, has sittings for 400 persons, and registers of births and baptisms from 1812. The Bible Christians' chapel, erected in 1836, will seat 250 persons. A school room was erected in 1883. The Market Hall, rebuilt in 1849 and now (1901) the property of Mrs. Gibson, is used as a court house for petty sessional meetings and as a drill hall for the Volunteers, but is also let for dramatic and other performances. A monthly market is held at the Fortescue Arms Hotel, South Molton road. Station, by Mr. T. Sanders, on the 4th Wednesday in every month, except December, for the sale of cattle, sheep &c and is well attended. Two fairs are held annually, one on Easter Wednesday and the other on the last Wednesday in July, for cattle and Thursday and Friday for pleasure. The I Company of the 4th Volunteer Battalion Devonshire Regiment was formed here in 1900. The Literary and Scientific Institute was established in 1883, and has a library of over 700 volumes. A sum of £30 yearly, derived from Shapland's, Partridge's, Pyke's and Osborne's benefactions, is distributed in money; the Chulmleigh Church Lands charity yields a gross income of £170 yearly. Here is a Cottage Hospital, established in 1871, with six beds, and endowed by the late Miss Preston with a sum of £500, which has been invested in Consols. An ornamental garden was presented to the parish council by the late Rev. G. C. Bethune, formerly rector here. Leigh House, the seat of Robert James Preston-Whyte esq. J.P. was erected by the late R. Preston Q.C., M.P. Colleton House, a fine old mansion once belonging to the Coles family, and the property of Sir William Robert Williams bart. is now occupied by Capt. Richard Powis Monk. Cadbury Barton is the property of Mr. Richard Webber. Garland was the seat of the family of that name, one of whom, John de Garlande, or Garlandia, was a poet and grammarian in the latter part of the 11th century: the mansion is now a farmhouse, belonging to the Rev. John Vowler Tanner B.A. rector of Chawleigh, and J. M. Tanner esq. Bealy Court is in the occupation of Mrs. Cobley. The manor formerly belonged to the Courtenays, Earls of Devon, who once had a castle here, and the Duke of Beaufort, who sold it in 1773: it belonged subsequently to Sir Jacob Wolfe and William Henry Kelland esq. Mrs. Gibson is lady of the manor. The manor of Stone belongs to the Earl of Portsmouth, and that of Newnham or Elston, to Earl Fortescue. The principal landowners are the Rev. J. V. Tanner B.A. the Earl of Portsmouth, Viscount Ebrington, Sir W. R. Williams bart. of Heanton Court, Heanton Punchardon, Robert James Preston-Whyte esq. James Melhuish Tanner esq. of The Cottage, Wembworthy, and Mr. R. Webber. The soil is variable; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, roots, barley and oats. The area is 8,875 acres of land and 31 of water; rateable value, £7,148; population 1901, 1,158. Sexton, Edwin Parsons.

CHURCH STANTON has been transferred from Devonshire to the County of Somerset as from Sept. 30, 1896, under the provisions of Section 54 of the "Local

CHURCHSTOW is a parish and village, pleasantly seated on the road from Kingsbridge to Plymouth, 2 miles north-west from Kingsbridge station on a branch of the Great Western railway, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Stanborough, petty sessional division of Stanborough and Coleridge, union and county court district of Kingsbridge, rural deanery of Woodleigh, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary, the mother church of Kingsbridge, known to have existed in 1239 and anciently belonging to Buckfast Abbey, is an ancient building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 6 bells; the church was restored and re-seated in 1848, and has 400 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from 1543; marriages, 1539; deaths, 1538. The living is a vicarage, with that of Kingsbridge annexed, joint net yearly value £200, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1895 by the Rev. Herbert Alfred Birks M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, who resides at the vicarage, Kingsbridge. There is a wooden parish room not far from the church, erected by the Rev. A. H. Simms, a former vicar: it will seat 150, and is used for Sunday school, parish meetings, and a village club in winter. The great tithes, formerly the property of the Abbey of Buckfastleigh, now belong to the Governors of St. John's Hospital, Exeter. There are several small charities, in the custody of feoffees, which are appropriated to the repairs of the church; the Andrews charity consists of £200 in Consols, the interest of which is utilised in providing the poor with coals during the winter; the Cornworthy charity of £1 is given to the poor in shillings at

CHURSTON FERRERS is a parish and well-built village, on a gentle eminence on the south side of Torbay and bounded on the west by the navigable river Dart, with a station on the Dartmouth and Torbay branch of the South Devon section of the Great Western railway, at the junction of the Brixham branch, and is 22½ miles from London and 1½ west from Brixham, in the Torquay division of the county, hundred of Haytor, petty sessional division of Paignton, union and county court district of Totnes, rural deanery of Ipplepen, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church (dedication not known) is an ancient edifice of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing 4 bells, the first dated 1681 and the remainder being early bells, with inscriptions in Old English characters; the church was originally built as a chapel for the private use of the Ferrers or Yarde family, and according to an ancient record in the possession of the vicar of Brixham, was given to the inhabitants about 1480, when this parish was constituted from the existing parish of Brixham: the chancel retains a piscina and there is a stoup in the porch: the screen and parclose of oak, taken down in 1866, have been re-set in the tower arch, and over the porch is a parvise, with a quatrefoil opening, affording a view of the interior: over the entrance of the porch is a bas-relief in stone of the "Crucifixion," with figures of St. Mary and St. John, one on each side: a memorial

The principal landowners are William Roope Ilbert esq. of Bowringsleigh, West Alvington, Charles Edward Rowland Walker esq. of Ashwater, Torquay, Frederick Carnegie Lowe esq. and Thomas Symons esq. The soil is loamy; subsoil, various. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips. The area is 2,797 acres of land, 6 of water, and 4 of tidal water; rateable value, £3,622; and the population in 1901 was 282.

By Local Government Board Order 16,312, Coombe Royal was transferred from West Alvington to Churchstow, March 24, 1884.

Venn is a small hamlet, in a beautiful vale, 1 mile north-west, with an old burial ground, belonging to the Nonconformists, and Sorley is about 1½ miles north-east from the church.

Leigh, in this parish, now occupied as a farm house, is supposed to have been a cell of the Abbey of Buckfast; its gateway, with guard-room, is a perfect example of 15th century work, and the whole place is remarkably interesting.

window has been placed to Elizabeth (Wilson Patten), Lady Yarde Buller, first wife of the late Lord Churston, d. Feb. 20, 1857: the church was thoroughly restored in 1865, at a cost of £1,800: there are 250 sittings. The inhabitants of Churston have the right of burial in Brixham churchyard, there being no burial ground attached to their church. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1605; marriages and burials, 1590. The living is a chapelry, annexed to the vicarage of Brixham, joint net yearly value £280, with residence, in the gift of the Crown, and held since 1900 by the Rev. Richard William Percy Circuit Assoc. K.C. who resides at Higher Brixham. The tithes were commuted in 1840, the vicarial for £180, and rectorial for £212: the latter belong to Llewellyn Llewellyn esq. of Nethway, Brixham. Charities producing £4 are distributed in money. A cattle market is held here on the fourth Monday in each month. Lupton House, the seat of Lord Churston J.P. is a large and well-designed mansion, pleasantly situated in extensive and well laid out grounds. Greenway House is the residence of Thomas Bedford Bolitho esq. D.L., J.P. Lord Churston is lord of the manor and sole landowner of the hamlet of Churston Ferrers; T. B. Bolitho esq. is lord of the manor of the hamlet of Galmpton; Lord Churston and Francis Charles Simpson esq. of Maypool, are the chief landowners. The soil is various, there being both heavy and light; subsoil, principally limestone and lime rock. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and roots.

The parish contains 2,530 acres of land, 3 of water, 28 of tidal water and 75 of foreshore; rateable value, £4,139; the population in 1891 was 567, and in 1901 was 532.

CLANNABOROUGH is a parish on the road between Coplestone and Bow, $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles west from Coplestone station on the North Devon branch of the London and South Western railway, 6 west-by-north from Crediton, and 14 north-west from Exeter, in the Northern division of the county, North Tawton hundred, Crediton petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Cadbury and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Petrock is an edifice of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 3 bells, the first and third cast in 1863 and the second in 1722; the church was restored in 1858-9 by Selina Ward Wreford, as recorded on a brass affixed to the south wall of the nave, when the nave was rebuilt, and, as well as chancel, new roofed with oak: the stained east window is a memorial to the Rev. H. A. Hughes, his wife and several of their children, and was erected in 1863 by his relatives: the church contains also a memorial to Richard Freke, ob. 1800, æt. 90, and there are sittings for 60 persons. The register dates from the year 1696. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £120, including 50 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1867 by the Rev. William Beck M.A. of Pembroke College, Oxford. The manor formerly belonged to the Holsworthy family, whose heir married a

CLAWTON is a parish and small village, 3 miles south from the market town of Holsworthy, which is the nearest railway station, on the London and South Western railway, in the Western division of the county, hundred of Black Torrington, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Holsworthy, rural deanery of Holsworthy, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The name is derived from a stream called the Claw, which flows through the parish, and is crossed by two small bridges, each of one arch only; the village is about half a mile west of the road from Holsworthy to Launceston. The church of St. Leonard is an ancient edifice of stone of the Norman, Decorated and Perpendicular periods, consisting of chancel, nave of four bays, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles at the angles, containing 3 bells, the first two dating from 1739 and the third from 1713; the font is Norman, and there are several ancient monuments and a hagioscope: the church retains a piscina, and the rood stairs remain, and

De Bathe (now represented by Sir H. De Bathe); no manorial rights are now exercised here. The Barton belongs to William Wreford esq. whose family have been landowners here since 1666. The other owners are Arthur Onslow Sillifant esq. of Coombe, Coplestone, William Kelland esq. of Exeter, Vincent Waldo Calmady Hamlyn esq. of Leawood, Bridestowe, and the Rev. John Ffoulkes Clarke B.A. vicar of South Tawton. Thorne and Walsen belong to A. O. Sillifant esq. and are occupied by William Henry Gibbins esq. The soil is a rich red loam: sub-soil, sandstone. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and roots. The area is 1,007 acres; rateable value, £1,130; the population in 1891 was 83 in the civil and 72 in the ecclesiastical parish.

By a Local Government Board Order, 16,552, which came into operation March 25, 1884, a detached part of Bow or Nymet Tracey, known as Appledore, was amalgamated with this parish for civil purposes.

Letters must be posted at Bow; arrive at 7.15 a.m. & 4.30 p.m. This parish is contributory to the Bow School Board, sending one member. The children of this place attend the school at Bow some portions of an ancient screen: the church was restored and re-seated in 1893, and affords sittings for about 250 persons. The registers date from the year 1694, and there are parish records from 1593. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £69, in the gift of the Rev. George Douglas Melhuish M.A. rector of Ashwater, and held since 1881 by the Rev. Herbert Upton Squire, of St. Aidans, who is also rector of Tetcott, where he resides. There is a Wesleyan chapel at Clawton Bridge, and one for Bible Christians at the west end of the parish. Mrs. Richard Ford, of 17 Park street, Park lane, London W. Pencarrow, Bodmin, Cornwall, and the Rev. George Douglas Melhuish M.A. are the principal landowners. H.B.H. the Duke of Cornwall and York K.G. also owns an estate in this parish. The soil is various; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are oats and roots, and some pasture land. The area is 5,387 acres of land and 22 of water; rateable value, £2,247; the population in 1901 was 329.

CLAYHIDON is a village and parish on the south side of the Blackdown Hills, near the source of the river Culm, 2 miles north-east from Hemycok terminal station of a branch from Tiverton of the Great Western railway, 15 east-north-east from Tiverton, and $4\frac{1}{2}$ south-south-east from Wellington (Somerset), in the North Eastern division of the county, hundred of Hemycok, petty sessional division of Culmpton, union and county court district of Wellington, rural deanery of Dunkswell and Honiton and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. This parish has been much improved by the inclosure of common lands and the formation of roads. The church of St. Andrew is a building of stone in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 5 bells: the interior has been repaired and embellished, and the four chancel windows are stained: there is a recessed and canopied tomb in the south aisle with the upper half of the effigy of a priest vested. The register dates from the year 1637; but the marriage register, 1789-1802, was destroyed by a fire at the glebe house. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £296, with residence and 84 acres of glebe, in the gift of the trustees of the late Gen. the Rt. Hon. Sir E. Lugard G.C.B., (P.O. (d. 1808) and J. C. Langdon esq. and held since 1870 by the Rev. Walrond Whitter Clarke M.A. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge. There is a Baptist chapel, erected in 1852, and one for Plymouth Brethren. There are charities to the amount of about £8 annually. At Newcott farm are the remains of an ancient chapel, the piscina of which has been removed to an adjacent cottage. Garlandhayes, formerly

CLOVELLY is a picturesque village on the sea coast of Bideford bay, extending down the cliffs through a ravine to the quay or harbour, and is a parish 11 miles west from Bideford station on the Torrington branch of the London and South Western railway, and 5 east-northeast from Hartland, in the North Western division of the county, Hartland hundred, Bideford petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Hartland, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of All Saints is an ancient building of stone in mixed styles, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch of Norman date and an embattled western tower containing 5 bells, 3 of which were cast in 1758: there are several memorials to the Cary family, one of which has been curiously imposed upon another of earlier date; this is a large slab about 6 feet by 2, incised with a tall floriated cross, and marginal inscription, now much worn, to Hugh Myghellstowe or Michelstowe, ob. 1488: on the head of the cross has been placed the brass effigy of a man in armour, and over his head an inscription to Robert Cary esq. ob. 15 June, 1540; on the floor of the sacrum are two small brass effigies of knights in armour, the larger of which has been assumed to represent Sir William Cary kt. killed at Tewkesbury, May 4, 1471, and the other Robert Cary esq. his son, ob. 1545; there is also a monument to Robert Cary esq. ob. 1586; a brass inscribed to George Cary esq. ob. 10 July, 1601; William Cary J.P. ob. 1652; Sir Robert Cary kt. ob. 1675, and other memorials to George Cary S.T.P. dean of Exeter, ob. Feb. 2, 1680; Sir George Cary kt. ob. 6 Jan. 1684-5, and several other members of this family: there are also monuments to the Williams family and a memorial window to Sir James Williams, erected by his daughters: the east window is a memorial to the late Neville Fane esq. and the west window to the late Rev. William Harrison M.A. rector here 1883-90: the font, a very ancient work and supposed to be Saxon, is in a good state of preservation; a new organ was erected in 1890 at a cost of £300: in May, 1893, a brass was placed in the chancel to the memory of the Rev. Charles Kingsley M.A. rector of Eversley and canon of Westminster, the distinguished poet, preacher and novelist, who died 23 Jan. 1875; the church was restored in 1866, and has 350 sittings. The register dates from the year 1686. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £260, with residence, in the gift of Mrs. Hamlyn, and held since 1899 by the Rev. Thomas Leonard Vowe Simkin M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. The late Rev. Charles Kingsley spent a portion of his boyhood at Clovelly, of which his father was rector for four years. There is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel in the village, and a Bible Christian chapel, built in 1859, on the borders of the parish. The village, approached from Bideford through a wood known as the "Hobby," is romantic and singular in its arrangement, being built in a ravine, up which the narrow street is carried almost by a succession of steps; it is much celebrated for its herring fishery. On the south side of the village are the remains of a circular encampment, called "Clovelly Dykes," an ancient British encampment, situated on very high ground, commanding the only practicable coast road in this part of the country: it consists of three trenches or dykes, inclosing a quadrilateral area, 360 feet in length and 300 in breadth. The scenery in this neighbourhood is strikingly beautiful, some fresh prospect presenting itself at every turn: the Wilderness especially is a delightful walk, and at the termination of the grounds are Gallantry Bower and Mouth Mill, the latter exhibiting curious geological contortions and remarkable arrangements of strata, where the rock scenery, surrounded by majestic woods, is extremely fine. The hills around Clovelly rise in successive elevations, and between the different ranges and spurs are densely wooded glens, through which numerous streamlets make their way: to the west, along the shores of Bideford bay, the Carboniferous rocks extend in dark heavy masses; and to the north the coast of Pembrokeshire can be made out, with Lundy island in mid-channel. Here is a Reading Room, with a library of about 500 volumes. Clovelly Court, near the village, built in 1780, is the seat of Fredk. Hamlyn esq. D.L., J.P. who is lord of the manor and sole landowner. The soil is various; the subsoil is clay and rock. The chief crops are oats and wheat. The area is 3,395 acres of land and 100 of foreshore; rateable value, £2,428; the population in 1901 was 621.

CLYST HONITON (or Honiton Clyst) is a parish and village, on the road from Exeter to Honiton and on the river Clyst, about 2 miles south from Broadclyst station on the main line of the London and South Western railway, 4 east-by-north from Exeter, in the Eastern division of the county, East Budleigh hundred, Woodbury petty sessional division, St. Thomas union, county court district of Exeter, rural deanery of Aylesbeare and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Michael is a building of stone in the Perpendicular style with some portions of Early English, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 8 bells, east by Messrs. John Taylor and Co. of Loughborough in 1882, in place of an earlier peal of 6, dating from 1608 to 1825: it appears to have been extensively restored in the 15th century and the north aisle was probably lengthened about the reign of Edward VI.: there is a curious monument to John Yarde, who led the advance over Clyst Bridge in opposition to the rebels of 1545: there are monuments to the Yarde, Short and other families, and a Norman font: there are memorial windows to the Rev. William Webber Bagnall B.A. a former vicar, erected by the parishioners in 1876 and to Rev. Henry Bawden Bullocke M.A. vicar (1875-92): the stained east window was presented by Mr. and Mrs. E. P. CLYST HYDON is a parish and village, on the river Clyst, 3 miles south-east from Hele station on the Bristol and Exeter section of the Great Western railway, 4 north from Whimble station on the London and South Western railway, 4 south from Culmington and 10 north-east from Exeter, in the North Eastern division of the county, Clyston hundred, Wonford petty sessional division, St. Thomas union, county court district of Exeter, rural deanery of Aylesbeare and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. This place derives its suffix from the Hydon family, its ancient lords. The church of St. Andrew is an ancient building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 6 bells: five of the windows are stained: the north aisle, erected in 1856, has a memorial window to General Hayshe: the porch has a finely-groined roof, and over the entrance is a shield of arms of St. Clare, quartering Courtenay, Halse and Tidwell: there are 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1552. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £410, including 89 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Mrs. Hughes, and held since 1807 by the Rev. Charles Sherwin, of St. Mary Hall, Oxford. The annual income of the charities is about £42: Dr. Hall, rector of this parish, left £15 a year for a schoolmaster and £5 a year for binding parish apprentices: the Rev. Francis Huyshe gave a field of land, the income to be divided between the schoolmaster and the poor labourers: Mr. Henry Pratt left £50, the

CLYST ST. GEORGE is a village and parish, $\frac{1}{2}$ miles east-by-north from Topsham station on the Exmouth branch of the London and South Western railway, and 5 south-east from Exeter, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of East Budleigh, petty sessional division of Woodbury, union of St. Thomas, county court district of Exeter, rural deanery of Aylesbeare and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter: it is the most southern of the six Clyst parishes, in the valley of the small river Clyst, which falls into the Exe at Topsham, and over which there is a stone bridge of five arches, on the road from Exeter to Exmouth. The church of St. George is an ancient building of red sandstone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 6 bells: in 1757 the fabric was repaired and decorated: the church was restored and reseated with open benches with finely-carved ends in 1852: in 1888, a new vestry on the north side of the chancel was added, the organ enlarged and oak choir stalls and corridor to the pulpit erected at a cost of £500: the interior walls are decorated with the "Stations of the Cross" in relief: the pulpit, inlaid with mosaic, was the gift of Samuel Parr esq. of Knowle, in 1852: two parclose screens have been erected from designs by Mr. B. Medley Fulford, architect: the carved oak reredos, with its painted panels, was executed as well as the screens, by Hems, of Exeter, and together with the communion table was given by the parishioners as a memorial to the Rev. Henry Thomas Ellacombe M.A. late rector, who died July 30th, 1885: all the windows are stained, and one of these displays the arms of John Wynard, who, with Isabella, his wife, erected the old east window: in the north aisle is a monument to the Gibbs family, dated 1652-83 and 1708, and one with arms to Richard Osborn esq. ob. Sept. 6th, 1705; there are also monuments to Richard Pidgley, a benefactor to the parish, d. Oct. 15th, 1802: on the north wall is a brass with the effigy of a lady, in veil and high-crowned hat, kneeling before a prie-dieu; on one side is an impaled shield of arms: and below an inscription to Julian Osborne (née Bonifant), ob. Aug. 18, 1614; another brass is inscribed to John Gibbs, ob. Dec. 24, 1504: a lych-gate was erected in 1867: there are 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1567. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £210, with residence and $\frac{7}{8}$ acres of glebe, in the gift of Antony Gibbs esq. and held since 1897 by the Rev. Mortimer Drury Buckingham M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford. The earliest mention of the advowson of the church is in the "Valor Ecclesiasticus"

CLYST ST. LAWRENCE is a parish and small village, 3 miles south-east from Hele station on the Bristol and Exeter section of the Great Western railway, and 3 miles north-by-west from Whimple station on the main line of the South-Western railway, 5 south-west from Cullompton and 9 north-east from Exeter, in the North Eastern division of the county, Clyston hundred, Wonford petty sessional division, St. Thomas union, county court district of Exeter, rural deanery of Aylesbeare and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Lawrence is a building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north porch and an embattled western tower, containing 5 bells: a fine old screen divides the chancel from the nave, and there is a stone figure of the Virgin and Child on the north face of the tower: the font is Norman: in the churchyard are the remains of the shaft and other portions of a cross, the head of which bears representations of the "Crucifixion." The register dates from the year 1539, but is defective, and in some parts illegible. The living is a rectory, net yearly value, £200, including 47 $\frac{1}{2}$ acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Mrs. Hodge of Plymouth, and held since 1865 by the Rev. Richard William Geldart B.A. of Clare College, Cambridge. The charities are of £2 13s. 4d. yearly value, arising from an investment of

of Pope Nicholas, 1291, wherein "Ecclesia de Clistwick" is valued at £2. The charities, producing £6 annually, are distributed in bread. Knowle, the property of Mrs. Alexander Sim, is the residence of Craven Burrell Fuller esq. In Domesday Book this manor is called "Clise-wic," and was one of fifty-eight manors granted to Ralph de Pomerai by William the Conqueror; the Plantagenet Earls of Cornwall held it in the 13th century, and in the 15th century it was held by William 1st Baron Bonville, who was beheaded by Queen Margaret, after the defeat of the Yorkists at the second battle of St. Albans, Feb. 17, 1461: Thomas (Grey), 2nd Marquis of Dorset, and his son Henry, Duke of Suffolk K.G. were the next holders; after the last-named nobleman was beheaded on Tower hill, 23rd Feb. 1554, the manor passed by grant of the Crown to the Prideaux family, who held it for several generations: it was next sold to Peter Trosse and afterwards held by William Fortescue, Thomas Dupré Porcher, in 1814, and John Creswell in 1821, whose great nephew, Col. Sir William Hood Walrond bart. M.P. is the present holder. The principal landowners are the Rev. F. Arthur Wolfe Hamilton-Gell M.A. of Winslade, Clyst St. Mary; Alexander Kelso Hamilton, of The Retreat, Topsham; Antony Gibbs esq. of Tyntesfield, Somerset; William Barnes esq. of Great Duryard; Mr. John Drewe Pratt, of Bellevue, Exmouth; the trustees of the late William Reed; Mr. J. B. Watkins, of Teignmouth and Mrs. Alexander Sim, of Harrow Weald, Middlesex. The soil is a mixture of clay and sand; subsoil, clay and large pebble. The chief crops are the usual cereals and pasture, beans alone being little grown. The area is 1,039 acres of land, 8 of tidal water and 6 of foreshore; rateable value, £2,337; the population in 1901 was 241.

£100 in Consols, the gift of William Godfrey, formerly a resident here, who left the amount named by will dated 1818, the interest to be paid annually on St. Thomas' day. From a field opposite the west side of the church tower a remarkable echo may be produced; it is most distinct in its return of many words, and the report of a gun is repeated several times. The trustees of Hele's charity are lords of the manor and chief landowners. The soil is loamy; subsoil, clay and red sand. The chief crops are beans, wheat, barley, oats and roots. The area is 1,027 acres; rateable value, £1,020; the population in 1901 was 111.

arches, having retaining walls about 200 yards long; it is $\frac{1}{2}$ miles north-east from Topsham station on the Exmouth branch of the London and South Western railway,

3½ east-south-east from Exeter, 12 north-west from Sidmouth, in the Eastern division of the county. East Budleigh hundred, Woodbury petty sessional division, St. Thomas union, Exeter county court district, rural deanery of Aylesbeare and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The village, commonly known as Clyst St. Mary, is partly in each of the parishes of Cyst St. Mary, Bishop's Cyst, Sowton and Faringdon; it was destroyed by the Royal troops in the 16th century, when Sir William Winslade is said to have been hanged as a rebel in a lane of the village. The church of St. Mary the Virgin is a cruciform building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and an embattled western tower, containing a clock, given by the late Mr. Golsworthy, of Exeter, in 1843, and 3 bells; the first and third have early Latin inscriptions; the second is dated 1674: the transepts were added in 1818: the church was restored and enlarged in 1870 and a new vestry added, through the liberality of J. Dixon esq. who died December, 1885, and to whom a memorial window has been inserted; there are several other stained windows, and the church affords 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1662. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £140, including 32 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of C. Brownlow esq. of Mount Stewart, county Down, and held since 1804 by the Rev. Fielding Arthur Wolfe Hamilton-Gell M.A., Mus.Bac. of Trinity College, Dublin & J. P. Devon. The charities are of £10 yearly value and include the Tantezen charity, consisting of a field, now let for £5 ros. yearly, for repairing the fabric of the church; Holbrook's charity of £3 for the education of poor children; a meadow left by the Rev. John Cicely and producing £1 yearly, for 4 poor labourers, and Miss Harriet

Pearson's charity of 16s. 4d. yearly for poor women: there is also a bread dole of 30 much bread as is purchasable at 4s. a quarter, payable quarterly by the tenant of Kennyfod. Winslade, the seat of the Rev. Fielding Arth. Wolfe Hamilton-Gell M.A., Mus.Bac., J.P. situated in an extensive and well-wooded park of about 200 acres, near the Cyst, is a large and substantial mansion, with a handsome Classic portico; in front of the house is a balustraded terrace, overlooking an ornamental garden and park: the house is approached from the village by a carriage drive of about half a mile, with entrance gates and a lodge. Greendale House is the seat of Marion, Lady Dunboyne. The manor was held in the 16th and 17th centuries by the Earls of Bedford, and by them sold to Peter Beavis: Lord Graves purchased it together with Sowton at commencement of this century; both are now held by Lieut.-Col. John Arthur Thomas Garratt D.L., J.P. of Bishop's Court. The Rev. F. A. W. Hamilton-Gell M.A. Marion, Lady Dunboyne, William C. Barnes esq. of Great Duryard and the Ven. Charles Wellington Furse M.A. of Halsdon, North Devon, are the chief landowners. The soil is gravel sand and clay; subsoil, red sandstone, marl and blue clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and beans. The area is 586 acres; rateable value, £1,306; the population in 1901 was 157. Sexton, Thomas Havill.

COCKINGTON, anciently, "Cochintone" and formerly a market town, is a parish and village one mile west from Torquay station on the Dartmouth branch of the Great Western railway, in the Torquay division of the county, hundred of Haytor, petty sessional division of Paignton, union and county court district of Newton Abbott and Torquay, rural deanery of Ipplepen, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter.

Under the Torquay Borough Extension Act of Nov. 9th, 1900, the Urban portion of the parish was merged into that Borough, and now forms the Chelston Ward, with a representation of 1 alderman and 3 councillors. The present parish of Cockington now consists of the excluded Rural part of the old Cockington Urban District area, also a similarly excluded part of St. Mary Church, and the district of Edginswell; this new parish for governing purposes has a Parish Council, consisting of 7 members, the ecclesiastical parishes remain as before.

The church of SS. George and Mary, which stands in the grounds of Cockington Court, is an ancient edifice of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing a clock and 3 bells, of which the first is broken; the remaining two are plain: the church was partially restored in 1882-83, the work at the east end being carried out at the sole cost of the late Richard Mallock esq. in the course of which all the windows were repaired and partly reglazed, the existing fragments of the original stained glass being carefully preserved; finely-carved stalls in oak were placed in the chancel, the chancel roof repaired and relieved by carved bosses and the rood-loft doorway and a doorway at the west end of the north aisle fitted with oak doors: the carved lectern is a memorial to members of the Woollcombe family: the east window of the south chapel is stained, and there is a memorial window to the late Richard Mallock esq. M.P., D.L., J.P. of Cockington Court, who died in 1900: a new organ was presented in 1893: the reredos of carved oak and other fittings were designed by Messrs. Hine and Odgers, architects, of Plymouth, and executed by Hems and Sons, of Exeter: the church will seat 250 persons. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1628; marriages and burials, 1632. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £159, with residence, built in 1882, in the gift of Charles Herbert Richard Mallock esq. and held since 1896 by the Rev. James Henning. The vicarage house, of red sandstone, was built in 1882-3, on a site given by the late Richard Mallock esq. Here are almshouses, endowed with £34 yearly by Sir G. Cary. Cockington Court, a building of stone, consisting of a centre and two wings, pleasantly situated in a finely timbered park of from 15 to 20 acres, is the seat of Charles Herbert Mallock esq. who is lord of the manor. The chief landowners are Charles H. Mallock esq. of Cockington Court, Wm. Hy. Kitson esq. J.P. of Shiphay House, and George H. Briery esq. of Chelston. The soil is red loam, and most of the land is pasture. The area is 1,374 acres; rateable value, £1,987; the population in 1901 was 265. Verger, B. Richards.

COFFINSWELL is a parish and village, near the Newton and Torquay high road, $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles east from Kingskerswell station on the Torquay and Dartmouth branch of the Great Western railway, 3 south-east from Newton Abbot, $3\frac{1}{2}$ north-west from Torquay and 19 south from Exeter, in the Mid division of the county, Haytor hundred, Teignbridge petty sessional division, Newton Abbot union, Newton Abbot and Torquay county court district, rural deanery of Ipplepen, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The parish was originally named Well, but being the property of the Coffin family assumed the name it now retains. The church of St. Bartholomew is a small and ancient edifice of stone in the Perpendicular style, with traces of Early English, consisting of chancel with south chantry chapel, nave, north aisle, divided from the nave by an arcade of four arches, and an embattled western tower containing 4 bells; the first two have inscriptions in Old English characters, the others are respectively dated 1262 and 1637: the chancel retains an aumbry and has also a monument to members of the Patch family, dated 1724: the font is Early English: the church was reseated in 1871, and affords 150 sittings. The register of baptisms commences in 1560; marriages, 1566; burials, 1561. The living is a vicarage, annexed to that of St. Mary Church, joint net yearly value £224, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and held since 1900 by the Rev. Arthur Bouchier.

COFTON, an ecclesiastical district formed out of Dawlish and Kenton, Feb. 5, 1864, comprises the hamlets of Cockwood, Eastdon, Middlewood, Westwood, the Warren, Week and Shutterton; it is 1 mile south from Starcross station on the Great Western railway and about 3 north from Dawlish, and consists of several villa residences, three inns, farms and cottages scattered over a wide area, and is in the Mid division of the county, Exminster hundred, Teignbridge petty sessional division, Newton Abbot union and county court district, rural deanery of Kenn, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary is an ancient building in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and a western turret containing one bell: it was erected probably not later than the 13th century, and was served in early times by the vicars of Dawlish; after having remained in a ruinous state for more than 70 years, it was restored by William Courtenay, 11th earl of Devon, and reopened for divine service Jan. 9, 1839; a handsome stone rearedos has been presented by Viscount Halifax, the chancel repaired, and the walls within the sacrum lined with tiles; a new reading desk has also been added: the stained east window is a memorial to the Courtenay family, and the west window to the Rev. John Nicholas Lightfoot M.A. 26 years pastor and first vicar here, who died Feb. 12, 1884: there is

COLATON RALEIGH is a village and parish, on the western bank of the river Otter, $6\frac{1}{2}$ south from Ottery St. Mary, 6 west by road and $3\frac{1}{2}$ by footpath from Sidmouth and 11 south-east from Exeter, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of East Budleigh, petty sessional division of Woodbury, union of St. Thomas, county court district of Exeter, rural deanery of Aylesbeare, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The branch line of the London and South Western railway from Tipton St. John's to Budleigh Salterton passes through this parish, and has a siding for goods at the foot of the village. The nearest passenger stations are Newton Poppleford and

East Budleigh, each nearly 2 miles distant. The church of St. John the Baptist is a building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel with north aisle, nave of three bays, aisles and an embattled western tower containing 6 bells: the 1st and 2nd bells were presented by parishioners and friends in 1897; the 3rd was given in the same year by the Rev. Frederick Bullock B.A. then vicar; the 4th was also re-cast: the church retains a piscina and a Norman font: there are four stained windows, one of which is a memorial to Edward Divett esq. late of Bystock, and his wife, and another to the late Rev. Noel Lowe, a former vicar: the church, with the exception of the tower and an arcade of the 13th century, was entirely rebuilt in 1875, under the direction of Mr. R. Medley Fulford F.R.I.B.A. at a cost of £2,400, and in 1896-7 a new vestry was added at a cost of £120: there are 242 sittings. The register dates from the year 1673. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £200, including 43 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1901 by the Rev. Joseph Elias Owen B.A. of Jesus College, Oxford. The Ecclesiastical Commissioners are improprators of the great tithes, with the exception of the great tithes at Bystock, which are payable to the vicar. A small Mission chapel was erected in 1889 at Hawkerland, and will hold 60 persons. The Plymouth Brethren and the Wesleys have chapels here; the latter was built in 1893, and will seat 140. There are charities for the benefit of the poor, amounting altogether to about £22 yearly. Place Court, an ancient

COLEBROOKE is a parish and village, 2 miles south from Coplestone station and 2 north-west from Yeoford station, both on the North Devon branch of the London and South Western railway, and 4 west of Crediton, in the Northern division of the county, Crediton hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Cadbury, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The London and South Western lines to Barnstaple and Plymouth pass through the parish. The church of St. Andrew is a building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, a chapel on the south side of the nave, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing a clock and 6 bells, dated respectively 1676, 1854, 1627, 1751, 1787 and 1887: the north aisle, dating from about the middle of the 15th century, was probably erected by John Copleston, and retains a handsome screen of oak, with pierced tracery and carved panels with the linen pattern: some of the ancient bench ends display the arms of Copleston and Gorges, supported by figures of savages: in the centre of the floor of the north aisle is a flat stone inscribed to John Copleston esq. ob. 1455, and his wife, ob. June 9, 1457: in the chapel are two arched canopied recesses, a piscina and two hagioscopes, and in the chancel are mural tablets to the Sillifants, to Elizabeth, wife of Sir John Coryton bart. ob. 1677, and to the Burringtons of West Sandford, 1666 and 1659, with the following quaint epitaph:—

"About this instant arose a strife, Betwixt the Claymers, Death and Life; 'Shee's mine,' saith Death,
Saith Life, 'Shee's mine, I have possession, shee's not thine,'
But Death, the stronger and more bold, Pravayed, and Life gave up her hold.

God parts the strife,
Takes her from Death againe
And gives her life
For ever to remaine."

There are modern memorials to the Hamlyns, a memorial window in the chancel to John Woolcombe Sillifant esq. of Coombe, d. 1868, and one in the chapel to Samuel Norrish esq. d. 1888: the reredos, executed by Hems of Exeter, was presented in 1896 by Mrs. F. S. Sillifant in memory of her late husband: the font has a restored cover of the 15th century: the modern sun-dial on the church is by Hems, and was the gift of Charles Turner: in 1895 the church was re-seated in oak, and now affords 200 sittings. The registers date from the year 1558. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £202, including 15½ acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and held since 1885 by the Rev. Isidore Daimpré B.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. There were once chapels at Copleston, Landsend, Horwell, Hooke and Whelmstone, of which the three latter and the ruins of that at Copleston were standing in 1772. On the 25th May, 1897, the base of an ancient cross, dating from the 5th century, was discovered in the vicarage grounds. Charities producing £9 yearly are distributed in money. At the junction of this parish with those of Crediton and Down St. Mary, stands the venerable relic known as "Copleston Cross," for which see Crediton. Higher Wootton belongs to Sir John Shelley bart.; Paschoe and Whelmstone to — Holley esq. of Leawood, near Bride-stowe, Coombe, Knowle, Landsend, Great Wootton, Painstone Barton and Penston belong to Arthur O. Sillifant esq. of Coombe, and Horwell to the representatives of the late Samuel Norrish. Hooke was anciently the property and residence of a family of the same name; tradition refers their possession to a very remote period, and it probably belonged to them from the reign of Henry III. when surnames came into general use and were chiefly taken by families from the place of their abode. Landsend, formerly the property of the Yonge family, now belongs to A. O. Sillifant esq. of Coombe, whose ancestor became possessed of the latter estate in 1677 by intermarriage with the Snell family. The manor was for centuries held by the de Bathe family, but is now the property of William Coryton esq. of Pentillie Castle, Cornwall. A. O. Sillifant esq. — Holley esq. of Leawood, Bridestowe, W. Coryton esq. Messrs. W. & J. M. Pope, and the representatives of the late Samuel Norrish esq. are the chief landowners. The soil is chiefly clay; subsoil, the same. The principal crops are wheat, barley and oats. The area is 4,770 acres; rateable value, £4,892; the population in 1891 was 705 in the civil and 719 in the ecclesiastical parish.

By Local Government Board Order, 16,408, Brittle Downs and Cottages were transferred for civil purposes, March 24, 1884, from Colebrooke to CREDITON.

COLEFORD is a hamlet, and formerly a Roman settlement, with a chapel belonging to the Plymouth Brethren.

COPPLESTONE is a village, with a station on the North Devon branch of the London and South Western railway, $\frac{1}{2}$ miles west-by-north from Crediton and 20 $\frac{1}{2}$ from London. Coppelstone was anciently the property and residence of the family of that name, whose co-heirs sold it about the year 1659 to Sir John Yonge kt. and bart. M.P.; it is now the property of John Madge Pope esq.

COLERIDGE (occasionally spelt Coldridge) is a parish and village, on the river Tav, and the road from Crediton to Torrington, 3 miles south from Eggesford station on the North Devon branch of the London and South Western railway, $\frac{1}{2}$ south from Chulmleigh and 10 north-west from Crediton, in the South Molton division of the county, North Tawton hundred, South Molton petty sessional division, Crediton union and county court district, rural deanery of Chulmleigh, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Matthew is an edifice of stone, originally built during the 12th century, but now chiefly in the Early Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 6 bells: it has a very fine old oak screen, with three doors complete: a portion of the church was partially restored in 1877-8 by the Earl of Portsmouth, at a cost of £500, and it is now (1901) undergoing a complete restoration. The register dates from the year 1556. The living is a vicarage, with the rectory of Nymet Rowland annexed, joint net yearly value £231, including 115 acres of glebe, in the gift of W. Richardson esq. and held since 1899 by the Rev. Joseph Johnson, of Durham University, who resides at Nymet Rowland. There is a chapel for the Brethren at Atterbridge. Coleridge Barton, formerly the property of Sir J. H. Williams bart. was bought in 1876 by Mr. William Harris, yeoman; Birch Barton is the property of Charles Henry Jellicoe Radford esq. of Exeter; Gilscoth belongs

COLYTON is a small market town, standing on an acclivity in the beautiful vale of the river Ooly, with a station on the Seaton branch of the London and South Western railway, and is 3 miles from the sea at Seaton, 9 north-east from Sidmouth, 7 north-west from Lyme Regis, 5 south-west from Axminster, 7 south-east from Honiton and 149½ from London, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred of Colyton, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Axminster, rural deanery of Dunkeswell and Honiton, archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. Since 1860 this town, which has eight clean and airy streets with well-built houses, has been greatly improved, and is well supplied with water through pipes laid down by the Charity Feoffees, who have placed tanks in various parts of the town, and is lighted with gas by a company. The parish church of St. Andrew is a fine cruciform structure of flint, with Beer stone dressings, chiefly in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north and south aisles running the entire length of the church, transepts, south porch, and a central embattled tower with pinnacles and an octagonal lantern of the Late Decorated period: the east window is stained: a rich stone screen, erected by Dr. Brerewood, and formerly inclosing the south transept, has been removed to the Pole chantry, and in the chancel there is a canopied altar-tomb of elaborate Perpendicular work, with effigy, to Margaret, daughter of William Courtenay, Earl of Devon, by Katherine, daughter of Edward IV.; she died at Colecombe Castle, 1512, being choked by a fish bone: north of the chancel is the Yonge chantry, and on the south side the Pole chantry; these contain some curious monuments to the Yonge and Pole families: in the south transept is a large inscribed stone to John Wilkins, vicar in the Commonwealth period, but ejected in 1662: here is also a coffin-shaped stone, with a cross botonée on one side, and an inscription of the 16th century and arms on the other: there are 800 sittings, half being free. The register (a very fine book, in excellent preservation) dates from 1538, and continues without a break for 270 years. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £249, with residence and 5 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and held since 1860 by the Rev. Mamerto Gueritz B.A. of St. Edmund Hall, Oxford: of the vicarage house, rebuilt by Thomas Brerewood D.D. vicar, in 1529, only the porch remains; this bears the inscription:—"Peditatio totum; meditatio totum; A.D. 1529;" the arms of Bishop Veysey and the rose and pomegranate, with various escutcheons. There is a Congregational chapel, erected in 1814; a Unitarian chapel, erected in 1840 and a Wesleyan chapel, and places of worship for the Brethren and the Catholic Apostolic church. The cemetery of 2½ acres, with a receiving house, was formed in 1859, at a cost of about £1,000, and is now under the control of the parish council; it was enlarged about 1893 by one acre, at a cost of £300. The factories include four grist mills, one on the river Ooly, another on the Umborne and two in the town: there is also a tan-yard, a foundry, and steam saw mills on the road to the station. Honiton lace is made to some extent. The ancient market house was repaired about 1853. Markets were formerly held on Thursday and Saturday, but have now fallen into disuse; annual fairs are held on the third Tuesday in April and the second Tuesday in October: there is also a fair at the hamlet of Colyford in March, for which a portreeve, who takes the profits, is elected. The early closing day is on Wednesday. In the town is a small reading room. The charity lands of the parish, yielding a rental of about £400 a year, are managed by seven feoffees and twenty sidesmen: the charities comprise houses and land, forming part of the forfeited estates of the Marquess of Exeter; there is also a rent-charge of £3 for distribution in bread, left by Thomas Holmes in 1670, and the dividends of £100 Consols, left by Isaac Grigg in 1812. "The Great House," up to 1790 the chief residence of the opulent and knightly family of Yonge, and now occupied by Mr. John Mountstephen, is a picturesque mansion, entered from the street by a fine elliptic arch set in flint work; the house was probably built by John Yonge esq. who died in 1612, and contains some good wainscoting: a large upper room exhibits the royal cypher of James I. and a thistle. Sir John Yonge kt. of Colyton, was made a baronet at the Restoration, but the title became extinct on the death of the Right Hon. Sir George Yonge bart. M.P. in 1810. Sir Edmund Reginald Talbot Pole bart. of Shute House, Axminster, who is lord of the manor, and John Impey Scarborough esq. of Colyford, are the chief landowners. The soil is gravelly; subsoil, marl. The parish is for the most part agricultural, producing large quantities of wheat, barley, beans, peas and esculents of every sort. The area is 6,308 acres of land, 23 of water, 10 of tidal water and 3 of foreshore; rateable value, £10,967; the population in 1891 was 2,152 in the civil and 2,188 in the ecclesiastical parish.

By Local Government Order 15,919, detached parts of this parish have been added for civil purposes to Southleigh, in Honiton union, March 25, 1885.

Parish Clerk, Frank Gueritz.

Colecombe, half a mile north, was formerly the seat of the Courtenay family. The castle, originally built by Hugh de Courtenay, Earl of Devon, towards the end of the 13th century, was partly rebuilt by Henry Courtenay, Marquess of Exeter, but after his execution, Jan. 9, 1540, it was escheated to the Crown, and subsequently restored by Queen Mary to Edward, Marquess of Exeter, who died at Padua, Oct. 4, 1556; it was afterwards purchased by William Pole esq. of Shute, whose son, Sir William Pole kt. historian and antiquary, completed the work begun by Lord Exeter, and made Colecombe his residence; the older portion is now ruinous, but part has been converted into a farmhouse; in a field above the castle is an ancient recessed well, with an arched doorway and containing a fine spring of water.

Purlbridge is a hamlet 2½ miles north-west.

Colyford, 1 mile south, though now called a tithing, was made a borough by the lord of the manor before the reign of Edward I. and has a station on the Seaton branch of the South Western railway. The chapel of ease here, built at the expense of the late Mrs. Scarborough, in Jan. 1889, in memory of her father, Admiral Impey, is an edifice of brick faced with flint, relieved by dressings of Beer stone, in the Decorated style, and consists of chancel with vestry, nave, south transept and a stone bell-gable over the west front: the east end is lighted by three stained windows, and there is a canopied reredos of carved oak, erected as a memorial to Marian Impey Scarbrough, who died 9 Dec. 1891, by her son, E. J. Scarbrough esq.: in the centre of the work is a group in high relief representing "the Entombment," after a picture by Baccio Della Porta (Fra Bartolommeo), in the Pitti palace at Florence: there are sittings for 200: the services are conducted by the clergy of Colyton. Here is a Wesleyan chapel, erected in 1833.

COMBE-IN-TEIGNHEAD is a parish and village, in the Teign valley, about half a mile from the south bank of the river, 3 miles west from Newton Abbot and 3 south-west from Teignmouth station on the Great Western railway, 10 north-east-by-north from Totnes and 6 north-west-by-north from Torquay, in the Mid division of the county, Wonford hundred, Teignbridge petty sessional division, Newton Abbot union, Newton Abbot and Torquay county court district, rural deanery of Moreton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. Under the "Divided Parishes Act, 1882," this place was annexed, 25 March, 1885, to the adjoining parish of Hacombe, which for all civil purposes is now known as "Hacombe-with-Combe." The church is an ancient cruciform edifice of stone in the Perpendicular style, with some Norman details, consisting of chancel, nave of three bays, aisles, transept, north porch and an embattled western tower with four crocketed pinnacles and a turret containing a clock and 6 bells, re-hung in 1897 at a cost of £100: the east and west windows are stained, the latter having been presented by the rector in 1887: the rood screen and the seats in the north transept, belonging to the Carew family, are of old and richly-carved oak: the interior of the church was thoroughly restored in 1887-8, at a cost of £1,300, from designs by Mr. R. M. Fulford, architect, of Exeter, when a new organ was erected, the old seats replaced by solid oak benches, the aisles and chancel floor repaved, the nave and aisles refloored with wood blocks, the exquisitely carved chancel screen cleaned and restored and a new oak pulpit erected: the Norman 47 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the representatives of the late Mrs. Drewe, and held since 1898 by the Rev. Robert Lionel Locke. Arthur Francis Bernard esq. J.P. of Abbots, is lord of the manor and chief landowner. Woodbine Hill is the residence of Major H. W. M. Shewell. The soil is clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and grass. The acreage is 1,623; rateable value, £2,049; the population in 1901 was 200 in the civil and 233 in the ecclesiastical parish in 1891.

By Local Government Board Order 16,349, which came into operation March 24, 1888, a detached part of this parish was, for civil purposes, transferred to Monkton.

font of Beer stone has a circular basin, carved and enriched with diaper work: in the north transept is an altar tomb with arms and brass to Alyce Hockmore, of Buckland Barton, ob. April 2nd, 1613; there is also a brass to Anne Frances, wife of Sir Walter Palk Carew bart. d. June 8th, 1859, erected by the inhabitants of this parish, and there are numerous tablets to the Wrey, Willings, Metherell, Sanders, Martin and Lang families: the church affords 230 sittings, and is approached through two lych gates. The register dates as follows:—Baptisms from the year 1669; marriages and burials from 1653. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £368, including 52 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Sir Robert B. S. Wrey bart. of Tawstock, and held since 1864 by the Rev. Bouchier William Toke Wrey S.C.L. of Trinity College, Cambridge. There are a few small charities. The Earl of Bath left a house called "Church House," the rent, £3, to be applied towards the repairs of the church, and 5s. yearly from the Bridge Estate for the poor; Miss Margaret Burgoyne left in 1789 the interest on £100, for teaching 10 poor children to read; in 1862 the Rev. John Wrey, of Teignmouth, formerly rector of this parish, gave a sum of £1,500, of which the rector of this parish and the Archdeacon of Totnes for the time being are the trustees, the interest (now amounting to £75 yearly) to be apportioned towards the support of the school, the lying-in charity, the repair of the ornamental parts of the church, cleaning the churchyard, to provide coals, clothing and bread for the poor, and in aid of the Teignmouth Infirmary and the Exeter Hospital. Joseph Woodis Clulow Washington esq. of Starcross, is lord of the manor, the Earl of Devon, the Misses Carew, of Hacombe, and Arthur Denis H. H. Reynell-Pack esq. of Netherton House, Newton Abbot, are the principal landowners. The soil is of sandstone and clay; subsoil, gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots, and there is much pasture land. The area is 2,546 acres of land, including Hacombe, 35 of tidal water and 161 of foreshore; rateable value, £3,245; the population in 1891 was—in the ecclesiastical parish, 520, and in the civil parish, 545.

The parish includes the hamlet of Netherton, about 1 mile west from the village, where there are three farms and several new houses. Arthur Denis Henry Heber Reynell-Pack esq. of Netherton House, is lord of the manor of Netherton and principal landowner. The small hamlet of Middle Rocombe is 2 miles south. Combe Cellars, half a mile north, on the south bank of the river, consists of the Ferry Boat inn, with tea gardens attached, much frequented by visitors during the summer months.

Penn Inn is about 2 miles west, on the road to Newton Abbot. By an Order of the Local Government Board, COMBEMARTIN (or Combe Martin) is a parish and village, consisting of one irregular street, extending from the shore nearly a mile in length up the side of a valley, about 6 miles east from Ilfracombe station on the London and South Western railway, in the North Western division of the county, Braunton hundred and petty sessional division, Barnstaple union and county court district, rural deanery of Sherwell, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. This was formerly a market town, and the charter is still preserved. The church of St. Peter is a building of ruddy stone in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel with aisle, nave, north aisle, transepts, north and south porches and an embattled western tower of Perpendicular date, 100 feet in height, with four pinnacles, and containing a clock and 6 bells, recast by Taylor, of Oxford, in 1827: the screen separating the chancel from the nave is particularly fine and has painted panels with figures of the Apostles: there is also a parclose rood staircase: in the south aisle is a mural monument with finely carved effigy to the wife of Thomas Ivatt, ob. 1634, and there is also a well-preserved brass to William Hancock esq. dated 1587: there are seven stained windows, two of which in the chancel were painted by the late Mrs. Tyrrell, and another contains ancient glass formerly in an old window: in the vestry is an oak chest, and the north aisle of the chancel retains portions of carved oak benches: the church was restored in 1881, at a cost of £500, and has 450 sittings. The register dates from the year 1736. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £307, with 70 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of and held since 1842 by the Rev. Humphry William Toms M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford, and J.P. The chapel of Holy Trinity, a chapel of ease to St. Peter's church, is an iron building, presented to the rector by Mrs. Whitehead, and erected by him in 1885 on his own land: it consists of nave and a western turret containing one bell. There are also Baptist and Wesleyan chapels with Sunday schools attached. The Free Library, opened in 1892, was taken over by the parish council in 1896, and two members of the council act as librarians. Conservative and Liberal clubs were formed in 1896. In the parish is a small umber mine, and lime burning is extensively carried on. The mines in the parish, containing lead and silver ore, have been worked from the time of Edward I. and were at times very productive. Between 1796 and 1802 9,293 tons of rich ore were shipped to South Wales, and the mines were again worked in 1813 and 1835 at great expense, but are now entirely neglected. A silver cup, 1370z. in weight, presented by Queen Elizabeth to Sir R. Martin, Lord Mayor of London, and still used at the annual inauguration of the lord mayors, bears the date of 1593, and is said to be made of metal obtained from these mines. The trustees of the late Lady Watson-Copley, of Sprotbrough Hall, W. Yorks, are lords of the manor and principal landowners. The soil is loam; subsoil, rock. The valley is very productive, and the cottagers supply quantities of fruit and vegetables to Lynton and Ilfracombe. The chief crops are pasture, fruit and vegetables. The area of the parish is 3,670 acres of land and 127 of foreshore; assessable value, £4,024; the population in 1891 was 1,407.

COMBYPNE is a parish and village, one mile from the road leading from Lyme Regis to Sidmouth and about a mile from the celebrated landsip at Dowlands, in the parish of Axmouth, $3\frac{1}{2}$ miles east from Colyford station on the Seaton branch of the London and South Western railway, $\frac{1}{2}$ mile south from Axminster and about 11 south-east from Honiton, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Axminster, rural deanery of Dunkeswell and Honiton and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary is a small and ancient building of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a belfry containing 3 bells: in 1855, during the incumbency of the Rev. Zachary James Edwards M.A. considerable alterations were made, when the porch was removed from the north to the south side, the interior renewed, re-seated and open seats substituted for the old pews: the stained east window is a memorial to two sons of the Rev. William Poulton, formerly rector, and there is also a stained window in the nave to Mrs. Pearce, dated 1875: the chancel and the roof of the nave were restored in 1878: in the east wall of the chancel is a mural monument to Nicholas

COMPTON GIFFORD was formed into a civil parish in 1898, and comprises that portion of the ancient parish not incorporated with Plymouth in 1896: it is 1 mile north from Plymouth, in the Western division of the county, Roborough hundred, Midland Roborough petty sessional division, Plympton St. Mary union, East Stonehouse county court district, and within the ecclesiastical parish of Emanuel, Plymouth. The area is 150 acres of Pinney, rector, dated December 1st, 1693; and there are tables to the Oke family, former residents in the parish: the church plate includes a chalice with hexagonal base and a paten, both of which belonged to the church prior to the Reformation: the church affords 90 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from 1681; marriages, 1690; burials, 1691. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £108, including 32 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of trustees, but pro hac vice by lapse the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1892 by the Rev. Clement Robert Chope B.A. of Exeter College, Oxford. The trustees of the late Henry Knight esq. of Cloakham House, Axminster, are lords of the manor and chief landowners. The soil is chalky; subsoil, sandstone. The crops are wheat, barley and pasturage. The area is 799 acres; rateable value, £667; the population in 1891 was 106.

COOKBURY is a parish and village, 3 miles north from Dunsland Cross station on the Holsworthy branch of the London and South Western railway and $\frac{1}{2}$ north-east from Holsworthy, in the Western division of the county, Black Torrington hundred, Holsworthy petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Holsworthy, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. John the Baptist and the seven Maccabees (see Bp. Stapledon's Register, fol. 107), otherwise assigned in the Liber Regis to the Holy Trinity, is a very ancient and interesting edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of nave, north aisle and south porch and a western tower containing 3 bells, the first of which has an inscription in Lombardic characters and is cracked; the second is inscribed "Soli. Deo. Gloria"; the tenor dates from 1668: the church was some years since restored and a beautiful oak screen and an eagle lectern of the same material added: the old oak benches, some of which are curiously carved, have been restored; the pulpit, also of oak and elaborately carved, was made from timber brought from Launceston church: there are 150 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year

CORNWOOD is a village and scattered parish, on the borders of Dartmoor, in the valley of the Yealm, by which river it is intersected, and bounded on the north-east by the Erme, with a station 1 mile south of the village, on the South Devon section of the Great Western railway, and is $\frac{1}{2}$ miles north-east from Plymouth, 12 south-south-west from Tavistock and 238 from London, in the Southern division of the county, Ermington hundred, Plympton St. Mary union, East Stonehouse county court district, rural deanery of Plympton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The townships of Lutton, Houndle, Dinaton, Torr and part of the considerable village of Ivybridge are in the parish. The church of St. Michael is an ancient building of stone, chiefly in the Perpendicular style of the 15th century, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, transepts, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing a clock presented by Lady Blachford, in commemoration of her husband, in 1892, and 6 bells cast by John Pennington and Co. in 1770, except the first, which was cast at Cullompton in 1835: the church retains sedilia and a piscina and the remains of a richly-carved rood screen: the tower and chancel are older than the other portions of the building: the chancel was restored in 1867, at a considerable cost, by the late Lord Blachford, who also placed in the south transept a stained window: the communion rails are of marble and alabaster: the church was further restored subsequent to 1873, at a cost of £2,360, and affords 400 sittings. The register dates from the year 1685. The living is a vicarage, net yearly income £360, including 99 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1888 by the Rev. James Terry Mundy M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford. There is a Congregational chapel at Lutton with sittings for 100. The parish lands produce £75 yearly. Blachford is the residence of the 1749; marriages from 1754, and there are also entries here of baptisms and burials belonging to the parish of Milton Damerel from 1749 until 1791. The living is a vicarage, annexed to the rectory of Milton Damerel, joint net yearly value £385, including 50 acres of glebe at Cookbury, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1890 by the Rev. Richard Liney L.Th. of Durham University, who resides at Milton Damerel. There is a Bible Christian chapel. In the year 1817 Miss Bickford, of Dunsland, gave by will the interest of £459, to be equally divided every year between the poor of this parish and that of Bradford. Henry Fairfax Harvey esq. of Highcroft, Heavitree, Exeter, is lord of the manor of Stapleton, and chief landowner; Mrs. English, of Bradford Manor House, is also a landowner. The soil is chiefly clay; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats and roots. Area, 2,736 acres; rateable value, £849; population in 1901 was 146.

Parish Clerk, William Penwarden.
Letters through Brandis Corner R.S.O. arrive at 7 a.m. which is the nearest money order office, & telegraph office at Dunsland Cross railway station, 3 miles distant. The children of this place attend the school at Bradford

Misses Deare, who own the great tithes and the manor of Blachford. Slade, once the seat of a family of that name, and afterwards of the Coles and Saverys, is now the seat of John Duke Pode esq. M.A., J.P. and is about a mile south. Delamore is the residence of Admiral George Parker J.P. The principal landowners are Lady Blachford, Admiral G. Parker, who is lord of the manor of Cornwood, and J. D. Pode esq. lord of the manor of Fardell. The parish contains 10,283 acres of land, of which upwards of 6,000 are common and wood, extending 6 miles northwards on Dartmoor, and 30 of water; rateable value, £9,638; the population in 1891 was 1,258 in the civil and 1,104 in the ecclesiastical parish.

Dinaton, $\frac{1}{2}$ miles north-east, and Houndle, 1 mile south-east, are hamlets; Torr is 1 mile north-east.

Lutton hamlet is about a mile south-west. Fardell, an old farm-house, was formerly the property of the Raleigh family, through an intermarriage with the heiress of the Newtons; Wymond Raleigh, grandfather of the famous navigator, lived here and it was no doubt the birthplace of his father, and occasionally his residence (but see East Budleigh).

CORNWORTHY is a small village, adjoining the road from Totnes to Dartmouth, $\frac{1}{2}$ miles south-east from Totnes station on the main line of the Great Western railway, and 6 north-west from Dartmouth, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Coleridge, petty sessional division of Stanborough and Coleridge, Totnes union and county court district, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The parish has many hamlets, and lies among the hills near the confluence of the Harbour river with the estuary of the Dart. The church of St. Peter is a building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 6 bells, all cast in 1781: there is a fairly good screen and effigies in the church of the Harris family, and in the churchyard is a memorial to the Rev. Charles Barter, vicar of this parish 71 years, who died in his 97th year: the church has 300 sittings. The register dates from the year 1542. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £154, with residence and including 35 acres of glebe, in the gift of Edward Garthwaite Parish esq. of London, and held since 1898 by the Rev. Arthur Sandbach M.A. of Christ's College, Cambridge. Here is a Wesleyan chapel, built in 1896. The Tuckenhay paper mills (hand made paper) belonging to Arthur Millbourn & Co. are in this parish, and provide employment for a large number of persons. Dame Elizabeth Harris, in the 17th century, left £40 yearly for charitable and religious purposes.

CORYTON is a small parish near the confluence of the rivers Lew and Lyd, with a station $\frac{1}{2}$ mile west from the church, on the Launceston branch of the Great Western railway, and is $8\frac{1}{2}$ miles north from Tavistock, 9 east from Launceston, and 263 from London, in the Western division of the county, Lifton hundred and petty sessional division, Tavistock union and county court district, rural deanery of Tavistock, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Andrew is a small building in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, north transept, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 3 bells; the 1st has the legend "Sancte Petre ora pro nobis"; the 2nd dates from 1709 and the tenor from 1684: the chancel has lancet windows and appears to be Early English work: the transept was added in 1038: the church was thoroughly restored in 1885 at a cost of £1,400. The register dates from the year 1654. The living is a rectory, net yearly income £180, including 70 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Robert Lydston Newman esq. and held since 1880 by the Rev. George Davey Symonds B.A. of Trinity College, Dublin. There is a charity, producing £20, being a share of £80 yearly left by Arthur Tremayne, in 1808, to be equally divided in the parishes of Coryton, Lamerton, South Sydenham and Marystowe. Here is a slate quarry. Some of the cottages in this parish, built by the late T. Newman esq. are of a much better character than those usually provided for the occupation of the labouring COTLEIGH is a small parish and village 3 miles north-east-by-east from Honiton station on the London and South Western railway, and 7 north-west from Axminster, in the Eastern division of the county, Colyton hundred, Honiton union, county court district and petty sessional division, rural deanery of Dunkeswell and Honiton and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St.

Here was once an Augustinian nunnery, founded in the 14th century by A. Zouch; the revenues, at the dissolution, were estimated at £63, and there were then 7 nuns; a gateway and portions of the chapel are still standing. There are also remains of a Roman encampment. The Rev. William F. Newman M.A. vicar of Hockworthy, near Wellington, Somerset, who is lord of the manor of Cornworthy, Messrs. William P. Paige, James Tozer, Claud Allen Shipperson, William Ferris and Miss Ley are the chief landowners. The soil is loamy; subsoil, rock, slate and limestone. The chief crops are barley, oats, root crops and fruit. The area is 2,625 acres of land, 83 of tidal water and 175 of foreshore; rateable value, £3,088; the population in 1901 was 329.

Allaleigh, 2 miles south-west; East Cornworthy, $\frac{1}{2}$ south-east; and Tideford, 1 mile south-by-west, are hamlets.

Michael is a building of flint and stone in the Early Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and a western tower containing 5 bells: in the north aisle is a slab bearing an incised cross pommée: the church was restored in 1867, partly from funds furnished by Hobbs's charity: the chancel was rebuilt by the late rector: there are sittings for 130 persons. The registers date from 1611, but are very deficient at that period and for some time subsequently. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £188, including 28 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Louisa Lady Ashburton, and held since 1882 by the Rev. John Hawker M.A. of Balliol College, Oxford. Here is a chapel for Bible Christians, erected in 1890. There are charities of £18 yearly, arising from land, for sustaining the fabric of the church. The principal landowners are the Marquess of Northampton, who is lord of the manor, and the Misses Outhwaite, of Rougemont, Exeter. The soil is clayey; the subsoil is marl and gravel. The chief crops are wheat, barley and oats. The acreage is 1,270; rateable value, £1,363; the population in 1901 was 186.

COUNTRESS WEAR (or Weir) is an ecclesiastical parish, formed September 14, 1844, from the civil parish of Topsham, and is on the banks of the Exe, 2 miles south-by-east from Exeter, in the North Eastern division of the county, Wonford hundred and petty sessional division, St. Thomas union, Exeter county court district, rural deanery of Aylesbeare and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Luke, erected at a cost of £1,200, is an edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, erected in 1895 at a cost of about £1,000, nave and western turret containing one bell: there are 300 sittings. The registers date from the year 1844. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £250, without residence, in the gift of the vicar of Topsham, and held since 1893 by the Rev. Lewis Edward Bartlett M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge. Wear House, the seat of Col. Sir Dudley Gordon Alan Duckworth-King bart. D.L., J.P. is a plain stone mansion with a fine Doric portico, and is surrounded by ornamental grounds and gardens, 100 acres in extent; on the lawn in front of the house are four granite cannon balls, brought from the Dardanelles in 1807, the largest of which weighs 8½ cwt. Newcourt is at present (1901) unoccupied. Fairfield Lodge is the residence of Alexander Henry Abercromby Hamilton esq. D.L., J.P. The principal landowner is Colonel Sir D. G. A. Duckworth-King bart. The soil is loamy; subsoil, gravel and red sandstone. The chief crops are wheat, barley and roots; the population in 1901 was 394.

COUNTISBURY is a parish and small village, on the coast, closely bordering on Somersetshire, and bounded on the south-west by the river Lyn, 2 miles east from Lynton village, about 3 from Lynton station, the terminus of the Lynton and Barnstaple branch of the London and South Western railway (opened in 1897), and 22 north-west from Barnstaple, in the North Western division of the county, Sherwill hundred, Braunton petty sessional division, Barnstaple union and county court district, rural deanery of Sherwill, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. By an Order in Council dated July 6, 1886, the hamlet of Lynmouth, in the civil parish of Lynton, was ecclesiastically annexed to this parish. The church of St. John the Evangelist, situated on a lofty and much exposed eminence, is an ancient edifice of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 3 bells: there are 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1676. The living is a vicarage, with Lynmouth annexed, net yearly value £150, including 21 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1886 by the Rev. Albert Richards Hockley, who resides at Lynmouth. The only local charity is the interest on £500 left by the Rev. R. W.

Halliday, for the poor. On Oldborough or Oldbarrow Down, near the village, there is a Danish encampment, supposed to be one of the most perfect in the country. Miss Constance Halliday, who is lady of the manor and sole landowner, resides at Glenthorne, a modern mansion, situated in a romantic glen at the base of the hill, 1,200 feet high, near the Minehead road, to which an avenue has been cut through the solid rock; the grounds of 407 acres are extensively and tastefully laid out. The soil is stony, a great portion being waste or heath lands. The chief crops are oats and pasture. The parish contains 2,944 acres of land, 14 of water and 243 of foreshore; assessable value, £1,655; the population of Countisbury in 1891 was 233, and including 212 in Lynmouth, 545.

CREACOMBE is a small parish, on the river Sturcombe, 6 miles south-west from East Anstey station on the Somerset and Devon branch of the Great Western railway, 10 north-north-west from Tiverton, and 10 south-west from Bampton, in the Northern division of the county, Witheridge hundred, South Molton petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of South Molton, archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Michael, rebuilt in 1857 by Mrs. Karslake, mother of the late rector, is a small edifice in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and a small bell-gable containing one bell: the east window is a memorial, and was presented by the landowners: the triangular-headed doorway is probably Saxon, and there is an early font, with a plain circular basin: there are 120 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1695; marriages, 1759. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £175, including 311 acres of glebe, in the gift of Sir W. W. Karslake, and held since 1896 by the Rev. Alexander Frederick De Gex, who is also rector of and resides at Meshaw. Sir W. W. Karslake K.C. of 8 Curzon street, London W. is lord of the manor. The Hon. Mark George Kerr Rolle, J. Quicke esq. and the Rev. John Peter Benson M.A. vicar of Witheridge, and Mr. L. Davies are the landowners. The soil is good, but clayey; subsoil, clay and shillet. The chief

CREDITON is a market and union town and parish upon rising ground between two hills, on the west bank of the river Creedy and on the high road from Exeter to Barnstaple, Bideford and South Molton; it is the head of a hundred, petty sessional division and county court district, with a station on the main line of the London and South Western railway, and is 8 miles north-west from Exeter, 20 south-east from South Molton, 18 east-by-north from Okehampton, 12 south-west from Tiverton and 179 from London by road and 201 by railway, in the Northern division of the county, hundred of Crediton, rural deanery of Cadbury and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. It is divided into East and West Towns, the church and the railway station being in the former, and the Town hall and the principal shops in the latter: the private houses are more equally distributed over the two districts, but the majority of the inns belong to the West Town. In the 15th century Crediton was a borough town, and its ancient seal, with the date 1469, still exists; in the reign of Edward I. it sent representatives to Parliament.

The town was, under the Act 6 and 7 William IV. c. 25, governed by a board of Improvement Commissioners of 30 members, formed in 1836; but an Urban District Council of 12 members has been constituted, under the provisions of the Local Government Act, 1894 (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73).

Under section 1, sub-section 3 of the Act of 1894, the original parish of Crediton has been divided into two civil parishes, viz.: Crediton Town and Crediton Hamlets.

The town is lighted with gas by a company. Water works were erected by the Crediton Improvement Commissioners, in 1893, at a cost of about £11,000: the town is supplied on the gravitation principle from three reservoirs, a low service one holding 120,000 gallons, a high service reservoir of 60,000 gallons; a third reservoir having a capacity of 40,000 gallons, fixed at the highest point in the district and filled by a windmill erected over the high service reservoir, where there is also a gas engine, used as an auxiliary power. The houses on George hill, and others above the gravitation level, are served from the third reservoir: the supply is obtained from Walsen, in the parish of Clannaborough, 7 miles distant.

During the Civil War the town was alternately occupied by the belligerents on both sides, and in 1644 was visited by Charles I. who reviewed his troops here; in the same year Prince Maurice made the town his head quarters, as did Sir Thomas Fairfax in 1646; in 1743, and again in 1769, it was much injured by fires.

In 1897 Crediton was named the head of a suffragan bishopric, the Right Rev. Robert Trefusis M.A. canon of Exeter, being consecrated as Bishop of Crediton, for the diocese of Exeter.

The original church, which stood on or near the site of the present building, was from A.D. 909 to A.D. 1050 the cathedral of the bishops of Devonshire, who were also, from 1032, bishops of Cornwall: on the removal of the see to Exeter, by Bishop Leofric, the church was made collegiate, with a precentor as president, a treasurer, dean or perpetual vicar, 18 canons, as many vicars, and choral members: after the Dissolution the church, with some lands, was granted for the sum of £200, by Edward VI. by deed dated 2nd April, 1547, to twelve of the principal inhabitants, viz. nine of Crediton and three of Sandford, incorporated as the Twelve Governors of the church of Crediton, by whose successors the church is still kept in repair out of the great tithes of Crediton, Sandford and Exminster, with which they are endowed for that purpose. The present church of the Holy Cross is a fine cruciform building of stone, 228 feet by 58 feet, the transepts measuring together 85 feet, and consists of choir of five bays, with aisles and clerestory, and an eastern Lady chapel, nave of six bays, with clerestory, aisles, transepts with eastern aisles or chapels, south porch, with parvise, used as a library, and containing a number of chained books, and a massive embattled central tower containing a clock and 8 bells, all cast in 1774, except the tenor, which is dated 1814: the whole edifice is embattled, and the tower, of two stages, is surmounted by four octagonal embattled turrets, with crocketed spirelets and vanes: the basement of the tower is Transitional Norman and Early English: the building was in progress in 1409 and 1511, but the structure was mainly rebuilt before the middle of the 15th century: the nave has large and lofty windows, and both nave and chancel are of unusual length: the Lady chapel is Early Decorated, and the transepts Perpendicular: in the church is an altar-tomb, with effigy robed and wearing a collar of SS, to William Peryam, ob. October 9, 1604, Justice of the Common Pleas 1581-93, and afterwards Chief Baron of the Exchequer: at the east end of the south side of the choir are two recumbent effigies of a knight in plate armour and a lady; the former wears a bascinet with camail and a hauberk covered by a tunic bearing three chevrons; the female effigy is in a close-fitting dress with mantle, but is much mutilated; these figures are assumed to represent Sir John Sully, a warrior who fought at Cressy (1346) and Poitiers (1356), and in 1385-90, at the age of 105, gave evidence in the famous Scrope and Grosvenor controversy; his wife was one of the co-heirs of FitzRobert, Baron of Torrington: in the north choir aisle is a slab once containing the brass of a bishop, and there are some memorials to the ancient family of Prowz, including a flat stone inscribed to Francis Prowz M.D. of Fordton, ob. 5 October, 1696, his son Francis 1716, and Constance, wife of the latter, 1714; near it is a tablet to Mrs. Honor Prowse, ob. 1 July, 1773; there are also two coffin slabs, bearing crosses: a fine old font remains, and there are three richly worked stone stalls, serving as sedilia, at the back of which, and facing the aisle, is a recess, with a canopy, inclosing a flat table monument: four windows in the Lady chapel and one in the chapel of St. Nicholas are stained: the great west window has been filled with stained glass as a memorial to the Rev. J. R. Nankivell M.A. chaplain 1867-84, at a cost of £300, and in 1896 a stained window was placed at the east end, at a cost of £450; the choir stalls are placed under the central tower: the chancel, raised four steps above the nave, is paved with marble mosaic, and has been furnished with Miserere stalls of English oak, with richly carved tracery and carved poppy heads, at a cost of £450, from designs by Messrs. Tait and Harvey, architects, of Exeter, and executed by Mr. W. Dart: the altar steps are of polished marble and the mosaic paving in the sacrum is of rich design and highly polished: south-east of the choir is a large building, probably the ancient Chapter House, but now divided into three storeys, containing on the ground floor a convenient vestry and large vestibule; on the next floor are two rooms, one of which is used as a choir vestry; during the refitting of this room at the beginning of 1897 some 20 lbs. in weight of silver coins of the reigns of Elizabeth and Charles II. were found concealed under the floor; and on the upper floor a spacious room, now used for the meetings of the "Corporation of the Governors of the Church," and containing some curious ancient chests, and pieces of old armour: the church was restored in 1880-81, at a cost of £1,400, and refloored and reseated in 1889, at a cost of £2,500, and has 900 sittings. The register dates from the year 1564, but is much defaced. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £340, with residence and 1 acre of glebe, in the gift of the Twelve Governors of the church of Crediton, and held since 1901 by the Rev. Walter Montgomery Smith-Dorrien M.A. of Magdalen College, Oxford, and B.D. of Durham University. Attached to the church of Holy Cross is a chaplaincy, endowed with £200 and house, and held since 1895 by the Rev. Richard Knight M.A. of Emmanuel College, Cambridge. St. Luke's chapel, Posbury, is an edifice of only small dimensions: the living is a perpetual curacy, with a net endowment of £46 per annum, in the gift of Sir J. Shelley bart. and held since 1880 by the Rev. Charles Felton Smith M.A. of Queen's College, Cambridge, vicar of Crediton 1854-91, and prebendary of Exeter.

The Congregational church, High street, erected in 1868, is an edifice in the Gothic style, with 650 sittings: a manse and schools were erected in 1889 at a cost of £800; the Bible Christian chapel, High street, will seat 200 persons; the Unitarian chapel, Park street, has 300 sittings; and the Wesleyan chapel, Union road, 300; the meeting room of the Brethren is in High street, and will seat 150 persons; the Salvation Army hold their meetings here in the Temperance hall.

The Town hall, in the High street, built in 1852-3 by a company, and now held in trust by Gen. the Right Hon. Sir Redvers H. Buller P.C., G.C.B., G.C.M.G., V.O. Sir John Shelley bart. William Tremlett and John Mortimer esqrs. was rebuilt in 1893, and includes rooms for public meetings, libraries and reading-rooms, and the offices of collector of poor rates and taxes; the largest of these rooms is 46 feet long, 32 feet wide and about 23 high.

The Post office, in Market street, erected in 1901, is of red brick, relieved with Bath stone dressings, from designs by Messrs. Marshall and Vickers, architects, of London, and includes a residence for the postmaster.

The Temperance Hall, in the Union road, erected in 1889, will hold 280 persons.

The County Police Station, Market street, was erected in 1847.

The Literary Society, an institution of long standing, has a large and increasing library at the Town Hall.

Crediton appears to have been a place of considerable trade so early as the 13th century, and at one time was a leading town in the woollen manufacture, gaining "great fame for the fineness of its work."

The business of the town has considerably increased, owing to the development of the boot and shoe industry: there are now over 800 persons so employed, and a large colonial export trade is carried on: the principal firms are Messrs. Gimblett, Son and Co. Limited and Messrs. John Elston and Sons. There are also tanneries, steam sawing and building yards, and two confectionery factories.

Quantities of cider are made and forwarded to the London and other markets.

The Market House, erected in 1836, is spacious and conveniently appointed. The market day is Saturday. A monthly cattle market is held on the third Thursday in every month except April and August. On the Saturday before the last Wednesday in April, the great market is held, which is the largest fair for cattle in the West of England.

The early closing day is on Wednesday, at 4 p.m.

The Crediton District Constitutional Club, in Searle street, is a new building erected in connection with the Town Hall, and consists of reading, card and billiard rooms, and a bar and skittle alley. There are about 200 members.

There is a Working Men's Club in Market street, with about 150 members.

A pleasure fair is annually held on the 22nd of August and five following days, if that date should fall on a Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday, but if not, then on the Tuesday succeeding.

The charities of Crediton are very numerous, and several hundred pounds, arising from the Borough lands, together with moneys left at various times by benevolent individuals and invested in the funds, are annually given away, principally at Christmas. The Governors of the church also allow £13 per year each to four almsmen; but the charity of the greatest magnitude is that known as "Hayward's Charity," the funds of which, after having lain dormant for several centuries in the Court of Chancery, were again made available by the action of the late Mr. E. T. Ward, who obtained the approval of the court to a scheme for the appropriation of the accumulated fund, amounting to more than £20,000, the interest of which is principally spent in educating poor children; eight aged almspeople are also provided for. Benjamin W. Cleave, of Newcombes, bequeathed in 1889 a sum of £10,000 invested in railway stock, the interest to be paid to 12 old men, 4 women, and 4 widows with families, the men to receive £14 13s. 4d. the women £9 3s. 4d. and the widows £13 15s. yearly.

Buller Park, the main entrance to which is at the Northern end of Searle street, was purchased and laid out as a public park, to perpetuate the memory of the late James Wentworth Buller esq. D.C.L. and M.P. for North Devon, and a resident in Crediton, who died December 15, 1865: it comprises about 4 acres, on the north side of the town, in a commanding, but pleasant and sheltered position, sloping to the south, from which a distant view may be obtained of the peaks of Dartmoor.

St. Laurence's Green, at the west end of the town, was in 1897 laid out as a pleasure ground by public subscription, in commemoration of the Diamond Jubilee of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, and is now held by the Urban District Council as lessees from the lord of the manor. In the early part of the last century bull baiting took place here, and the stone to which, on those occasions, the bull was fastened, still remains in the centre of the green, near to which are the remains of an ancient chapel, in the Lancet style, said to have been dedicated to St. Laurence; and there was also a similar one at Yeo, a mile and a half distant.

The principal seats in Crediton are:—Downes, the residence of Gen. the Rt. Hon. Sir Redvers Henry Buller P.C., V.O., G.C.B., G.C.M.G., D.L., J.P. and Newcombes, of Benjamin Hansford Hill esq. J.P.

Gen. the Rt. Hon. Sir R. H. Buller P.O. who is lord of the manor, holds an annual court leet for the East Town, for the election of a portreeve, constable and other officers; Sir John Shelley bart. of Shobrooke Park, Lieut.-Col. Sir John Davie Ferguson-Davie bart. of Creedy Park, Benjamin Cornish Cleave esq. Elias Tremlett esq. of Prierton Manor, and William Pope esq. are the chief landowners.

The area of Crediton Town and Urban District is 2,552 acres; rateable value, £11,072; the population in 1891 was 4,207, including 5 officers and 80 inmates in the workhouse, and in 1901 was 3,974.

The area of Crediton Hamlets is 8,757 acres of land and 40 of water; rateable value, £13,250; the population in 1891 was 1,614.

By Local Government Board Order 16,408, Brittle Downs and Cottages have been transferred to Crediton from Colebrook, March 24, 1884.

Parish Clerk, Lewis Perkins, 6 Market street.

Uton (or Yeoton) is a tithing $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles south.

Copplestone, partly in Crediton and partly in Colebrook and Down St. Mary parishes, has a station on the North Devon railway, and is $6\frac{1}{2}$ miles north-west from Crediton station. Copplestone Cross, which stands at the junction of Crediton parish with those of Colebrook and Down St. Mary, is a massive shaft of granite, 10 feet 6 inches high and about 1 foot 6 inches thick; the sides are panelled in three divisions, each ornamented with interlaced work, but the head is lost; this venerable landmark is mentioned in a Saxon charter of A.D. 974 and is possibly of a date anterior to the establishment here of the see of Devonshire.

Hookway is 1 mile south-east. Knowle is 3 miles north-west. Here is a small chapel of ease, seating 60 persons. Rudge, 2 miles south, and Woodland, $\frac{1}{2}$ miles south-west, are tithings.

Yeoford (or Uford) is a tithing, 4 miles south-west from Crediton, with a station on the North Devon railway, and is the junction of the Devon and Cornwall railway (London and South Western), 182 $\frac{1}{2}$ miles from London. Here is a small chapel of ease, seating 100 persons. Sir John Shelley bart. is lord of the manor.

SCHOOLS.

Queen Elizabeth's Grammar School, St. Lawrence's green, erected in 1859, is a large & fine building in the Elizabethan style, from designs by Mr. Hayward, architect, of Exeter, & consists of a central block containing the school rooms, with masters' houses at the wings: it was first founded by a Royal Charter of Edward VI.
A.D. 1547, as the "Kynges newe Grammer Schole at Credytton"; & secondly, by a Royal Charter of Elizabeth, A.D. 1560, who confirmed King Edward's letters patent and added thereto; & it was thenceforth called "Queen Elizabeth's Free Grammer Schole at Credytton."
The school was, until recently, under the jurisdiction of the Governors of Crediton church, but was reconstituted in 1880, & has an annual endowment of £830: a laboratory has been added at a cost of £300.

The school has six scholarships, of the annual value of £10, which are competed for as vacancies occur, preference being given to residents in Crediton, Sandford & Exminster; there is also an exhibition of £60 yearly, tenable for 3½ years, at the Universities or elsewhere. In 1893 the governors of the school decided to accept the proposals of the County Council with regard to Technical Education, and a grant of £180 was accordingly made to the school for this purpose.
The governing body consists of 14 members. Chairman of the governors, Sir John Shelley bart.; vice-chairman, Rev. Prebendary C. F. Smith M.A.; James E.

for the education of 11 boys of this parish, who are elected by the governors of Crediton church: in 1886 the school was reorganised and removed to premises in Union terrace; Edmund Tompkins, head master
A School Board of 7 members was formed August 20, 1874; James Wellington, 2 Market street, clerk to the board; James Stone, The Green, attendance officer Board, Lansdowne (infants), erected in 1880, at a cost of £700, for 125 children; average attendance, 85; Miss Elizabeth Barry, mistress Board, Hookway (mixed & infants), erected in 1889, at a cost of £1,000, for 120 children; average attendance, 100; Charles G. Creedy, master
Board, Shirley corner (mixed & infants), erected in 1892 & enlarged in 1897, for 170 children; average attendance, 120; Anthony A. Bentham, master Board, Yeoford (mixed & infants), erected in 1878, at a cost of £2,125, for 122 children; average attendance, 66; Joseph Archelous Adams, master
Hayward Charity (boys, girls & infants), erected in 1858, average attendance, 230 boys, 200 girls & 200 infants;

CRUWYS MORCHARD is a scattered village and parish on the high road from Tiverton to South Molton, 6 miles west from Tiverton station on the Great Western railway, 9 north from Crediton, 15 south-east from South Molton and 16 north-north-west from Exeter, in the North Eastern division of the county, Witheridge hundred,

Cullompton petty sessional division, Tiverton union and county court district, rural deanery of West Tiverton and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of Holy Cross is an ancient building of stone in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 6 bells, dating from 1721 to 1755: the church was struck by lightning in 1689, when the steeple was shattered and the bells melted; a portion of the melted metal is still kept at the rectory: there is a finely carved oak screen in excellent condition, and monuments to the Averay and Cruwys families, and to the Rev. Edmund Granger, as well as a brass to William Stone, of Bath, who left a considerable benefaction to the parish: several of the windows are stained: the western gallery was removed in 1898, and the tower arch re-opened: there are 250 sittings. The parish register dates from the year 1572. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £399, including 132 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of George James Cruwys esq. and held since 1897 by the Rev. Philip Henry Owen B.A. of Oriol College, Oxford. The charities amount to £18 yearly. By a scheme of the Charity Commissioners, approved of in 1888, the Stone charity has been absorbed into the Stone-Kelland charity, having been added to by Wm. Hy. Kelland esq. of Kelland, Lophord, whose family have owned property here since 1834 and in the adjoining parishes of Witheridge and Rackenford since 1590, when Thomazine Kelland, sister of his lineal ancestor, was married to Thomas Colleton, grandfather of the first Sir John Colleton bart. Cruwys Morchard House, the ancient seat of the Cruwys family, adjoins the church, and is now occupied by George James Cruwys esq. J.P. lord of the manor and chief landowner. A part of the churchyard was formerly the site of an old chapel, and is still the property and burial-place of the Cruwys family, to whom the manor has belonged since the reign of King John. East Ruckham belongs to Miss Mary A. Kelland. Forke belongs to Mr. Stoneman, of North Molton, and

CULLOMPTON (or Collumpton) is a market town and parish on the old road from Exeter to Bristol, a quarter of a mile west from the station, on the Bristol and Exeter section of the Great Western railway, 18 $\frac{1}{2}$ miles from London by railway and 16 $\frac{1}{2}$ by road, 12 north-east from Exeter and 8 south-east from Tiverton, in the North Eastern division of the county, Hayridge hundred, Tiverton union and county court district, rural deanery of East Tiverton, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. A stream of water which runs through the centre of the town was granted by the Abbot of Buckland in 1356, and the grant is now in the possession of the churchwardens. The town is lighted with gas by a limited company, and supplied with water from a spring at Combe Farm about $\frac{1}{4}$ miles distant and a reservoir at Shortlands. The church of St. Andrew is a fine building of stone in the Late Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south chapel, west porch, and a lofty embattled western tower, 100 feet high, with highly enriched buttresses, pierced battlements, and numerous crocketed pinnacles, and containing a clock and 8 bells: on the exterior of the tower is a rood, boldly carved in stone, but mutilated: opening into the south aisle is a beautiful chapel, called "Lane's aisle," erected by John Lane, Thomazine, his wife, and their family in 1526: the chapel has a rich fan-traceried roof, and on the floor is a slab with brass inscription to the founder, ob. 15 Feb. 1528, and his wife, but the effigies are missing; the capitals of the piers, the walls and buttresses are enriched with the founder's monogram, merchant's mark and various devices, and on the outside, along the basement runs a banding of stone with carved invocatory inscription and the date 1526: at the east end of the south aisle, inside the screen, is another stone, bearing an incised floriated cross, with square crockets on the stem, and an inscription to John Kyng, ob. 9 Oct. 1458, and Joan, his wife: outside the chapel is an altar-tomb to Thomas Flay: in the chancel are memorials to John Webber, vicar, 1461-80; Roger Stockman, vicar of Wisorford (?), ob. 18 Dec. 1548; John Cole, merchant, ob. 28 Mar. 1564, and Elizabeth, his wife; and James Skinner, merchant, ob. 27 Dec. 1616; and in the church are others to Thomas Croke, ob. 22 July, 1549, and George Cockram, ob. 21 Jan. 1572, both merchants: the nave has a fine timbered roof, on a carved wall plate with angel corbels, and is richly carved and gilt: there are two parlous screens, that on the north being decorated on both sides with shields, forming a super cornice, and richly emblazoned with arms: the rood screen, a fine work 54 feet long and in perfect condition, was re-coloured and gilt in 1849, and above is an ornamental rood beam, supported by angels: the Golgotha, carved out of the butts of two trees, is now in the porch under the tower, and is hewn and carved to represent rocks bestrewn with skulls and bones: the mortice holes for the crucifix and attendant figures remain: an octagonal turret, on the south-east, contains the rood loft stairs, and the aisles and chapels have elaborately carved and pierced battlements: the organ was rebuilt and enlarged in 1871 by Speechly, of London, and a wall screen and stained windows erected in the chancel; the east window was the gift of Henry Hill esq.; the others were presented by Mr. Hill, the late vicar and Mrs. Turner; the church was restored and entirely re-seated in 1849, when a number of interesting wall paintings of the early 15th century were met with on the north wall of the north aisle, on the north wall over the rood loft, and on the arcades: but all these, chiefly figures of saints, have been again whitewashed: the church was further restored during the period 1875-90, at a cost of £1,120 and affords 1,100 sittings. The register dates from the year 1601. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £119, including 11 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Sellwood trustees, and held since 1893 by the Rev. George Forrester B.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. Here are Baptist, Unitarian and Wesleyan chapels, and a Brethren's meeting room in Fore street. The Cemetery, in Tiverton road, comprising an area of about 2 acres, was formed in 1856, and has two mortuary chapels in the Gothic style; since 1894 it has been under the control of the Parish Council. The Town Hall or Sessions House was erected about 1853, and petty sessions are held here every alternate Monday. Here is a paper mill belonging to Messrs. Reed and Smith, and employing about 54 persons; the tanneries of Messrs. Sellwood Brothers and C. B. Evens and Co. employing over 100; and also a large axle-tree factory, kept by Messrs. Chick and Co. a lace factory and a woollen factory, and in the neighbourhood are several small flour mills. The first market here was granted in 1278, to Baldwin de Redvers, Earl of Devon, and a further grant of a market and fair was made in 1317 to the Abbey of Buckland, to which house the manor then belonged. A market for cattle is held here the first Wednesday in every month, except May and November, which are fair months. The fairs are held in the High street of the town, and commence on the first Wednesday in May and the first Wednesday in November annually. The early closing day is on Thursday at 5 p.m. The charities are of about £220 yearly value, of which £75 is applied for apprenticing and the remainder distributed in clothing and bread. An additional charity has been founded by F. Burrow esq. LL.D. of £10 yearly value, to be applied in the purchase and free distribution of books to parishioners of Cullompton. There are branches of the Devon and Cornwall Banking Company, and of Messrs. Stuckey's Banking Co. "The Walronds," now the property and residence of Frederic Burrow esq. LL.D. one of the coroners for Devon, is a fine Elizabethan mansion of flint and masonry, in the Tudor style; it consists of a central block with wings, and was begun by Sir John Petre kt. M.P. created in 1603, Baron Petre of Writtle, shortly before the death of Queen Elizabeth, and completed in 1605: over the oak mantel-piece in the dining-room is an impaled shield of arms of the Petre family, with initials, and the date 1605. After a time the house passed into the hands of the Portman family, and about 1790 was occupied by Edmund Walrond, of Bradford, from whom it took its present name. It was next acquired by the Bakers, from whom it was purchased in 1825 by the Rev. John Sydenham, of Cullompton, and subsequently belonged to his son, the Rev. John Phillip Sydenham, rector of Willand, and afterwards to his eldest son, the Rev. John George Sydenham M.A. on whose death in 1890 the mansion was purchased by the present owner, who had it restored at an expenditure of nearly £1,000, and during the work several windows opening to the courtyard, and containing old glass, were discovered: the entrance hall has massive partitions of black oak on either side, constructed of boards cleft and roughly fashioned with an axe or adze:

an oak door on the right leads to the dining-hall, a handsome room about 23 by 18 feet: the walls, from floor to ceiling, are lined with panelling of dark oak, and the ceiling is enriched with a cornice and frieze; there is a wide, open fireplace, with a large moveable iron grate, and over the mantel-piece the shield of arms already alluded to: the floor is of oak, and the walls are hung with portraits of the Shield family: the drawing-room, contained in one of the projecting wings, is also panelled with dark oak, and has a carved frieze running under the cornice all round the room: below each of the three windows is a bench: the carved oak mantel-piece is a magnificent piece of work, containing some fine details of leaves and fruit: the ceiling is beautifully decorated in plaster: within the panelling a secret cupboard, which had evidently not been opened for a great many years, was disclosed in the course of the repairs, and in it were found a number of antique bottles containing liqueurs, and one labelled "Acqua di Felsina and Bologna," with a finely engraved picture, and still retaining perfume: the room is hung with miniatures and other portraits, including one of the late Mr. Bethell Walrond, of Dulford House; to the left of the entrance hall is the library, formerly the "Justice Room," with a very old and massive door: in the other wing of the house is a modernized dining-room, with a number of fine old paintings hanging upon the walls: the main staircase, approached through the dining hall, is of old oak, panelled on one side, and having carved oak balusters: the bedroom over the drawing room, approached by a picture-hung passage, has moulded ceiling and a broad and originally very handsome cornice: the state bedroom, in the opposite wing, is the finest room in the building and is approached by an arched doorway of oak, richly carved and ornamented: the ceiling is richly treated and adorned with bosses, surrounded by heads of cherubs: over the fireplace is a shield of arms, similar to that in the dining-hall, and bearing the date 1605; the upper storey consists of attics, now used as store rooms for books and MSS. some of which date from the reign of Queen Elizabeth: the kitchen and housemaid's pantry are ancient, and the walls of the lobby leading to the kitchen are formed of pieces of black oak, running from floor to ceiling alternating with plaster work between each piece, and lighted by a quaint little window: the walls of the house are of enormous thickness, and huge balks of oak have been used in the construction of the roof and floor joists: and there is a secret staircase (now stopped up) which formerly led from part of the building to the attics: the stairs from the kitchen are spiral, the steps being formed of blocks of oak several inches thick, radiating from a massive oak newel, in which wooden handles are fixed at intervals to assist persons going up and down stairs. Hillersdon House, the residence of William John Alexander Grant esq. J.P. is a large and handsome mansion. On the surrender of the Abbey of Buckland, the manor was held for some time by the St. Leger and Hillersdon families. William Wyndham Grant esq. Wm. John Alexander Grant esq. J.P. Col. The Right Hon. Sir William Hood Walrond bart. P.C., M.P. Charles Robert Sydenham Carew esq. of Tiverton, Frederic Burrow esq. LL.D. and Frank Sellwood esq. are the chief landowners. Frederic Burrow esq. LL.D. is lord of the manor of Aller Peverell, W. J. A. Grant esq. of Hillersdon is lord of the manor of Cullompton and G. J. Cruwys esq. of Cruwys Morchard, is lord of the manor of Upton Weaver. The soil is various; the subsoil is gravel. The area of the parish is 3,148 acres of land and 27 of water; rateable value, £22,065; the population in 1901 was 2,919.

The hamlet of Langford, 3 miles south-east, is the property of the President and Fellows of Corpus Christi college, Oxford, who have made great improvements upon it by the building of farm-places, cottages and schoolroom.

Mutterton is 2 miles south-east; and Ponsford 1½ miles north-west from the town of Cullompton.

Parish Clerk, Samuel Voisey.

CULMSTOCK is a parish and pleasant village, on the river Culm, with a station on the Culm Valley branch of the Great Western railway, 183½ miles from London, 10 east from Tiverton and 6 south-south-west from Wellington, in the North Eastern division of the county, hundred of Hemycok, Cullompton petty sessional division, Wellington union and county court district, rural deanery of East Tiverton and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of All Saints is an ancient building of stone in the
 nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 6 bells, dating from 1636 to 1853; the third, undated, has an inscription to the Virgin: there is a fine stone screen, now serving as a reredos, and in the church is preserved an altar cloth, formed from a pre-Reformation cope, with figures descriptive of the "Benedicite," worked in silver wire: a memorial window has been placed to Major Octavius Temple, formerly lieut.- governor of Sierra Leone, and father of the present Archbishop of Canterbury; and there are others to the Rev.

 J. W. Karslake, a former vicar, W. P. Collier esq. and to Samuel Corner esq.: the church was restored and reseated in 1887 at a cost of £520; further improvements were carried out in 1895 and 1900: there are 302 sittings.
 The register dates from the year 1645. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £209, with residence
 Thomas Sole Bundle M.A. of Queen's College, Oxford.
 There is a Baptist chapel at Prescott, built in 1718, and rebuilt in 1785, with 400 sittings, and a Mission hall in connection with it was erected in the village in 1889: the Wesleyan chapel was erected in 1888; and there is a Meeting House for the Society of Friends, at Spiceland, erected in 1670 and rebuilt in 1815. The charities, amounting to about £50 yearly, are administered by the Parish Council. The woollen factory of Messrs. Fox Bros. and Co. of Wellington, Somerset, employs about 32 people. The annual cattle fair is held on the Monday preceding the 24th of May. Culmstock Beacon, on the Hill, is still in good repair. The plot of R. D. Blackmore's novel "Perly Cross" is laid in this and adjoining parish. Upcott is the property of Frederick Thomas Ellworthy esq. of Foxdown, Wellington, Somerset. Frederick Collier esq. who is lord of the manor, John Cave New esq. of Craddock House, Culmpton, Richard Hall Clarke esq. of Bridewell House, Halberton, Edward Corner esq. of Wellington, Willoughby J. Guthrie Louden esq. of 4 Chesterfield street, Mayfair, London W. Charles Lindley Collier esq. of London, Charles Collier esq. John M. Langdon esq. Mrs. Broom, of Almshayne, and Clement Wm. Hawkins esq. are the principal landowners. The soil is light; subsoil, clayey and gravelly. The chief crops are barley, oats &c. The area is 3,648 acres of land and 9 of water; rateable value, £5,832; the population in 1901 was 765.

Nicholashayne, 1½ miles north of the church; Northend, 2½ north; Prescott, 1 north-west; Woodgate, 1 north, and Upcott, 2½ north, are hamlets.

Sexton, Samuel Milton.

DALWOOD is a parish, on the small river Corrie, 4 miles north-west from Axminster station on the main line of the London and South Western railway, and 6 east from Honiton, in the Eastern division of the county, hundred, petty sessional division, union and county court district of Axminster, rural deanery of Dunkeswell and Honiton and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The parish formerly belonged to Dorsetshire, but by the Acts 2 and 3 William IV. (1832), cap. 64, and 7 and 8 Vict. (1844), cap. 61, it was annexed to Devonshire. The church of St. Peter is a building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 6 bells: it was restored and re-seated in 1881, at a cost of £1,068, under the direction of Edmund Ferrey esq. architect, of London: the east window retains some very good old stained glass: there are sittings for 190 persons. The register dates from the year 1568. The living is a chapelry annexed to the vicarage of Stockland, net yearly value, £118, in the gift of the principal landowners, and held since 1894 by the Rev. Alfred Vyvyan Cox M.A. of Wadham College, Oxford, who resides at Stockland; the Rev. Arthur Albert Slipper has been curate-in-charge since 1900, and resides in Dalwood. Here is a chapel for Bible Christians and at Loughwood is an ancient Baptist chapel. The land is all freehold. The principal landowners are the Rev. Alfred Marwood-Elton B.A. of Widworthy Court, Miss Outwaite, of Bougemont, Exeter, Mr. John Turner Symes, William Edwards esq. and the DARTINGTON is a parish on the south-western side of the fertile and picturesque valley of the Dart, forming a suburb of Totnes and adjoining Totnes railway station, in the Southern division of the county, hundred of Stanborough, petty sessional division of Stanborough and Cole-ridge, Totnes union, county court district, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. In 1897 that portion of the parish near Totnes station, consisting of several houses, was transferred to the borough of Totnes for civil purposes, by Local Government Board's Provisional Orders Confirmation Acts (No. 11.) The church of St. Mary was an ancient structure, in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, but in 1880 the whole building, with the exception of the tower, was taken down and the materials used in the erection of a new church, at a cost of £8,000, chiefly defrayed by the Champernowne family: the church is an edifice of stone, in the Perpendicular style, of the precise dimensions of the old building, from the plans of J. L. Pearson esq. R.A., F.S.A. architect, of London, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch with parvise and a western tower, with pinnacles, containing 6 bells, cast in 1880, and a clock, erected in 1893, in memory of the Rev. Richard Champernowne, rector 1859-91: the sculptured work on the tower was executed by Hems, of Exeter: the ancient screen was removed from the old church, and replaced. In the old tower has been placed a curious monument, in plaster, formerly in the chancel of the church, and dated 1578, to Sir Arthur Champernowne kt. and his family: there are 250 sittings. The old church bore on the porch "the white hart lodged," the cognizance of Richard II. to whom, by escheat, this place belonged; and there was also a fine pulpit of the reign of Henry VII. some good ancient glass and a small mural effigy in armour. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1542; marriages, 1538; burials, 1549. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £470, with 108 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Arthur Melville Champernowne esq. and held since 1891 by the Rev. Charles Martin M.A. of Christ Church, Oxford. The church of St. Barnabas, situated near the hamlet of Brooking, and built at the expense of the Champernowne family as a chapel of ease to Dartington, is a structure in the Early English style, consecrated in 1885, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, north and south porches and a tower, with spire, at the east end of the aisle, containing 1 bell: the east window is stained: there is an eagle lectern of carved oak: the piers of the arcade on the south side are of rich marble, quarried in this parish: the church affords 140 sittings: the Rev. Francis James Crosland Fenton M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, has been curate-in-charge since 1897. The parish property comprises five tenements, occupied by the labouring classes, and seven acres of good meadow land, let for about £30 yearly. Flotsley meadow, of five acres, now let for £16, was given for the poor by Christopher Maynard, in the reign of Charles II. Four cottages were erected in 1835 by Miss Spedding, in memory of her sister, Mrs. Froude, and are occupied rent-free by poor families. The mansion and demesne of Dartington, given by the Conqueror to William de Falaise, and long held by the Martyns, barons Martyn, came afterwards to the Audley family, by the marriage of Joan, sister of William, 2nd and last Baron Martyn (ob. 1325), with Nicholas de Audley; but all his sons dying without issue, it was escheated to the Crown, and was given by Richard II. to his half-brother, John Holland, Duke of Exeter K.G. ob. 1446: in the reign of Elizabeth, Sir Arthur Champernowne kt. exchanging the lordship of Polsloe for that of Dartington, seated himself here, and by this family the manor has ever since been held. Dartington Hall, the property of Arth. Melville Champernowne esq. now (1901) unoccupied, has been the residence of this family for many generations and was formerly an extensive building, consisting of two large quadrangles, one of which is now in ruins: the other was partly rebuilt in the reign of Queen Elizabeth and has several fine apartments: the great hall, a work of the 13th century, 70 by 40 feet, retains a huge fire-place, 16 feet wide, and has pointed windows: the groined porch bears the arms of Holland, and the groining of the roof is embellished with "the white hart lodged," the badge of Richard II.: the earliest existing portion is at the north-east angle, which, with the gateway at the south end, is of early 14th century date: some of the original windows remain, and on the west side is a terrace garden: the grounds, which are extensive and beautifully laid out, slope down to the margin of the Dart. Venton, the property of Mr. Moysey, now used as a farmhouse, is an ancient and specious building, formerly much more extensive: it was a long time the seat of the Ventons, or Fentons, from whom it passed to the Gibbes family and from the latter to the Glanvilles. Arthur Melville Champernowne esq. J.P. is lord of the manor and owns more than two-thirds of the parish; the Duke of Somerset also has an estate in this parish and there are some smaller freeholders. The soil is various; subsoil, clay slate and limestone. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats and turnips. The area is 3,143 acres of land and 32 of water, less about 300 acres taken over by the borough of Totnes in 1897; rateable value, £4,815; the population in 1901 was 478.

DARTMOOR. See Princetown; and also Chagford.

DARTMOUTH.

DARTMOUTH, originally called "Lud-hill," is an ancient municipal borough, seaport and market town in South Devon, with a good harbour, capable of holding more than 500 sail of merchant ships and is used as a coaling port; it is seated on the west side of the estuary of the Dart, which rises in the north of Dartmoor and after passing Totnes, where it is navigable for small vessels, is joined at a distance of seven miles from its mouth by the river Harebourn. The town is in the hundred of Coleridge, Torquay division of the county, petty sessional division of Paignton, union and county court district of Totnes, rural deanery of Ipplepen, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter.

By an order of the County Council, confirmed by Local Government Board Order 26,400, which came into operation March 26, 1891, the parishes of St. Petrox, St. Saviour and Townstal have been united into one parish for civil purposes under the name of Dartmouth; and by Local Government Board Order 19,441, all that part of Stoke Fleming civil parish included within the municipal borough has been added to the parish of Dartmouth.

The town is 4 miles south-west from Brixham, 28 east from Plymouth, 30 south from Exeter and 230 miles by rail and 203 by road from London. The nearest railway station is at Kingswear, on the opposite side of the estuary, which is the terminus of the branch line of the South Devon (Great Western) Railway from Newton Junction; the Great Western railway company have erected a pier at Dartmouth and steamboats ply to and fro on the arrival and departure of the trains, excepting the midnight express; there are also steamboats twice daily to and from Totnes, which has a station on the Great Western railway from Newton Abbot to Plymouth; the river is also crossed at Sandquay by a floating bridge and by another from Bayard's Cove, both worked by steam power.

In January, 1883, the Dartmouth Harbour Commissioners began the construction of an embankment, which extends from Ferry Slip to the Gas Works, a distance of 600 yards, with a roadway 50 feet wide and a pontoon opposite the Great Western railway company's property; the total estimated cost was upward of £25,600.

Part of the western shore of the river is devoted to boat and yacht building. There is a coastguard station and a small prison, now used as a lock-up, but the borough prisoners are sent to the county prison at Exeter.

The town is most picturesquely and romantically situated, its chief portion lying in a deep valley, while the surrounding houses are built on slopes of precipitous hills, from 200 to 300 feet in height: some of the houses are of considerable age, giving the place, which is best seen from the river, much the appearance of a foreign town.

The town is lighted with gas and well supplied with water from various springs: at Laphorne and Bosomzeal, about 3 miles north, and under a new scheme carried out in 1893, at a cost of £7,120, the water is conveyed to the town by gravitation, the supply being under the control of the Urban District Council.

Dartmouth was made corporate by Royal Charter, dated 14th April, 1342 (15 Edward III.), subsequently confirmed and enlarged by Richard II. 14th December, 1378, and 15th November, 1394; by Henry VII. 10th December, 1487; Henry VIII. 10th May, 1510; Edward VI. 8th August, 1547; Mary, 6th November, 1553; Elizabeth, 9th November, 1558, and by James I. 1604-5. Leland affirms that the privilege of mayoralty was given to the town by King John, and although this is disputed it appears certain that the inhabitants claimed to have been a free borough in the reign of Henry I. The charter of James I. continued in force until the passing of the Municipal Corporations Act, 1835 (5 & 6 William IV. c. 76), when the Corporation was remodelled, and now consists of a mayor, 4 aldermen and 12 councillors, under the style of the "Mayor, Aldermen and Burgesses of the Borough of Clifton-Dartmouth-Hardness," the names of three adjacent villas or manors. The borough has a commission of the peace. Dartmouth first returned members to Parliament in 1298, and subsequently in 1340, from which date two members were regularly returned until the Reform Act of 1832 (2 and 3 William IV. c. 45), when the representation was reduced to one member, and the borough was, by the "Representation of the People (Scotland) Act, 1868," finally merged into the county representation.

The Port limits extend from Galmpton Point to Erme mouth; the Port Sanitary Authority, constituted in 1888, consists of 10 members, 5 of whom are elected by the Urban District Council of Dartmouth, 1 by the Totnes Urban District Council and 4 by the Rural District Council of Totnes. The limits of this authority include so much of the Port of Dartmouth as lies between Totnes Bridge and a line drawn across the entrance to Dartmouth Harbour, from Blackstone Point to Outer Froward Point. The number of sailing and steam vessels in the general coasting trade that entered the port, including their repeated voyages, with cargoes and in ballast, in 1900 was 1,033 of 146,753 tons, the number cleared was 950 of 112,522 tons. In the trade with British possessions and foreign countries 16 vessels entered of 3,101 tons and 45 cleared of 20,201 tons. The number of vessels registered under Part I. of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, as belonging to the port, on December 31, 1900, was 57 of 1,558 tons. The number of fishing boats registered under Part IV. of the same Act and at the same date was 284 of 8,634 tons. Fishing boats and their implements belonging to this port are distinguished by the letters "D. H."

The harbour has been remarkable from an early period for its security and the depth and tranquillity of the water; hence Camden, the historian of the 16th century, remarks:—"Upon a long hill stands Dartmouth, which, by reason of its commodiousness as a harbour, defended by two castles, is a town well stored with merchants and with the best ships." The harbour lights at Kingswear and Dartmouth are under the direction of the Harbour Commissioners. There are two quays; the New Quay, or New Ground, is a large open space, with convenient landing place, promenade and seats, relieved by two avenues of trees and fronted by a row of shops, near the centre of which is the Castle, a commodious and first-class family hotel. The other quay is at Bayard's Cove, on which the Custom House is situated; and is flanked on the south side by the ruins of Bayard's Cove Castle.

The history of Dartmouth rivals in antiquity that of Totnes, and the Saxon Chronicle records the murder here, in 1049, of Earl Beorn, who was slain, it is related, by Sweyn, son of Godwin, and buried in the church; William the Conqueror, according to early writers, embarked from this port in 1099, on his way to the relief of Mans, and in the reign of Richard I. on the organization of the third Crusade in 1180, a part if not the whole of the English squadron, consisting of 100 large vessels and many smaller ones, sailed from Dartmouth in April, 1190, for Marseilles and Messina: King John visited the town in the summer of 1205, remaining from June 18th to June 22nd, and in 1214, having concluded a truce after his defeats in France, he landed here on the 15th October. In 1292-3 Dartmouth appears to have furnished six ships for the king's service, and took part in an engagement in the Channel on 14th May, 1293, when the combined fleet of French, Flemish and Genoese was beaten off with great loss; two ships from this port also took part in the expedition of Edward I. to Scotland in 1298: and in 1347, during the war with France, 31 ships were provided for the investment of Calais: in 1404 the town was attacked by the French, who were, however, repulsed, and their leader, DuChatel, slain; and on the attempted invasion by the Spanish Armada, 1588, two vessels, the "Crescent" and the "Harte," were fitted out, and the former is said to have engaged one of the enemy's ships. On the breaking out of the Civil War, Dartmouth at first declared for the Parliament, and in 1643, after a month's investment, surrendered to Prince Maurice and Sir Thomas Fairfax, 19th January, 1645-6.

In 1675 Dartmouth gave the title of baron to Charles Fitzcharles, natural son of Charles II. by Catherine, daughter of Thomas Pegg esq. of Yeldersley, but this title, together with those of Viscount Totnes and Earl of Plymouth, became extinct on his death 17th October, 1680. In 1682, December 2, the title of Baron Dartmouth was bestowed upon Admiral George Legge, afterwards created 5th September, 1711, Earl of Dartmouth and Viscount Lewisham, and these titles are still held by the Legge family.

Dartmouth has four churches. St. Clement's, the parish church of Townstal, situated about a mile north-west of the town, on a lofty eminence, commanding both the town and harbour, is an ancient building of stone, in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, transepts, north aisle with arcade of three bays, south porch and an embattled western tower, with an octagonal stair-turret and crocketed pinnacles, and containing 4 bells; the three first are respectively inscribed, in Old English characters:—"Vox Augustini sonet in aure Dei"; "Santa Katerina ora pro nobis"; and "Sit nomen Domini Benedictum"; the tenor was cast by Thomas Wroth in 1700: the font consists of an octagonal panelled basin, ornamented with crosses flory, and supported on a circular stem: in the south transept is the recumbent effigy representing Simon Rede, last abbot of Torre Abbey c. 1310-50, in a long garment with sleeves, fitting closely round the neck and reaching to the feet: there is also a memorial in white marble, with arms, to Robert Holland, ob. 16th November, 1611, and others to Thomas Boone, ob. 1679; Mr. Roope, ob. 1667 and Miss M. Roope, ob. 1739; the communion plate includes an ancient silver chalice with cover, another with paten bearing the arms of Holdsworth, and an alms dish given in 1821 by the Rev. J. Charter: the church was thoroughly restored in 1884-5 at a cost of £1,720, and an organ chamber has since been erected and an organ provided: there are 350 sittings. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a vicarage, with the parochial chapelry of St. Saviour annexed, joint net yearly value £150, including 72 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Sir John Henry Seale bart. and held since 1890 by the Rev. Harry Frank Tracey, late R.N. The great tithes are held by the Corporation.

The vicarage was held from 1531 by Simon Rede, last abbot of Torre. John Flavel B.A. a well-known Nonconformist divine, and some time minister here, was ejected in 1662.

The church of St. Saviour, standing in the centre of the town, and erected towards the end of the 14th century, is a spacious cruciform building, partly in the Decorated style, and consists of chancel with aisles, nave of five bays, aisles, transepts, vestry, north porch added in 1896, south porch, and an embattled western tower with four crocketed pinnacles, containing a clock and 8 bells, dating from 1732 to 1854: the embattled south porch bears the town arms, placed on it in 1620; the door is covered with ornamental work in wrought iron, representing lions impaled on a vine; the sacarium is paved with Devonshire and Italian marbles: the communion table of oak is richly carved: the railings inclosing the sacarium are of old oak removed from the roof: the oak choir stalls, designed by Mr. J. D. Sedding, architect, have finely carved ends: the oak roof is relieved by carved and gilt bosses, and those of the adjoining aisles are also of oak, massively constructed: under the chancel is a crypt, with a stone staircase leading thereto: the church retains a very fine oak rood screen of the 15th century, elaborately carved with foliage and grapes, surmounted by a double crocketed groined cornice with exquisitely wrought fan tracery; the lower portion of the screen is coloured and gilt and adorned with figures of saints and doctors of the church, and in 1891 a beautifully carved rood, presented by Messrs. Luscombe, of Exeter, was added; the elaborately carved stone pulpit, also illuminated in gold and color, has tabernacled recesses, once enclosing figures, but now containing royal badges and devices, carved in wood, and believed to date from about 1671: in the chancel are memorial windows to Emily, wife of Charles Collier, d. June 14, 1881; and to Mary and Elizh. Eales: the east window, in 1896, by Heaton, Butler & Bayne, was presented by Mr. Roope Brooking in memory of his children: there are brasses to John Hawley, merchant and founder of the chancel, ob. 30th December, 1408; and Joan, ob. 1394, and Alice, ob. 1403, his wives, with effigies of all three, and portions of a rich canopy; another brass to Gilbert Staplehill, mayor of Dartmouth, ob. c. 1600, exhibits his effigy in a furred robe, 2 feet 7 in. high, with some verses at his feet, and three shields of arms over his head; and around is a marginal inscription, now incomplete; there remains also the brass effigy of a lady, with horned head-dress, c. 1470; besides modern brasses to Catherine Hoyles, and her twin brother, who died at Bilbao, Spain; to John Flavel, the eminent Nonconformist divine, who was ejected from this living in 1662, and died at Exeter in 1691; to Dr. Harry Tracy (uncle of the present vicar, and brother of a former vicar); to the Seale and Whitney families; and to two lads drowned off the harbour in 1894. In the chancel is buried the skull of Sir Charles McCarthy, sometime governor of Sierra Leone, who was killed at Accra, in an encounter with the Ashantees, 21st January, 1824; the skull, which for a while decorated the war drum of the King of Ashantee, was recovered about 1829, and interred with some ceremony: the former altar-piece, a painting by William Brockedon, of "Christ raising the widow's son," has been temporarily removed to the old organ gallery: in one of the windows may still be seen the arms of Charles (Fitzcharles) Baron Dartmouth, viz. the royal coat of Charles II. with a baton sinister, vairé, arg. and az. and on the fronts of the galleries and in other parts of the church are numerous shields of arms of local benefactors and persons officially connected with the church; but some of these have been incorrectly restored: the north transept window was filled with stained glass in 1901, in memory of a former vicar and his grandson: the organ, originally erected in 1784, was renovated and enlarged and rebuilt on a new site in the north chancel aisle in 1888, at a cost of £650: in 1887-8 the chancel was completely restored, under the direction of Mr. J. D. Sedding, architect, at a cost of over £4,000, to which the Misses Ann and Susannah Eales, descendants of Gilbert Staplehill, contributed £1,000: heating apparatus was also fixed at a cost of £160, but has since been renewed: the communion plate includes two silver-gilt chalices, two chalices and a paten, the latter given by William Stayne, and bearing his arms; there is also an apostle spoon: the nave was restored in 1895 by Mr. Sedding, architect: the old Corporation seats have been restored, at a cost of £40: there are 770 sittings. The register dates from the year 1886, and under the date February 28, 1663, records the baptism of Thomas Newcomen. The living is a parochial chapelry, annexed to the vicarage of Townstal. The great tithes are held by the Corporation.

The parish church of St. Petrox, one mile south of the town, on an eminence close to the Castle, and originally a chantry chapel, is an ancient edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave and an embattled western tower, with dwarf spire, containing 5 bells, all cast by Lester and Pack in 1754, except the second, which dates from 1812: the font dates from the 12th century: in the church is a large brass to a son of John Roope, merchant, ob. 1609, with a mutilated marginal inscription; and others to Barbara Plumleigh, ob. 1610, and Dorothy Roup, ob. 1614: the church was reseated in 1885 and has 380 sittings. The register dates from the year 1652. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £192, with residence, in the gift of the rector of Stoke Fleming, and held since 1897 by the Rev. John Henry Jones.

The chapel of St. Barnabas, Southtown, a chapel of ease to St. Petrox, completed in 1831 at a cost of about £2,000, and rebuilt in 1866 at a cost of £3,600, is a building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles and north and south porches: a new oak screen was erected in 1901: it has 420 sittings.

The Catholic church, in Newcomen road, erected in 1869, and dedicated to St. John the Baptist, consists of chancel and nave, and has two stained windows: the reredos is adorned with statues of SS. Patrick, William of York, Winifred and Cecilia: there are 150 sittings.

The Congregational (formerly Presbyterian) chapel, founded in 1662, was originally in Foss street. In 1895-6 a new chapel of local stone was erected on the North Embankment, at a cost of £2,250, with sittings for 400 persons: the memorials include one to the Rev. John Flavel, the Nonconformist divine (1627-91), originally placed in St. Saviour's church, but removed in the 17th century to the old chapel in Foss street: there is another of white marble to the Rev. Thomas Stenner, a former pastor.

The Wesleyan chapel in the Market square, erected in 1816, was rebuilt in 1874, at a cost of £2,000 and is a building of stone in the Greek Classic style, with sittings for 650 persons: over the chapel is a Sunday school.

The Primitive Methodist chapel, Crowther's Hill, erected in 1878, is an iron structure, and has 200 sittings.

The Bible Christian chapel in Newcomen road, erected in 1886, is of red brick, with stone dressings, and will seat 200 persons. The Salvation Army has a meeting room in Lower street.

The Cemetery, $\frac{1}{2}$ miles north-west of the town, has two mortuary chapels, and is controlled by a committee of the town council.

The Church of England Sunday School, in South Ford road, erected in 1872, is a building of stone, with brick dressings, and comprises two large rooms, each 60 by 22 feet.

The Guildhall (built in 1867 as a Bible Christian chapel) was purchased in 1878 by the Town Council, and is now used entirely for municipal purposes.

The Corporation insignia include a mayor's chain and badge and a pair of silver parcel-gilt maces: the latter are 1 foot $\frac{4}{11}$ inches in length; the heads are encircled with bands of fine cast work, and have a cresting of crosses and fleurs-de-lis; the grips are ornamented with six flanges of copper-gilt, painted; there are no hall-marks, but the date is about 1603; there are also two greater maces of silver-gilt, 28 inches in length, and of the usual form; the shafts are quite plain, but the heads are divided by winged female figures into four divisions, ornamented with devices and the armorial bearings of John Jefferys esq. and Walter Cary, representatives of Dartmouth in Parliament in 1747-54, the whole being surmounted by arched crowns with orb and cross; the flat tops of the heads bear the royal arms; the mayor's chain and badge of gold and colored enamel, provided in 1895 at a cost of £234 5s. 6d. defrayed by public subscription, weighs 28½ ounces; the existing borough seal is an embossing stamp, made in 1836, but two ancient seals are known, one c. 1280, and another of the 14th century; the mayor's seal is of the late 13th or early 14th century date, and there is another of the 16th century, but late; the Corporation also possesses a loving cup, dated 1673-4.

A market was granted to the town in 1226, and weekly markets in 1243, and another and similar grant was made by Edward I. in 1301, the town being then called "Clifton-super-Dartmouth"; the market-house was erected by the Corporation in 1829, and here markets for provisions and vegetables are held every Friday, and a fish market daily. A market is also held on the 2nd Tuesday in each month for sheep and cattle. A regatta for yachts and boats, held in August, is largely attended.

The early closing day is on Wednesday.

The principal support of Dartmouth is shipping and yacht and boat building. There is also a large paint factory in Clarence street, employing several hands, and an important brewery at Warfleet.

The exports are small in quantity, having considerably decreased in the last few years; the total imports were £10,863 in 1891, £5,446 in 1895 and £11,611 in 1899, from foreign ports.

The Constitutional Club, formed in 1884, has premises in Victoria road, comprising a library, billiard, reading, lecture and smoking rooms, and a refreshment bar; the club had in 1901, 250 members. The Liberal Club also has premises in Victoria road, consisting of reading, recreation and billiard rooms, and has now 120 members.

The Masonic Lodge, "Hauley, No. 797," was consecrated Sept. 1859. Lodge meetings are held monthly at Hauley hall, Lower street, on the 2nd Monday in the month. The "Dart Lodge, No. 2,641," was consecrated on St. George's day, April 21, 1897; lodge meetings are held monthly, except in July, August and September, at the Masonic hall, St. Saviour's place, on the third Tuesday in the month.

Dartmouth is now the station for H.M.S. "Britannia," 3,994 tons, the training ship for royal naval cadets, which entered the harbour 30th September, 1863, and was commissioned 1st July, 1892.

In 1879 Mrs. Hargreaves, through the National Life Boat Institution, presented the town with a lifeboat, named "Maud Hargreaves," in memory of her daughter, but this boat having become unserviceable, there is now (1901) no life boat station here.

The Cottage Hospital, originally in Bayards Cove, was founded in 1887 in commemoration of the Queen's Jubilee. In 1894 a new building of red brick was erected on the South Embankment, at a total cost of £1,084, and contains beds for 13 patients.

In 1599 William Ley left £40 for building an almshouse for poor people of this borough, which, in 1810, the Corporation exchanged for a more modern building now occupied by nine poor persons. The small almshouse left by John Lovering in 1671 was burnt down, and the site is now let for £5 2s. yearly. The public charities amount to £108 15s. 8d. Francis Whitney left £100, the interest of which is to be given to the poor in clothing every Christmas day. One Heales also left £100 to the Devon and Exeter Hospital for the maintenance of one or two patients yearly from the parishes of Townstal with St. Saviour, and that of St. Petrox.

A charity known as "Townstal Church Lands" was left by different donors; the income, amounting to about £100 a year, is devoted to the repair of the trust property, and the surplus, if any, is applied to the repairs of Townstal church.

The Ford charity, originally an estate in the parish of Blackawton, was sold to the late Col. Ridgway and the proceeds invested in Consols, now producing a gross income of £80 a year; the balance of this amount after paying working expenses is disposed of as follows: one-fifth to the preaching minister of St. Petrox church, one-fifth to the poor of St. Petrox parish, one-fifth to the poor of Townstal parish and two-fifths to the poor of St. Saviour's.

Dartmouth Castle, erected by Henry VIII. for the defence of the harbour, now consists of one or two towers, and forms a picturesque feature, although useless for defensive purposes; but a casemated battery, commanding the entrance to the river, mounted with five pieces of heavy ordnance, has been erected near it.

Dartmouth was the birthplace, in Feb. 1663, of Thomas Newcomen, son of Elias Newcomen, and great-grandson of Elias Newcomen, rector of Stoke Fleming, in this county; he was a studious man, of unassuming manners, and an ironmonger in this town, and according to tradition invented the steam-engine, from watching the teakettle on his fire: his engine was in active operation in 1705, and is acknowledged to have been the first self-acting steam-engine: the reputed original model of this machine is preserved in the museum of King's College. Newcomen, though occupying in his native place an inferior social position, was the direct descendant of the ancient Lincolnshire family of Newcomen of Saltfleetby, which can be traced to the close of the 12th century, and were baronets of Kenagh in Ireland from 1625 to 1789. When the thoroughfare, now called Newcomen road, was formed in Nov. 1864, and Newcomen's residence in the Lower street demolished, Mr. Thomas Lidstone, architect, of Dartmouth, purchased the interesting remains, and incorporating with them a quantity of carved wood, stone and plaster, recovered from other local buildings, built a large detached residence on the Ridgway, and called it "Newcomen Cottage." He also preserved here the clavel or key stone of the fireplace at which Newcomen sat when he first meditated upon the power of steam, and this house has consequently become an object of some attraction to archaeologists and tourists.

John Hawley, an extensive shipowner and merchant, was also a native of Dartmouth, and represented the borough in Parliament, 1399-1408; his son, also John Hawley, and member for Dartmouth during the reigns of Henry IV., V. and VI. married Emmeline, daughter and heir of Sir Robert Tresillian, Lord Chief Justice of the King's Bench in the time of Richard II.; the elder Hawley was buried, as mentioned above, in the chancel of St. Saviour's church. There was formerly an ancient well in Scuthford lane, used by ophthalmic patients, but it is now filled up. In Duke street are three houses carved on the exterior, and dated respectively 1635 and 1640: the upper storey projects over the footway, and is supported by stone columns. The first floor of No. 4 is stated to have been the reception room of King Charles I. and has the royal arms carved in oak over the fireplace: in Fosse street is another ancient house. The best example, however, of old Dartmouth architecture is the Shamble House, in Higher street, which has been recently restored.

Warfleet, at the bottom of a small inlet near the town, is a picturesque valley, with detached residences; Warfleet House is the residence of Lady Frenke. At the northern point of this inlet was formerly a round tower, called "Paradise Fort," mentioned by Gen. Fairfax in his letter to the Parliament; it has now been removed to make room for a marine villa, called "Ravensbury," the residence of Commander Robert Orme Webb R.N., J.P. which commands extensive views of the Channel and the opposite shore. Hyde Hill, pleasantly situated, is the residence of Sir Arthur Arnold J.P. Mount Boone, formerly the seat of the late Sir H. P. Seale bart. (d. 1897) is now in a ruinous condition; during the Civil War it was fortified, and armed with 22 guns, but was taken by storm by Col. Pride previous to the capitulation of the town. Norton Park is the seat of Sir John Henry Seale bart. D.L., J.P. lord of the manors of Norton Dawney and Southtown; Lewis Richard Netherton esq. of Bowden House, Stoke Fleming, is lord of the manor of Stoke Fleming; and these, with Hugh Mair esq. D.L. of Phyllis Court, Henley-on-Thames, Oxfordshire, the trustees of the Raleigh estate and the trustees of the late Joseph Baxendale esq. are the principal landowners.

Clifton, Dartmouth and Hardness, which together form the corporate name of the town, are three co-adjacent vills or manors. Clifton, included in Southtown, contained St. Petrox church and the castle; Dartmouth, in the 13th century, belonged to Totnes, and Hardness, now called "Sandquay," was in the manor of Norton, to which Townstal, called in Domesday "Dunestal," was an appendage.

The population of the ecclesiastical parishes in 1891 was: St. Petrox, 896, and St. Saviour with Townstal, 5,046.

The area of the borough is 1,924 acres of land and 58 of foreshore; rateable value, £19,646. The population of the borough in 1891 was 6,025 and in 1901 was 6,579, including 81 on board H.M.S. "Britannia" Training Ship for Cadets and 9 on H.M.S. "Wave."

DAWLISH is a town, and attractive watering-place and parish, with a station on the Great Western railway, and is 11 miles south-by-east from Exeter, 3 north from Teignmouth and 206 from London by rail, in the Mid division of the county, Exminster hundred, Teignbridge petty sessional division, Newton Abbot union and county court district, rural deanery of Kenn and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. Under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73), section 1, sub-section 3, the civil parish of Dawlish has been divided into two, the urban portion called Dawlish East and the rural Dawlish West. The town, which since the commencement of the present century has risen from a small fishing village to a place of considerable importance, is delightfully situated on the coast of the English Channel, in a beautiful valley opening to the sea, and bounded on the west by gently rising hills, and the air is considered particularly mild and salubrious, and the bathing being easy of access, on a firm and gently shelving sandy beach, this place is a great resort for sea-bathers and invalids at all seasons of the year: the old village stands some considerable distance inland, but the modern town is built on each side of a beautifully even lawn of considerable extent, with a small stream, called the "Dawlish water," running through its centre into the sea, and crossed by several bridges.

The "Local Government Act, 1858," was adopted here February 3, 1860, but under the provisions of the Act of 1894 (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73) the town is now governed by an Urban District Council of 12 members, and has a splendid supply of good water, obtained from Thornes and conveyed through mains to the reservoir at the Old Burrows and thence by gravitation into the town; the works, erected at a cost of £13,000, belong to the District Council. The gas works are the property of the Dawlish Gas & Coke Co. Limited. The Great Western railway passes through on an embankment, under the cliffs, and has a station on the beach: there is a coastguard station on the east cliff.

The parish church of St. Michael, which stands at the upper end of the town, nearly a mile from the beach, is a building of stone in the Later English style, and consists of a chancel with aisle, transepts, nave, aisles, porches, north vestry and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing 6 bells, all recast in 1784 from a previous peal of 5: in 1889 a new organ was erected at a cost of £1,200: the ancient screen and rood loft were removed at the beginning of the present century: the east window is a memorial to Sophia and Isabella Hoare and Carlotta A. Strickland, and is dated 1876: the west window to Jane Vaughan Forbes, d. 1869: in the chancel aisle is one to the Rev. Orlando Manley B.A. 15 years vicar here, erected by the parishioners in 1884; and there are others to the Greenup family, 1836-7, Edmund Ortt, 1866, and Caroline Ware, 1885: there are monuments to Sir William Grant kt. Master of the Rolls, 1801-17, who died here 25th May, 1832; Capt. George Anson Byrnn R.N. d. 1793; and John Schanck, a Scotch admiral and naval architect, d. 6th March, 1823, and two others by Flaxman: the church was rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, in 1824, at an expense of £4,000, and again extensively restored in 1873-8, at a cost of £7,000, the chancel and transepts being entirely rebuilt and the interior reseated; a further restoration was carried out in 1896, when the galleries were removed, the windows raised and reset, the exterior of the nave renovated and the roof repaired: in 1897 the tower was restored in memory of the Diamond Jubilee of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria, and in 1899 the interior was cleaned and renovated, and the north wall of the sacrum decorated with mosaic and opus sectile, the total expenditure from 1895 to 1899 was £3,313: the church will seat 800 persons. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1652; marriages, 1627; burials, 1654. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £375, with residence and 3 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and held since 1895 by the Rev. William Powell Alford M.A. of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

St. Mark's church, situated in the lower and central part of the town, was erected in 1850, at a cost of £2,500, of which sum Charles Hoare esq. contributed £1,800, and £1,000 towards its endowment: it is a building of stone, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, vestry, north porch and a tower at the north-west angle, with spire, containing a clock and one bell: the aisle and vestry were built in 1883, at a cost of £2,000, and an organ was presented by Mrs. Nosworthy, of the Newlands, in 1885: the east window is stained, and in the chancel is a memorial window to Charles Hoare esq. d. 1851, and Frances, his wife, d. 1853: the pulpit is a memorial to Frances Dorothy Somerset, and was erected by her children in 1895. The services here are conducted by the clergy of the parish church.

The Congregational church, in the Strand, erected in 1870 at a cost of £2,900, is a building of grey limestone, with Bath stone dressings, in the Early Decorated style, and has a tower with spire 100 feet high: the church will seat 600 persons: at the back are Sunday schools, erected in 1884 at a cost of £400.

The Wesleyan chapel, in Brunswick place, erected in 1860 at a cost of about £800, exclusive of site, is an edifice of stone: some alterations were effected in the interior in 1897 at a cost of £133: there are sittings for 400 persons. A large schoolroom was built in 1883 at a cost of £500.

The Primitive Methodist chapel, Park road, is a building of corrugated iron, with about 200 sittings.

There is a large service room for the Brethren in Lawn Hill.

The Cemetery, 4 acres in extent, was formed in 1882, and a mortuary chapel and lodge of red brick were erected in 1883-4, from designs by Mr. S. Dobell, architect, of Exeter: it is now under the control of a Joint Burial Committee of 9 members.

The Vestry Hall and Court House, Lansdowne place, erected about 1853, contains offices for the assistant overseer and a large room used for board meetings, concerts and lectures, seating 300 persons; here the magistrates hold petty sessions on the third Thursday in the month, or more frequently if necessary.

The premises of the Dawlish branch of the Young Women's Christian Association, situated in Brunswick place, and facing the Lawn, were erected in 1881 at the cost of the late Walter Tebbitt esq. of Brooklands, and form a structure of buff brick with red brick dressings in the revived Queen Anne style; they comprise a large hall, holding 350 people and containing a good organ.

The Masonic Hall, in Barton road, was erected in 1890. There are also billiard, ball and assembly rooms, library and reading rooms, and a number of good lodging houses.

Two weekly newspapers are published here: "The Dawlish Times," 1862, on Friday, by Mr. Alfred Samuel Cornelius, and "The Dawlish Gazette," 1887, on Saturday, by Mr. John Eenson.

There are two circulating libraries, Cann's, in the Strand, and W. H. Smith and Son's at the Railway station.

The Dawlish and Distriet Club, established in 1880, has about 60 members, and is open to gentlemen visitors. The principal hotels are the London, Royal and Albert.

There are two branch banks, the Capital and Counties Bank Limited, in the Strand, and the Devon and Cornwall Banking Co. Limited, Brunswick place.

A regatta is held annually in August or September, and a pleasure fair on Easter Monday.

The early closing day is on Thursday.

The Dispensary, in Queen street, established in 1855, is endowed with £18 annually, given by the late William Cogens esq. of Langdon House, and otherwise supported by voluntary subscriptions: there is also a Cottage Hospital, established in 1871, and removed to premises in Luscombe terrace in 1880, at a cost (including land) of £1,000: the interior is well fitted up and contains 8 beds and 2 cots; the yearly average of in-patients is 60, and of out-patients, 200.

Dawlish Infirmary, established about 1896, has at present 14 beds, and is entirely supported by voluntary contributions.

The charities, amounting to £5 yearly, are chiefly distributed in bread, but £1 12s. 8d. a year is given in prizes to the children attending the schools.

Luscombe is the beautiful seat of Peter Arthur M. Hoare esq.; attached to the house is an elegant private chapel, designed by the late Sir G. Gilbert Scott B.A.; Stanmore House is the residence of Mrs. Brown; Langdon House, of William Parr esq. and Oaklands, of Edward Herbert Bayldon esq. J.P. Peter A. M. Hoare esq. who is lord of the manor, Sir Robert H. S. D. Lydston Newman bart. of Mamhead Park, the Earl of Devon, Viscount Halifax F.S.A., A. E. F. Pidgley, B. B. Ferris, Henry Tothill, Elihu Edward Brand, William Parr, F. Ermen, E. H. Bayldon J.P. Weston Joseph Sparkes, E. F. Ellis, J. and W. Carpenter esqrs. and Mrs. Brown, Mrs. Lee, Mrs. Nosworthy and Mrs. Diana Eales are the chief landowners. The area of the urban district and Dawlish East parish is 1,500 acres; rateable value, 22,013; the population in 1901 was 4,003; the area of Dawlish West parish is 3,868 acres; rateable value, £7,414; the population in 1901 was 678.

By Local Government Board Order 16,546, which came into operation March 25, 1885, detached parts of the parish of Kenton, amounting to 739 acres, were added to the original parish of Dawlish.

HOLCOMBE is a hamlet in the parish of Dawlish, about 1½ miles south-west of that place, and 1½ north from Teignmouth. Here are several good villas, pleasantly situated on an eminence facing the sea. The Pennell family are the chief landowners. The small church (mission) here, erected about 1867 by the late Mrs. Graham, was enlarged in 1893 by the extension of the chancel; the floor was relaid, communion rails fixed and an organ loft erected, at a cost of £250, the whole work being undertaken as a memorial to the late Misses Rebecca and Emma Fennell. Mrs. Lloyd, daughter of the foundress, endowed the church with a sum which brings in £54 yearly. The services here are conducted by the clergy of the parish church.

Lidward hamlet is about 1½ miles west, and consists of one farm house and some cottages; in this hamlet stands the ruined chapel of St. Mary. The Rev. George Ferris Whidborne M.A. of the Priory, Westbury-on-Trym, Bristol, is the chief landowner.

Clerk and Sexton, George Gay, Church house, Dawlish.

DEAN PRIOR is a parish on the road from Exeter to Plymouth, $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles south-west from Buckfastleigh station on the Ashburton branch of the Great Western railway, $4\frac{1}{2}$ south-west from Ashburton and 7 north-west from Totnes, in the Southern division of the county, Stanborough hundred, Stanborough and Coleridge petty sessional division, Totnes union and county court district, rural deanery of Totnes and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. George is a building of stone in mixed styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower containing 5 bells: in 1864 the chancel and bells were thoroughly restored by subscription: in the south aisle is a handsome monument of painted marble, to Sir Edward Giles, knighted at Whitehall, 23rd of July, 1603, before the coronation of James I.; he died in 1642: there is another to the memory of the poet Herrick, author of the "Hesperides," who was vicar here 1654-74, and though ejected under the Protectorate, was reinstated by Charles II.: the ancient screen was removed before 1875: there are 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1553, and contains an entry of the burial of "Robert Herrick, vicker," 15 Oct. 1674. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £216, with residence and 93 acres of glebe, in the gift of Lord Churston, and held since 1878 by the Rev. Charles John Perry-Keene B.A. of Pembroke College, Oxford. Charities producing £6 ros. are distributed in bread and money. Here is a beautiful wood, covering about 300 acres, through which flows one of the tributaries of the Dart, on which is a pretty waterfall. The principal landowners are Lord Churston, who is lord of the manor and chief landowner, The Misses Carew, and John Fleming esq. of Bigadon. The soil varies considerably, being chiefly sandy loam; subsoil, slate and limestone. The crops are wheat, barley, oats, roots and pasture. Area, 4,136 acres, including about 1,400 of wood; rateable value, £2,658; the population in 1901 was 259.

Sexton, James Casely.

DENBURY is an ecclesiastical parish and village, united for civil purposes with Torbryan, and is 1 mile from the Newton and Totnes high road, $3\frac{1}{2}$ miles south-west from Newton Abbot station on the South Devon section of the Great Western railway, 6 north from Totnes and 5 east from Ashburton, in the Mid division of the county, Haytor hundred, Teignbridge petty sessional division, Newton Abbot union, Newton Abbot and Torquay county court district, rural deanery of Moreton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary is a cruciform edifice of stone, in the Early English and Perpendicular styles, consisting of a long chancel, nave, transepts, south porch and a low embattled western tower, containing a clock and 5 bells: in the chancel is a piscina, projecting at an angle and surmounted by an Early Decorated ogee arch; the drain is deep and curious: the chancel roof is relieved by carved bosses, and there is a priest's doorway: the stained east window was presented by the rector, and there are five other stained windows: the rood loft stairs and traces of a rood loft still exist, and a screen of the 16th century, in good condition, separates the nave from the south transept: in the north transept are remains of the rood-loft stairs: there is a tablet in memory of Major-General Thomas William Taylor C.B. who died in 1754: the font, of red sandstone, is apparently Norman: the church was repaired about 1845, at the expense of Miss Froude, and the chancel was restored and decorated in 1866, at the cost of the Rev. James H. Reibey M.A. rector, 1859-1901: there are sittings for 300 persons. In the churchyard is a very fine yew tree. The register dates from the year 1559. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £131, with residence and $21\frac{1}{2}$ acres of glebe, in the gift of Mrs. Reibey, and held since 1901 by the Rev. Hubert Guillum Stanley Scott M.A. of Pembroke College, Cambridge. Here is a Baptist chapel. There are charities of about £15 yearly value, arising from land left at a very remote period; and 20s. yearly, left by John Peters, of Cornworthy, in 1570, and given to the poor. On Denbury Down are the remains of a camp. The reading and coffee room, established in 1879 by the late Rev. James Haydock Reibey, rector here 1859-1901, and the Misses Gardiner, has a library and bagatelle and reading rooms. Denbury House, the residence of Mrs. Trevenen Coode, was during the early part of the 16th century a residence of the monks of Tavistock, and a great part of the original building remains. Daniel Robert Scratton esq. of Ogwell, is lord of the manor and chief landowner. The soil is loamy; the subsoil is lime and dunstone. The chief crops are cereals and roots. The acreage and rate-able value are included with Tobryan; the population, including Torbryan, in 1891 was 516, and of the ecclesiastical parish, 331.

DIPTFORD is a township, parish and village, on the river Avon, with two stations in the parish on the South Brent and Kingsbridge branch of the Great Western railway, viz.:—Avonwick, a mile north from the village, and Gara Bridge, about 2½ south; it is 5½ miles south-west from Totnes, in the Southern division of the county, Stanborough hundred, Stanborough and Coleridge petty sessional division, Totnes union and county court district, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary is an ancient building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a western tower with spire containing a clock and 6 bells: the clock, with chimies, was erected as a memorial to the late Rev. W. C. Johnson, 44 years rector of this parish: in the north aisle is a brass to Honor Vowell, ob. 1595: there are monuments to Charles Taylor, of Maridge, and Ann, his wife, ob. 1763, and to William Hare, of Curtisknowle, in this parish, d. 1820, and Elizabeth, his wife, d. 1838: the church was restored in 1870, at a cost of about £700, and has 330 sittings. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £330, with residence and 2½ acres of glebe, in the gift of trustees, and held since 1881 by the Rev. James Thomas Benedictus Notley B.A. of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge. The charities amount to about £100 yearly, derived principally from the rentals of two farms, one of which, "Blakewell," is situated in Diptford, and the other, "Cheston," in the parish of Ugborough; these are vested in certain trustees, who, with the rector and churchwardens, annually distribute the funds arising from them for the repair of the church and to the poor of the parish. Diptford was a Roman settlement. Here are quarries, producing blue slate. The ancient manor house and buildings at Crabadon Court form an interesting example of domestic architecture of the 15th century. Bradridge House is the residence of Maj. Gerald Marcell Conran J.P. Diptford Court is occupied as a farm house by Thomas Luscombe. Frederic James Cornish-Bowden esq. of Black Hall, Avonwick, who is lord of the manor of Crabadon, and with Bertram Fredk. Trelawny Hare esq. and Major G. M. Conran are the principal landowners. The soil is loamy; subsoil, dunstone and slate. The chief crops are barley and oats. The area is 4,150 acres; rateable value, £3,349; population in 1901 was 501, chiefly engaged in agriculture.

DITTISHAM is a parish and village on the west bank of the river Dart, 7 miles south-east from Totnes station on the main line and 4½ north-west from Kingswear station, and 2½ west from Churston station, on the Dartmouth branch of the Great Western railway, and 4 north from Dartmouth, in the Southern division of the county, Coleridge hundred, Stanborough and Coleridge petty sessional division, Totnes union and county court district, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. George is an ancient building of stone, chiefly in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch, and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing a clock and 6 bells, all cast by Thomas Mears in 1802: the east window and several others are stained, and there is a good stone pulpit: there is a fair screen, crossing the church, but its present position is more to the east than it stood originally; it still retains some colouring: the church was restored in 1883, at a cost of £600, and affords 400 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1650; marriages, 1654. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £476, including 85 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of the Earl of Mount-Edgcumbe, and held since 1853 by the Rev. the Hon. Graham Colborne M.A. of St. John's College, Oxford, and surrogate, who resides at Hemburyfort, Honiton. The rectory house, beautifully situated on the south bank of the Dart, is now occupied by the Rev. Edward Arthur Pearse, Assoc. of King's College, London, who has been assistant curate since 1900.

Here is a Congregational chapel, with burial ground attached, and there is a Wesleyan chapel at Capton, built in 1890. The charities amount to £42 yearly. The rector is lord of the manor. The Raleigh trustees and H. F. Brunsell esq. of Buckland Tout Saints, are the chief landowners. The soil is clayey and loamy; subsoil, loamy, with some stone. The chief crops are wheat, barley, potatoes and fruit. The area is 2,956 acres of land, 138 of tidal water, and 233 of foreshore; rateable value, £3,669; the population in 1901 was 544.

DOWN ST. MARY is a parish and village, on the road from Crediton to Torrington, one mile south-west from the Morchard Road station on the North Devon branch of the London and South Western railway, 7 north-west from Crediton and 14 north-west from Exeter, in the South Molton division of the county, North Tawton hundred, Crediton petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Oadbury and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary is a building of stone, in the Norman, Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, formerly containing 3 bells; the tower was restored in 1897-98, when the 3 old bells were re-hung and 2 new bells added; the doorway is a good specimen of Early Norman work: the church was restored in 1878-79 and 80, at a cost of £3,000, defrayed almost entirely by the late Rev. William Tucker Arundel Radford B.A. rector here, 1843-97, and his family, a new roof fixed, north aisle rebuilt and vestry added; the ancient oak screen, which had fallen into decay, was almost entirely replaced by new work, carved by Mr. W. H. Bushell, of this village: there are some memorial windows: there are 125 sittings: in 1898 the church cross was restored and an old wayside cross given by the Rev. F. Barker, of St. Olave's, Chagford, was erected opposite the tower door. The register dates from the year 1688. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £200, including 50 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the representatives of the late Rev. W. T. A. Radford, and held since 1897 by the Right Rev. Bishop Robert K. Kestell-Cornish D.D. of Corpus Christi College, Oxford, late Bishop of Madagascar. There is a Bible Christian chapel at

WEST DOWN is a parish, 3 miles south-east from Morthoe station on the Barnstaple and Ilfracombe branch of the London and South Western railway, 9 north-by-west from Barnstaple and 4 south from Ilfracombe, in the North Western division of the county, Braunton hundred and petty sessional division, Barnstaple union and county court district, rural deanery and archdeaconry of Barnstaple and diocese of Exeter. The church of the Holy Trinity is an ancient cruciform building of stone, supposed to have been erected in the reign of Henry VII. and consisting of chancel, nave, transept, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing a clock and 6 bells: in the north transept is an oak effigy of Sir John Wyatt kt. (also called le White or de la Wayt), a Justice of the Common Pleas from 1342 to about 1372; he was born at Stowford in this parish, about 1290, and the effigy, which represents him in the robes of a sergeant-at-law, was re-coloured in 1873; the figure of Joan (Tracy), his wife, is lost: the stained east window is a memorial to Mr. Robert Hole: in the chancel are two other stained windows to the Rev. H. J. Drury, late vicar, and two members of the Davy family: the west window, a memorial to Grace, wife of James Bale, was given, in 1886, by Mrs. Fitzmaurice, her sister, who also erected a lych gate in the same year: the font, a Norman work, was found under the floor during the Coplestone, with 150 sittings. The charities amount to £6 13s. yearly, derived from the interest on £213 18s. 1d. in Consols, left by Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Radford, and 5s. a year from a farm called "Wood Farm," in Eggesford. At the junction of this parish with Crediton and Colebrook stands the venerable and famous Coplestone Cross, for which see Crediton. Mr. John Pope, of Exeter, owns Little Chaffcombe, but the manor of Chaffcombe (or Chettecombe) belongs to Mr. Thomas Moon (or Mohun), and the barton of Bradiford and Bartonbury to W. T. A. Radford esq. Lord Alington is lord of the manors of Down and Crook Burnell and principal landowner. The soil is loam and clay, and the subsoil is clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and roots. The area is 2,125 acres; rateable value, £2,225; the population in 1901 was 328 in the civil and 336 in the ecclesiastical parish.

By Local Government Board Order, 16,552, which came into operation March 24, 1884, South Emlett Farm was transferred from Down St. Mary to Woolfardisworthy for civil purposes.

The register dates from the year 1583. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value, from tithe rentcharge, £190, with residence and 7 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1870 by the Rev. William Chorley Loveband Theol. Assoc. K.C.L. Here are Wesleyan and Congregational chapels; the latter was endowed in 1868 by the late John Norrington, of Barnstaple, and will hold 150 persons. The poor's lands, which yield £5 5s. yearly, have been sold and the money invested in the names of the Charity Commissioners. The principal landowners are Major John Edgcombe Loveband, who is lord of the manor of Bradwell; Miss Arundell Yeo, of Fremington, who is lady of the manor of Stowford; Col. Griffith, Russell Griffiths esq. the trustees of the late Tom Hole esq. Mrs. Parminster, Edward Anderton esq. Mrs. Basset, of Watermouth Castle, and John Chugg esq. There is no manor of West Down. The soil is clayey; subsoil, slate. The chief crops are pasture and oats. The area is 4,082 acres; assessable value, £2,760; the population in 1891 was 562.

DREWSTEIGNTON is a large parish and village near the river Teign, 6 miles north-by-east from Moreton Hampstead terminal station of a branch of the Great Western railway, and 10 south-east from Okehampton, in the Mid division of the county, Wonford hundred, Crockernwell petty sessional division, Okehampton union and county court district, rural deanery of Okehampton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of the Holy Trinity is an ancient building of granite in the Early Perpendicular style, consisting of modern chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles, containing a clock, erected in 1893, and 6 bells: it was re-seated and repaired in 1863, when the chancel was rebuilt and two stained windows inserted: there are 446 sittings. The register dates from the year 1557. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £560, including 464 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the trustees of the late Sir Cuthbert E. Peek bart. and held since 1895 by the Rev. Richard Peek M.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge. There is a Baptist chapel here and a Methodist chapel at Whiddon Down. The poor have £27 10s. the interest of £1,000 Consols, given in 1847 by G. Ponsford. Hall's charity of £2 14s. is distributed in bread. Edgcumbe's charity produces £86 yearly, derived from land and cottages in the parish, one half of which is for the reparation of the church, and the remainder is distributed among the poor. Miss Elizabeth Bragg Shaw left, in 1875, £100 Consols for the benefit of the farm labourers and workpeople employed on Furlong estate in this parish. Limestone quarries are worked here. The celebrated cromlech and a reputed logan stone 12 feet long by 6 in thickness, attract numerous visitors. William Ponsford esq. and the Rev. Oswald Joseph Reichel B.C.L., F.S.A. of Lympton, who are lords of the manor; Colville George Hayter-Hames esq. of Chagford House; William Bragg, William Oliver Harvey, James Strong, William Tuckett Strong, Tom John Pitts Tucker esq. of Netherton, and the rector, are the principal landowners. The soil is loamy; subsoil, limestone. The principal grain crop is wheat, but root crops of all kinds are produced. The area is 6,171 acres of land and 18 of water; rateable value, £5,115; the population in 1901 was 693.

By Local Government Board Order 16,407, which came into operation March 25, 1885, Naraway and Thornbury have been transferred from Hittesleigh parish, in Crediton union, to Drewsteignton, and a part of Teignholt taken from the latter parish and added to the former, for civil purposes.

Crockernwell is a small village, 2 miles north-east, on the main road from Exeter to Cornwall, partly in Cheriton Bishop and partly in Drewsteignton.

Sandy Park is a hamlet, 2 miles south on the road to Moreton Hampstead. Whiddon Down is a small village, 3 miles south-west on the road from Exeter to Okehampton, partly in South Tawton and partly in Drewsteignton.

DUNCHIDEOCK is a parish and small village, in a picturesque valley, 2 miles from the Plymouth road and 4 miles south-south-west from St. Thomas station, Exeter, on the Great Western railway, about 1½ north-east from Doddicombeleigh station on the Exeter, Teign Valley and Chagford railway, and 5 miles south-west from Exeter, in the North Eastern division of the county, Exminster hundred, Wonford petty sessional division, St. Thomas union, county court district of Exeter, rural deanery of Kenn, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Michael, rebuilt about 1669, is a building in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, porch and a tower containing 3 bells; the first is dated 1700, the second bears a legend in Old English type, and the tenor has an invocation to St. John; there is a magnificent screen, restored in 1893, some antique carved benches, and a monument to General J. S. Lawrence, sometime commander-in-chief in India, who died in 1775, and another to Aaron Baker of Bowhay esq. ob. 1683: the stained east window is a memorial to the Rev. Henry Palk, a former rector, who died in 1872; the east window of the chancel aisle is a memorial to the Pitman family, 1879; and there are two smaller ones in the chancel, which also retains a piscina: in the north wall the stairs to the rood loft still remain: the church was restored in 1875-7 and 1889, at a cost of £1,265, chiefly defrayed by Sir William M. Walrond M.P. the chancel having been previously rebuilt by the late rector; further restorations were carried out in 1894 on the oak screen and tower, the tower arch being opened out to the church and a new west window erected, at a total cost of over £300, defrayed by subscription: a list of rectors from 1262 to the present time is kept in an oak frame in the church. The register dates from the year 1538. The living is a rectory, consolidated with that of Shillingford St. George, net yearly value £254, with 70 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Lord Haldon, and held since 1888 by the Rev. Samuel Hastings Atkins B.A. of Hatfield Hall, Durham, who resides at Shillingford St. George. There is a charity of 45s. derived from common lands enclosed by Sir Lawrence Palk, and another charity, consisting of the interest of £150, was left in 1894 by Mrs. Palk for the combined parishes. Dunchideock House, at present occupied by Charles Fredk. Lucas esq. is a spacious mansion, pleasantly situated. Col. the Rt. Hon. Sir William Hood Walrond bart. P.C., M.P. of Bradfield, is the chief landowner. The soil is loamy, resting on red sandstone. The chief crops are wheat and barley. The area is 968 acres; rateable value, £952; the population in 1901 was 134.

DUNKESWELL is a parish and village near the high road from Honiton to Wellington, and stands from 700 to 800 feet above sea level; it is 4 miles south from Hemycok terminal station of the Culm Vale branch of the Great Western railway, 9 south from Wellington (Somerset), 6 north-by-west from Honiton and 20 north-east from Exeter, in the Eastern division of the county, Hemycok hundred, Honiton petty sessional division, union and county court district, rural deanery of Dunkeswell and Honiton, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Nicholas (dedicated, according to the "Devonian Index Parochialis," 5th December, 1259) was an ancient building, consisting of chancel, nave, transept, porch and a tower containing 3 bells; in 1868, through the exertions of the Rev. Richard Croly M.A. a former incumbent, the church, which had well nigh become ruinous, was replaced by an edifice of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch, and a western tower 65 feet high, with pinnacles, containing 5 bells: there are 200 sittings. The register dates from the year 1749. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £96, including 36 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of Mrs. Simcoe, and held since 1888 by the Rev. Andrew Given M.A. of Caius College, Cambridge. Here is a Wesleyan chapel. The charities, amounting to £25, are distributed by the vicar and the owner of Wolford. Wolford Lodge, the seat of Mrs Simcoe, has a private chapel attached, built in 1800 by the late General Simcoe, on the site of a former church called "Wulphere": Stentwood House, the residence of John Alfred de Selincourt Eccles esq. is a mansion of stone, erected in 1881, and situated at the top of the vale. Mrs. Simcoe, who is lady of the manor, and the representatives of the late Mrs. Mary Graves, the trustees of the late Sir Fredrick Arthur Thomas Hervey-Bathurst bart. (d. 1900), J. A. de Selincourt Eccles esq. and the Rev. William Speke B.C.L. of Sheldon Court, Honiton, are the principal landowners. The soil is gravelly; subsoil, foxmoor and fine gravel. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and grass. The area of the whole parish is 4,587 acres; rateable value, £2,489; the population of Dunkeswell in 1901 was 289, about 57 of whom reside within the ecclesiastical parish of Dunkeswell Abbey.

DUNSFORD is a parish and village, on the bank of the river Teign, on the road from Exeter to Moreton Hampstead, and is 5 miles east-by-north from Moreton Hampstead terminal station of a branch of the Great Western railway and 7 miles west-by-south from Exeter, in the Mid division of the county, hundred of Wonford, petty sessional division of Crockernwell, union of St. Thomas, county court district of Exeter, rural deanery of Kenn, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary is a fine old structure in the Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel (rebuilt in 1846), nave, north aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 6 bells, dated 1785: there are some ancient monuments to the Fulford family, who have held property here from the time of Richard I. and several other stained windows, one in the Fulford pew to the late B. Fulford esq. and another in the chancel, erected in 1880, to Lieut. E. H. Arden, son of the late vicar; a lancet window was erected by W. H. Kelland esq. during his lifetime, to the Rev. George Arden, vicar 1866-88, who died in 1890; the stained east window is Early English; the pulpit and reading desk are of carved and polished oak: the font is Perpendicular, and bears shields of the Leay, Fulford, Courtenay, Fitzcourse and Bosan families, illustrating various alliances of the Fulfords: an ancient helmet, said to date from the time of Richard III. remains in the church, which has 200 sittings: the church plate consists of a silver flagon, dated 1790; silver alms basin, of 1663; silver-mounted earthenware flagon, 1576; 2 silver chalices and a silver paten and spoon. The registers of marriages and burials date from 1594, and of baptisms from 1597. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £250, with residence and 7 acres of glebe, in the gift of Francis Drummond Fulford esq. and held since 1888 by the Rev. Henry Edmund Du Maine Tickell B.A. of Wadhams College, Oxford. Here is a Baptist chapel. A cattle fair is held yearly on the Monday after September 8th. The poor's lands produce about £35 yearly. College, Dublin. Here was once a Cistercian abbey, founded in 1201, by William de Briwere or Brewer, and colonized from Ford; the foundations of the buildings may still be traced, but the only fragment now above ground is a portion of the gatehouse; two stone coffins of red stone, with moulded covers of Purbeck marble, have been found on the spot, which contained the remains of the founder and his wife (William Lord de Brewer was buried 1225), from whom the present owners of Wolford are descended. Some floor tiles have also been recovered: at the suppression of the abbey there were 8 monks, and revenues estimated at £294 yearly. The principal landowners are William Farrant, Thomas Warren, Mr. Walker and the trustees of the late Mrs. Pring. The soil is gravelly; subsoil, marl and sand. The chief crops are wheat, oats and pasture. The population in 1901 was 163.

the Rev. G. T. M. Messiter-Terry M.A. vicar of Payhembury. Great Fulford, the property and residence of Francis Drummond Fulford esq. D.L., J.P. is a fine old mansion, built by Sir John Fulford knt. sheriff of Devon, in the reign of Queen Elizabeth, and is delightfully situated in grounds of about 8 acres, 2 miles north-west from the village: in the Parliamentary war it was garrisoned for the King by Colonel Sir Francis Fulford, but surrendered to Fairfax, December, 1645; in the park are still to be seen the redoubts cast up by the troops. Little Dunsford was for several generations the property of the Servingtons, and it now belongs to the West of England Insurance Co.; the manor of Halstow belongs to the priest-vicars of Exeter Cathedral, and that of Cotle to King's College, Cambridge. Francis Drummond Fulford esq. who is lord of the manor of Dunsford; Col. the Right Hon. Sir W. H. Walrod bart. P.C., M.P. of Bradfield, Edward C. A. Byrom esq. of Culver, near Exeter; the Rev. G. T. M. Messiter-Terry M.A. vicar of Payhembury, Richard Wm. Berry esq. and Joseph Hellier esq. are the chief landowners. The soil is clayey; subsoil, clay and red rock. The chief crops are wheat and barley. The area is 6,023 acres of land and 19 of water; rateable value, £4,430; the population in 1901 was 633.

DUNTERTON is a village and parish on the Cornish border, in the valley of the Tamar, on the high road between Tavistock and Launceston, 5 miles south from Lifton station on the Launceston branch of the Great Western railway, $5\frac{1}{2}$ south-east from Launceston and 8 north-west from Tavistock, in the Western division of the county, Lifton hundred and petty sessional division. Tavistock union, Launceston county court district, rural deanery of Tavistock, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of All Saints, supposed to have been built in the time of Henry VI. is a small building in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave of four bays, north aisle, south porch, and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 3 bells, of which the first is dated 1525, the second 1750, and the tenor has an inscription in old English characters: the window tracery at the east end is Decorated work: there is a mural tablet to the Rev. Thomas Wrayford, a former rector, ob. 1678. The church was restored in 1891 at a cost of £250, principally subscribed by Reginald Kelly esq. and the 9th Duke of Bedford: the interior was reset, the top of tower repaired and the organ enlarged: the church affords 90 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1640; marriages, 1677; burials, 1583. The living is a rectory, net yearly value, £224, with 71 acres of glebe and residence, in the gift of Mrs. A. S. Gibbons, and held since 1800 by the Rev. John Ponsford Cann B.A. of St. John's College, Cambridge, surrogate, and J.P. for Cornwall. The Duke of Bedford and the Rev. Maitland Kelly M.A. of Kelly, Lifton, are the principal landowners. The soil is various loams; subsoil, sparstone and free-stone. The chief crops are oats, barley and roots, but much of the land is pasturage. The area is 1,191 acres of land and 15 of water; rateable value, £1,270; the population in 1891 was 86.

EGG BUCKLAND is a village and extensive and scattered parish, near the river Plym and the Dartmoor tram railway, 3 miles north-by-east from Plymouth, in the Western division of the county, Boborough hundred, Midland Boborough petty sessional division, Plympton St. Mary union, East Stonehouse county court district, rural deanery of Plympton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. A large portion of this parish, with nearly half of the glebe land, has been appropriated by the Government for the purpose of the chain of fortifications called the "North-Eastern defences of Plymouth." The Laira is a lake-like expansion of the river Plym. The church of St. Erasmus, almost entirely rebuilt in 1874, at a cost of £800, under the direction of Mr. Elliott, architect, of Plymouth, is an edifice of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing 6 bells, recast from a former peal, dating from an early period to 1768: there are memorial windows to the Radcliffe and Elliot families: the church affords 450 sittings. The register dates from the year 1653. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £360, including 15 acres of glebe, with residence, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1901 by the Rev. Abel Frank Baker B.A. of the University of London. The tithes have been commuted—the vicarial for £342 and the rectorial for £135 yearly. In 1790 the Rev. Vincent Warren left £800 Consols to clothe 10 poor children of this parish. Copper ore has been found here. Widey Court, the property of J. Y. Anderson-Morshead esq. J.P. of Salcombe Begis, was the head quarters of Prince Maurice when he besieged Plymouth in 1643; the King was also there in 1644. Derriford, the seat of Pollexfen Colmore Copleston Radcliffe esq. J.P. is a modern building, standing on 150 acres of ground. Smallack is the seat of Richard Risdon esq. J.P. Leigham, the property of Henry Elliot Tracey-Elliot esq. is now occupied by Godfrey Courage esq.; Little Efford, which belongs to John Thomas Soltan esq. J.P. is occupied by John Thomas Johnson esq. Mrs. Clark, of Efford, who is lady of the manor of Efford, John Y. Anderson-Morshead esq., H. E. Tracey-Elliot esq., P. C. Copleston Radcliffe esq. Richard Risdon esq. and Lieut.-Col. John Archer Julian Briggs are chief landowners. The soil is loamy; subsoil, clay. The chief crops are wheat, oats, barley and green crops. The area is 3,193 acres of land, 10 of water, 7 of tidal water and 34 of foreshore; rateable value, £13,502; the population in 1901 was 1,006, including 5 in Egg Buckland and Efford forts and 10 in the married quarters.

Crown Hill (formerly Knackers Knowle), is 1 mile north-west, partly in the parish and part in St. Budeaux. Barracks were constructed here in 1897 by the War Office, for about 400 men.

There is a mission church at Crab Tree, of which the Rev. John Mackey Hodge M.A. of Hertford College, Oxford, has been curate-in-charge since 1887; it is $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles south-east.

ERMINGTON is a parish and village on the river Erme, 3 miles south from Ivybridge station on the South Devon section of the Great Western railway, and 11 east from Plymouth, in the Southern division of the county, Ermington and Plympton hundred and petty sessional division, Plympton St. Mary union, East Stonehouse county court district, and in the rural deanery of Plympton, archdeaconry of Totnes, and diocese of Exeter. Ermington was formerly a market town, under a grant issued in 1294. The church of SS. Peter and Paul is a building of stone in the Early English, Decorated and Perpendicular styles, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a lofty embattled western tower with spire containing 6 bells; the spire leans considerably; a stained window has been inserted by the Rev. John M. de Ludbrooke Bartlet M.A. of Ludbrooke; and there is a screen of the late Jacobean period, and richly designed parclose screens given by the Rev. W. H. Andrews M.A. rector 1866-1901, besides monuments to the Swete and Edgcombe families: in the church is also a monument with brass kneeling effigies, shields of arms and inscription, to William Strachleigh, of Strachleigh esq. ob. 21 July, 1583; Anne (Gould), his wife, and Christian, their daughter, wife of Christopher Chudleigh, to whom there is also a memorial in the south aisle; the pulpit is panelled and adorned with carved work: the church was restored in 1890 at an expense of £7,000, chiefly borne by H. B. Mildmay esq. of Flete: there are 420 sittings. The register dates from the year 1603. The living is a sinecure rectory and vicarage, with the chapelry of Kingston annexed, the joint net yearly value of the latter being about £187, with residence, in the gift of the Crown, alternately with trustees, and held since 1880 by the Rev. Edmund Pinwill M.A. of Pembroke College, Oxford. The sinecure rectory is of the yearly value of £510, including tithe rent-charge and 85 acres of glebe, in the gift of and held since 1901 by the Rev. William North Andrews, vicar of Paston, Norfolk. Here is a Wesleyan Methodist chapel. The charities, amounting to £70 yearly, given by Brookings and others, and in the hands of the feoffees, are distributed amongst the second poor. The inhabitants are chiefly employed in agriculture. A fair is held here on June 24th. The Strachleigh family were residents here from the time of Henry III. The manor of Strode, known as Higher and Lower Strode, is partly in Modbury, but principally in this parish. The old Manor House, or Higher Strode, now a farmhouse, was in 1655 the residence of Sir William Strode, owner of the manor of Strode and Bradford, now known as Strode. Ludbrooke Manor House, the residence of the Rev. John Moysey de Ludbrooke Bartlet M.A. is a modern mansion of stone with an embattled tower, and is situated on an eminence overlooking the surrounding country, one mile from Modbury and in this parish; the manor of Ludbrooke has long been in the possession of the ancestors of the present owner. Baldwin John Pollexfen Bastard esq. of Buckland Court, Ashburton, and Henry Bingham Mildmay esq. of Flete, Ivybridge, are chief landowners; the latter is lord of the manor of Ermington, and owner of the inappropriate tithe. The soil is light; subsoil, various. The chief crops are barley and wheat. The area is 5,122 acres of land and 17 of water; rateable value, £8,636; the population in 1891 was 2,327.

By Local Government Board Order 16,313, which came into operation March 24, 1884, Penquit, Caton and Ludbrook House were transferred to this parish from Modbury in Kingsbridge union.

Cadleigh and Woodland are hamlets in this parish.

ESCOT was formed into an ecclesiastical parish in 1844, from the civil parishes of Ottery St. Mary and Talaton; it is on the road from Honiton to Exeter, about one mile south from Sidmouth Junction station on the London and South Western railway, 5 south-west from Honiton and 12 north-east from Exeter, in the Eastern division of the county, Ottery St. Mary hundred, union and county court district of Honiton, rural deanery of Ottery, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. The church of SS. Philip and James, built by the late Sir John Kennaway bart. in 1838 at a cost of about £3,000, is a building of stone in the Early English style, consisting of chancel, nave, north porch and a western turret containing one bell: there are eight stained lancet windows, and a pulpit of carved oak, by Hems, of Exeter, erected in 1896 as a memorial to the late Miss Augusta Kennaway: the church has 200 sittings. The register for baptisms and burials dates from the year 1840; marriages, 1869. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £210, with residence, in the gift of the Right Hon. Sir J. H. Kennaway bart. P.C., M.P. and held since 1894 by the Rev. Edward Charles Nightingale M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge. The Right Hon. Sir John Henry Kennaway bart. P.C., M.P. of Escot House, Talaton, is the principal landowner. In 1897 a public clock was placed in an existing wall at Fairmile, by parishioners and friends, to commemorate the sixtieth year of the reign of Her late Majesty Queen Victoria. The soil is clay; subsoil, gravel and clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley and pasture. The area is 2,000 acres; population in 1891 was 408. Part of Fenny Bridges is in this district.

EXBOURNE is a parish and village on the Okement, which separates Exbourne from Jacobstowe and flows through the parish; it abounds with trout and is also the haunt of otters, which afford good sport. Exbourne is 4½ miles west from North Tawton station and 4 north-west from Sampford Courtenay station both on the main line of the London and South Western railway, 4 south from Hatherleigh and 5 north from Okehampton, in the Western division of the county, Black Torrington hundred, Hatherleigh petty sessional division, Okehampton union and county court district, rural deanery of Okehampton, archdeaconry of Totnes and diocese of Exeter. The church of St. Mary is an ancient building of granite in the Early English and Decorated styles, consisting of chancel, nave, south aisle, south porch and an embattled western tower, of Perpendicular date, with crocketed pinnacles and containing 5 bells: the communion plate includes an ancient silver chalice, dated 1577: the ancient screen dating from 1430, was removed in or about 1835, and after having long lain hidden and neglected, was restored and replaced in 1899: in 1890 a handsome communion table was made of old oak from the former rectory buildings; two memorials windows have been inserted, one presented in 1885 by the late John Cremer Clarke esq. J.P. of Waste Court, Abingdon, and M.P. for that borough 1874-85, as a memorial to his father and mother, Robert Clarke, of St. Giles'-in-the-Wood, d. 7 February, 1864, and Graciana (Cremer), his wife; his brother Edwin, d. 8 December, 1848, and Sister Elizabeth, d. 10 May, 1849: the other, placed in 1887, is a memorial to Lieut. Herbert Laing, who died at Mandalay, Burmah, in 1836: there are mural tablets to Simon and Mary Westlake, and to a member of the Tattershall family, of Exbourne: the church was partially restored, and the chancel almost entirely rebuilt in 1886-8, at a cost of £1,050: the church is now (1901) being generally re-seated in oak in part, at the cost of Miss Hole, in memory of her mother, the late Mrs. Frances Emily Hole, of Hole, and affords about 200 sittings: the churchyard was planted and laid out in 1886-7. The register dates from the year 1540, and there are Churchwardens' books dating from the early part of the reign of Charles II. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £240, including 63 acres of globe, with residence, in the gift of and held since 1877 by the Rev. D'Oyly William Oldham M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford. There is a Bible Christian chapel here, erected about 1860, and seating 100 persons. The Manor Hall, opened in 1897, is used for holding the annual Court-baron and rent dinner of the manor, and serves also as a Reading and Recreation room for the Village club. It will seat about 120 people. It is also used for concerts and entertainments. There are charities of £1 10s. yearly value. In 1888, W. H. Kelland esq. gave £8 for charitable purposes. Near the church stand the ruins of the ancient church house, built by Sir Wm. Chudleigh, as lord of the manor, in the 22nd year of King Henry VII. (1506-7). The original deed placing this building in the hands of trustees for certain church purposes is still preserved in the church chest; after the Reformation, like all church houses of that period, the building was turned into tenements for poor villagers, and until 1869 was maintained by a church rate. Exbourne Court, usually called "Court Barton," commands extensive and beautiful views; it has long been the property of the Tattershalls, and is now the residence of John Arnold Tattershall esq. The Manor of Etchelborne (Ekesborn, Yekesbourn, Exbourn) was held at the time of the Domesday survey by Roger de Molis; it remained in that family until the reign of Edward III. and was acquired about the middle of the 17th century by the family of Lethbridge. It was sold by Sir Thomas Lethbridge bart. about the year 1821, and is now the property of Sir Roper Lethbridge K.C.I.E. a representative of another branch of the family. Sir Roper Lethbridge

K.C.I.E. Messrs. J. A. Tattershall, Simon and Thomas Westlake, W. Heathman, Mr. F. Madge, Miss Hole, Thomas Seldon esq. of Hatherleigh, and Thomas W. G. Hooper esq. of Thorrington, St. Margaret's road, Twickenham, are the chief landowners. The soil is clay and light loam, mixed with some fine sandstone; the sub-soil is clay. The chief crops are wheat, barley, oats, roots and some pasture land. The area is 2,126 acres of land and 9 of water; rateable value, £2,310; the population in 1901 was 382.

EXETER,

WITH THE SUBURBS OF HEAVITREE AND ST. THOMAS.

EXETER is the county town of Devon, a parliamentary and municipal borough, a port, the seat of a bishop, head of an archdeaconry, a city and shire of itself (having its own sheriff and under-sheriff), a county borough, under the provisions of the Local Government Act, 1888, and a polling place for the North Eastern division of the county, in Wotton hundred and petty sessional division, and rural deanery of Christianity, distant by rail from Barnstaple 30½ miles, Bath 80½, Bideford 48½, Birmingham 167½, Bridgwater 41½, Bristol 75½, Cheltenham 120, Dawlish 12½, Derby 209½, Gloucester 113, Hereford 143, Liverpool 252½, London 194½ by the Great Western railway, 171½ by the London and South Western railway, and 173 by road, Manchester 249½, Plymouth 53, Reading 158, Swindon 116½, Taunton 36½, Teignmouth 15½, Tiverton 14, Torquay 24½, Totnes 29, Wellington (Somerset) 23½, Windsor 178½, Worcester 142 and Yeovil 48 miles.

The city is on the main line both of the Great Western and London and South Western railways, the former having also a branch, called the "Exe Valley line," from Exeter through Tiverton to North Devon, and the latter a branch to Exmouth: the railway stations are St. David's, erected at a cost of nearly £50,000, and St. Thomas on the opposite bank of the river, both belonging to the Great Western Railway Company, and Queen Street station, belonging to the London and South Western Company. The city is also supplied with a system of tramways starting from the top of High street to Heavitree gate and Black Boy road.

The city is seated on the river Exe, which separates it from St. Thomas. The Exe bridge, which crosses the river, was originally built in the 13th century by Walter Gervase, mayor in 1231 and 1239, at a cost, it is said, of £10,000, and on it was a chapel, in which Gervase appears to have been buried; in 1539 it was repaired with materials obtained from the destroyed church of St. Nicholas, but in 1770 it was pulled down, after having been for some time disused, and a new bridge of three arches constructed more to the west, so as to lead directly to the principal street; this bridge, after much delay, was completed and opened in 1788.

The situation of the city is commanding and picturesque: it occupies a flat ridge, or eminence, on the north-eastern bank of the river Exe, declining on both sides towards the north-west and south-east, 8 miles from the English Channel, and from the hilly nature of the neighbourhood, has a high reputation for salubrity: although modern improvements have swept away the greater part of the old city, much still remains to interest the traveller or the antiquary: large portions of the old walls stand, and many houses and streets, now occupied by the poorest classes, bear evidence of having been once tenanted by wealthy persons. As a city, Exeter is remarkable as having, even from times prehistoric, maintained unbroken its position as a local capital. Long before the Roman invasion, under the Anglo-Celtic name, "Penholtkeyre," it was the most ancient of British cities, and was defended by walls; by the Welsh it was called, "Caerwisc" (Celt. Caer, a fortress, and isc or wysk, water), and by the Romans "Isca Damnoniorum," but early in the 5th century the Roman dominion ceased, and as "Caerwisc" it continued to exist as the head of Damnonia, and the chief city of the west. The date of its occupation by the West Saxons is unknown; it appears to have been still a British city in the 7th century, but towards the close of the 9th century, when its history begins to be recorded, it was a leading city of the West Saxon kingdom. In the time of Alfred it was known as "Exancester" (A.S. ceaster, a fortress, and Celt. isc (Exe), water), whence by an easy transition the name became Excestre and Exeter. The city has sustained several severe sieges, the earliest of which we have any account being that by Vespasian, as related by Geoffrey of Monmouth. In 876 the Danes, violating a solemn treaty, surprised and routed Alfred's horsemen, and took and retained possession of Exeter during the winter: in 926 Æthelstan, deeming the presence of Britons in the city a danger, removed them and encircled the city with a stone wall, beset with towers; in the reign of Æthelred II. (979-1016) the city was twice attacked by the Danes, in 1001 and 1003, but only for the sake of plunder: William the Conqueror, in 1069, after a siege of 18 days, captured the city, but spared the inhabitants: in 1136 the Castle of Rougemont, on the north wall of the city, was besieged by Stephen, and was only taken after a siege of three months, and an expenditure of 15,000 marks (£2,500). Henry III. who visited Exeter, granted his royal rights over it, in 1231, to his brother Richard (Plantagenet), Earl of Poitou and Cornwall: in 1285-6 Edward I. and Queen Eleanor kept their Christmas here, and this king again visited the city in 1297, but no monarch appears to have come hither in person till the 15th century, when in 1452 Henry VI. was the guest of Bishop Lacy: in 1318 Exeter supplied 30 men for the campaign against Scotland, and in 1358 furnished three ships and 240 men for the war with France. During the Wars of the Roses the city as well as the shire mostly took the side of the Lancastrians, but on the accession of Edward IV. that king, anxious to encourage trade in every part of his dominions, in 1453 granted to Exeter new franchises and powers, and in 1466 an Act of Parliament was passed for the paving of the streets: on 14th April, 1470, after the city had been evacuated by the "King Maker," Edward himself arrived and received money from the citizens, whom he presented with a sword; but subsequently Exeter, like other towns, acknowledged Henry VI. and was the rendezvous of the Lancastrian forces before the fight at Tewkesbury. Richard III. proclaimed king 18th October, 1483, came to Exeter in the following November, and was well received, and in the following year the city furnished him with 20 men for as many days: on the accession of Henry VII. a force of 200 soldiers was provided for the Breton expedition of 1488, and on the breaking out of Warbeck's rebellion in 1498 the city, attacked by the Pretender with a force of 6,000 men, defended itself with great resolution until relieved by the king in person, who remained here from October 7th to November 3rd, highly commended the citizens for their loyalty, and presented them with the sword he then wore, together with a cap of maintenance. During the 16th century Exeter was visited by several members of foreign royal families; in 1501 by Katherine, daughter of Ferdinand of Spain, and subsequently queen of Henry VIII. and in 1505 by her sister Jane, queen of Castile, wife of Philip of Austria and mother of the emperor Charles V. together with her husband, the archduke; but Henry himself, though he gave the city two charters, never visited it. In the reign of Edward VI. the projected changes in religious worship caused an insurrection, which broke out at Sampford Courtenay on Whit Sunday, June 9, 1549, and soon spread over both Devon and Cornwall, and Exeter, after being closely invested by the insurgents for 35 days, and reduced to the greatest extremities, was at length relieved on 6th August, 1549, by John, Lord Russell; and the king, in reward for its loyalty, granted to the city the manor of Exe island. On the outbreak of the Civil War, in 1641-2, each party claimed a majority of adherents in the city, but it speedily fell into the hands of the Parliament; and in 1643 was attacked by Prince Maurice, to whom it surrendered after a siege of sixteen days: on May 1st, 1644, the Queen Henrietta Maria came to Exeter, and here, at Bedford House, gave birth on 16th June to a daughter, christened at St. Peter's as Henrietta Anne, and afterwards married, 31st Mar. 1661, to Philip, Duke of Anjou, and subsequently of Orleans: the king arrived on July 26th, and after a successful campaign in Cornwall, passed through the city on September 17th on his way to Oxford. In 1645-6 Exeter was hemmed in and eventually closely besieged by Fairfax, and on April 13th Sir John Berkeley, the governor, capitulated, the garrison marching out with the honours of war. Immediately on the Restoration Charles II. was proclaimed here, May 11th, 1660, with the usual ceremonies, and in 1680 stayed one night at Exeter, after his visit to Plymouth. In 1685 James, Duke of Monmouth, came hither with 5,000 horse, and 900 young men in white uniforms; and on November 9th, 1688, William, Prince of Orange, who had landed unexpectedly at Torbay, made a formal entry into Exeter. George III. with Queen Charlotte and three of the princesses came here in August, 1788, and stayed three nights, being the guests of Dean Buller. Her Majesty the late Queen Victoria passed through Exeter in 1856, and met with a loyal reception.

Two mints were established here in the reign of Æthelstan, which appear to have remained in existence till the time of Edward I. the earliest known example being a silver penny of Alfred (A.D. 872) and the latest a penny of Edward I. (1272-1307): this mint was also worked by Charles I. in 1644-5 during the Civil War, and was also one of the six mints established in 1696 by William III.: the money coined here may be recognized by the letter "E" beneath the king's head: here also, during the 17th century, were issued 90 of the 360 known varieties of tokens struck in Devonshire.

The navigation of the Exe in early times suffered considerably from the interference of the Earls of Devon; in 1539 an Act of Parliament was obtained for the making of a new haven or water-course, and this was begun in 1544, the parish churches giving up some of their plate towards the cost; the work resumed in 1563 was completed in 1573: since 1835 the navigation has been much improved, and a canal constructed in 1827 enables vessels of 400 tons to approach from Topsham to Exeter quay, on which stands the custom house. An iron bridge, crossing a valley at the end of North street, was built in 1834. By an Order in Council, gazetted 2nd December, 1887, the limits of the port of Exeter were defined to commence at the west bank of the river Char, in the county of Dorset (being the westerly limit of the port of Weymouth); and to extend in a westerly and southerly direction along the coast of Dorset and Devon to Langstone Point, in the county of Devon, being the north-eastern limit of the port of Teignmouth, and as far up the river Exe as the bridge of the city of Exeter, and include the Exeter canal, from the seaward entrance thereof at the river Exe at Exeter, together with the basin at the north-west end of the said canal, and all bays, harbours, rivers, streams and creeks within the said limits, and extending seaward to a distance of 3 miles from low-water mark along the coast, within the aforesaid limits.

According to the annual statement of the Navigation and Shipping of the United Kingdom for the year 1900, the number of sailing and steam vessels that entered the port of Exeter, including their repeated voyages, in the general coasting trade was 796, of 60,168 tons, the number cleared being 813, of 63,914 tonnage. In the foreign, 35 entered of 5,437 tons, 13 cleared of 1,683 tonnage. In the trade with British possessions, 37 entered of 5,088 tons, and 31 cleared of 3,455 tonnage. The number of vessels registered as belonging to the port under Part I. of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1894, on December 31st 1900, was 25, of 1,532 tons. At the same date 80 fishing-boats, of 338 tonnage, employing 204 men and boys, was registered as belonging to the port under Part IV. of the same Act. Fishing boats and their implements are distinguished by the letter "E." The total value of the imports of foreign and colonial merchandise in 1900 was £109,856, and of the exports of the produce and manufactures of the United Kingdom £13,064. The gross amount of customs revenue collected in 1900 was £104,322.

Exeter received its first charter from Henry II. This was succeeded by a writ of the same king and by one of Richard I. granting other privileges, and the series of succeeding charters extends to the time of George III. By the 2nd Charter of Henry VIII. dated 1537, the city was made a county of itself, with all county rights and with its own sheriff, and in 1550 the boundaries of the county of the city were defined by Act of Parliament. The origin of its municipal constitution is unrecorded: it appears to have been first governed by reeves, as the representatives of the Saxon queens, but in the reign of Henry III. these were superseded by mayors, the reeves becoming provosts or bailiffs in a subordinate position, and the new civic body was styled "the Mayor, Bailiffs and Commonalty," the latter including the whole body of freemen and having already a Guildhall; the other officers included a recorder, who is first mentioned in 1354, and a town clerk, not named, however, till 1511; there was also a chamberlain, whose office was originated by Act of Parliament in 1555: aldermen appear to have existed here before the end of the 13th century, and are referred to in the charters of the Tudor and Stuart kings; they were eight in number, and were chosen for life from the four wards of the city. By the Municipal Corporations Act of 1835 the ancient peculiarities and privileges of the city were largely abolished; it was divided for municipal purposes into six wards, but under the provisions of the "Exeter Corporation Act, 1900," the greater part of St. Thomas' was added to the borough, which is now divided into fourteen wards, and is governed by a mayor, 14 aldermen and 42 councillors. The sheriff is chosen by the Council, but the recorder, who presides over the ancient Provost Court, is appointed by the Crown. The freemen, though with reduced privileges, still exist. The Corporation act as the Urban Sanitary Authority. The city has a commission of the peace and separate court of quarter sessions and a police force. The sessions are held quarterly at the Guildhall and petty sessions daily at the new police station, Waterbeer street.

The assizes and courts of quarter sessions for the county are held within the Castle. Exeter is the place of election and a polling place for the North Eastern division of Devon, and the head of an excise collection and county court and bankruptcy court district.

The city first sent representatives to Parliament in 1264, and from 1295 until 1885 continually returned two members, who were originally chosen by the whole body of freemen, but on the city becoming a county in 1537 the franchise was extended to all those who held freeholds within it, whether freemen or not. By the Reform Acts of 1832 and 1867 the franchise was still further extended, but under the provisions of the "Redistribution of Seats Act, 1885," the number of representatives was reduced to one.

Exeter has given the title of Duke to the families of Holland (1397 and 1443) and Beaufort (1416) and of Marquess to the Courtenay family (1525); at a later date

The streets are lighted with gas and electric light, and the city is amply supplied with water from the three reservoirs at the Exeter Corporation Waterworks.

The west of England originally had two bishoprics, those of Devonshire and Cornwall, the head or bishopstool of the former being at Crediton, and of the latter at Bodmin. About 1032, on the death of Brithwald, 13th bishop of Cornwall, Lyfing, Bishop of Devonshire, procured the annexation of the Cornish see to his own, holding at the same time the distant see of Worcester: on his death in 1046 Worcester was separated, but the united western bishoprics were given to Leofric, the king's chancellor, who thereupon, with the consent of Leo IX. translated the bishopric from Crediton to Exeter, and in 1050 Leofric was installed as first bishop of Exeter by the king in person, the bishopstool being removed to the existing church of the Benedictine monastery, founded by Æthelstan, the monks of which were afterwards transferred by the Confessor to Westminster, and the conventual church then became the cathedral of the diocese. Up to the 15th century the bishops were usually natives of the city or of the diocese, then one of the largest in England, or were already connected with the Chapter, but the later prelates were chiefly men of distinction either by birth or office, and in some cases, as in that of Bishop Grandison (1327-69), were directly nominated by Papal provision, and in the reign of Edward VI. the local character of the appointments was mostly lost: in the reign of Elizabeth the system of residentiary canons was established on a fixed basis; and in modern times the Chapter has been successfully made use of by Bishop Philpotts (1831-69) and others for diocesan purposes. In 1875 an effort was made to restore the western episcopate to its ancient order by reviving the long-extinct bishopric of Cornwall, eventually (1876) reconstituted by Act of Parliament (39 & 40 Vic. c. 54), and the bishopstool placed at Truro; and the diocese of Exeter now consists only of the county of Devon.

Under the provisions of the Ecclesiastical Duties and Revenues Act, 1840, the Cathedral Chapter was remodelled, with four residentiary canons only in place of nine, as formerly, the power of calling into residence being left with the bishop. The College of Vicars now consists of four priest vicars and eight laymen.

The Cathedral, the chief ornament of the city, is a magnificent and venerable pile, remarkable alike for the boldness and massiveness of its design and the rich decorated tracery of its windows. The exact date of the original erection is unknown: but John Vowel, alias Hoker, chamberlain in 1555, and in 1584 historian of his native city, says that "in ancient times there were within the precincts of the Close three religious houses: the first was a nunnery, now the Dean's house; the second a monastery, said to have been built by King Æthelred A.D. 868; the third was also a monastery, founded by King Æthelstan A.D. 932 for monks of the Benedictine order, and dedicated to the Blessed Virgin and St. Peter; it was endowed by the munificence of Æthelstan with 26 villages, and filled with Benedictine monks, who, however, not long after, forsook the same for fear of the Danes. But King Edgar, that great restorer of monasteries, A.D. 968, replaced the monks, who remained here until they were again forced to fly on the devastation of this city by the Danes, under Sweyn A.D. 1003. Cnut, his successor, encouraged the monks once more to settle here, confirmed their lands and privileges A.D. 1019, and rebuilt the church, destroyed by his father. Leofric, appointed by the Confessor first bishop of Exeter, built the original cathedral on the site now occupied by the Lady chapel. William Warelwast, the blind bishop (1107-36) and a nephew of the Conqueror, began to build a cathedral in 1112, of which only the transept towers now remain, and it was completed by Bishop Marshall in 1206: during the siege of Exeter by Stephen in 1136, considerable damage occurred to the fabric, for which the king subsequently granted compensation; in the latter half of the 13th century Walter Brnescombe, bishop in 1247, began a system of reconstruction in the eastern chapels, which was continued by Bishop Quivil (1280-91), who also transformed the retro-altar, the transept with its chapels, and the easternmost bay of the nave, his boldest effort being the construction of a transept out of the massive towers reared by Warelwast; the first four eastern arches of the choir were completed in 1310, on the removal of the earlier Norman work by Bishops Buton (1292-1307) and Stapledon (1308-26) and the latter erected also the rood loft, throne and sedilia; Bishop Grandison (1327-69), adhering closely to the original plan of Quivil, transformed the six western bays of the nave, with the vaulting and west window; the eastern windows and west front were completed by Bishop Brantingham (1370-94), the upper portions of the tower were added by Bishop Courtenay (1478-85) and Bishop Oldham (1504-11) added the choir and other screens. During the Commonwealth the cathedral was parted by a traverse, erected under an Act passed August 11, 1657, and dividing the church into two portions, of which the choir, termed "East Peter's," was used by the Presbyterians, and the nave, called "West Peter's," by the Independents; this wall Bishop Seth Ward (1661-7) pulled down, and spent £25,000 on restorations.

The Cathedral of St. Peter is a cruciform structure, built for the most part of stone from Beer, near Seaton, the vaulting being of Silvertown stone, with Caen stone for the pavement of the choir. It consists of an eastern lady chapel of three bays, with the lateral chapels of St. Mary Magdalene and St. Gabriel, choir of seven bays, with retro-choir and aisles, and seven attached chapels or chantries; transepts, with the chapel of the Holy Ghost and the chapter house beyond it, adjoining the south transept; nave of seven bays, with aisles and two western chapels; north porch, and two central embattled towers of five stages, rising above the transepts, with square embattled pinnacles, and spirelets; in the north, or St. Paul's tower, hangs the large bell known as "Great Peter," presented by Bishop Peter Courtenay in 1480 and recast in 1676 by Thos. Purdew, and weighing 6 tons 5 cwt.; the south, or St. Peter's tower, contains a peal of 11 bells, said to be the heaviest in England, and dated as follows:—1616 (2), 1630 (5), 1658 (3), 1676 (4, 8 and 10), 1693 (7), 1729 (1, 6, 9 and 11); the tenor weighs 67 cwt. 1 qr. 18 lbs.

The lady chapel, used for daily early morning service, has a reredos of the 14th century, recently restored, three sedilia and a magnificent east window, erected as a memorial to the sister of Chancellor Harington; here also are the tombs of Bishop Quivil (with foliated cross and marginal inscription), 1201; Bishop Bartholomew (mired effigy of Purbeck marble with pastoral staff, under a pointed arch), 1184; Bishop Simon de Apulia (with similar effigy under a cusped arch), 1223; Bishop Brnescombe (with effigy, vested on a tomb, under a canopy, the whole being much enriched with gold and colour), ob. 22nd July, 1280; Bishop Stafford (fine altar tomb, with alabaster effigy, under a rich Perpendicular canopy), ob. 3rd September, 1419; the chapel of St. Mary Magdalene, opening from the north-west bay, is Early English Transitional and Decorated, and retains a piscina and a fine Perpendicular western screen; the stained east window displays a kneeling figure of Bishop Stafford and the arms of several bishops; this chapel also contains an Elizabethan monument, erected in 1589, to Sir Gawain Carew and his wife, and to Sir Peter Carew, his nephew, and restored in 1857; one to Sir John Doderidge, kt. justice of the King's Bench, ob. 13th September, 1628; and a brass with kneeling effigy in amice, surplice and cope and inscription, to William Langton, canon, ob. 20th January, 1413; one shield out of four remains; in the north choir aisle is a high tomb with inscription to Anthony Harvey esq. ob. 23rd May, 1564; the corresponding chapel of St. Gabriel has an Early English piscina and credence table, and there is a flat stone here, inscribed to Martin L'Ercedekne, canon, ob. 4th April, 1433; the east window, placed in 1877, is a memorial to the late Archdeacon Freeman; there are brasses here to Dean Lowe, 1861, and Archdeacon Freeman, 1875.

The choir has a magnificent Perpendicular window of nine lights, erected in 1391, at the cost of Canon Henry de Blakeborn, and glazed by Robert Lyen with figures of patriarchs and saints, and shields of arms; it occupies the whole space above the twin arches opening into the retro-choir, between which is placed the reredos, a very fine modern work of alabaster, marbles and gems, presented, at a cost of more than £2,000, by Chancellor Harington and Dr. Blackall, and exhibiting in the lofty central compartment an exquisitely sculptured group of "the Ascension," and on either side others, "the Transfiguration" and "the Pentecost"; there are three sedilia, very light and rich, 27 feet in height, erected by Bishop Stapledon, and a panelled hexagonal pulpit of Devonshire marbles; the throne, a superb work in oak, 57 feet high, was built by the same prelate in 1313, without a single nail; the stalls, 49 in number, are new and made of oak, with canopies and pinnacles, elaborately carved; the ancient misericords forming the stall seats date from the 13th century; they are 51 in number, and carved on the under side with quaint and grotesque subjects; on the south side of the choir is a plain tomb with the matrix of a brass effigy of a bishop, which has been assigned to Bishop Chichester, ob. 4th February, 1150; on the north side, under a low arch bearing a shield of arms, is the tomb of Bishop Lacy, ob. 23rd May, 1455; here also is a tomb of Purbeck marble, with effigy, vested, in high relief, to Bishop Marshall, ob. 1206; in the ambulatory behind the high altar is a floor stone inscribed to John Fulford, canon and archdeacon, ob. 12th June, 1518; there are also numerous other memorials to ecclesiastics, dating from 1244 to 1540.

St. George's chapel, at the east end of the north choir aisle, was founded by Sir John Speke kt. 1517; it contains an effigy of the founder in plate armour, and has been well restored; in the centre of the aisle is St. Andrew's chapel, which retains two altars and two piscinæ with credences, as well as three stone sedilia, and has an upper storey; at the west end, and adjoining the transept, is St. Paul's chapel; corresponding to St. George's chapel, on the south side, is that of the Saviour, founded by Bishop Oldham (ob. 25th June, 1519), and containing a tomb with inscription, bearing his effigy fully vested, and adorned with colour and gilding; in the centre is St. James' chapel, which, like that of St. Andrew opposite, has two altars and piscinæ: over this chapel is the muniment room of the Chapter, and below it a crypt of two bays, with groined roof; adjacent, westward, is the canons' vestry, and at the extreme west end of the aisle the chapel of John the Baptist; the choir and its aisles contain a large number of monuments, including those of twelve bishops of Exeter, from 1155 to 1762, and others to Sir Richard de Stapledon, brother of the bishop (with effigy), 1331; Humphrey de Bohun, earl of Hertford, slain at Boroughbridge, 16th March, 1321, with effigy in full armour; and Sir Arthur Chichester, with effigy, 12th century; there is here also a fine brass to Sir Peter Courtenay K.G. standard bearer and chamberlain to Edward III. and governor of Calais and Windsor Castle, with effigy in armour under a canopy, surrounded by a marginal inscription, shields of arms, and badges, 1409; and a marble monument, by Flaxman, to Lieut.-Col. Simcoe, 1806, with other memorials. The retro-choir, or ambulatory, is Early Decorated, and contains monuments, in the Jacobean style, to Robert Vilwayne M.D.; John Bidgood, 1690; and Jacob Bailard, 1692. The choir screen, dividing the nave and choir, consists of three wide arches, the centre arch forming the entrance to the choir; the spandrels are filled with delicately sculptured foliage, and the arcading above displays, in thirteen compartments, paintings of various subjects taken from the Old and New Testaments, in the style of the 14th century; the organ, which stands on this screen, was built by John Loosemore in 1663-4 at a cost of £2,000, defrayed by Bishop Ward, and rebuilt by Henry Cephas Lincoln in 1819, and afterwards improved by Byfield and Gray; in 1859 it was extensively renovated by Willis, and during 1870-7 entirely rebuilt; since that date a new organ, also by Willis and Son, has been erected at a cost of £3,500, and was opened in Oct. 1892; the old organ case is retained and the action is now pneumatic throughout.

The transepts are specially interesting as being constructed from the chapels which formerly occupied the lower stage of the tower; the north transept retains one of the Norman windows, and two narrow, round-headed doorways, and in the north-east angle is the chantry of William Sylke LL.D. precentor of this cathedral and prebendary of Crediton (ob. 1485), with an emaciated effigy in shroud; above the chantry is placed a curious astronomical clock of the 14th century and still in use; there are monuments in this transept to Admiral Sir Edw. Thornbrough, 1834; Capt. James Dollon, 1700, and to the officers and men of the 20th (Devonshire) regiment who fell in the Crimean war, 1854-5, and there is also a fine statue, by Chantrey, to James Northcote R.A. 1831; in the south transept, against the west wall, is the reputed tomb of Bishop Leofric, 1072; there is also under the south tower a tomb with effigies to Sir Hugh Courtenay, second earl of Devon, ob. 1377, and Margaret (Bohun) his wife, ob. 1391; a tomb with effigies to Sir John Gilbert and wife, temp. James I. and mural tablets to John, son of Flora Macdonald, 1831; Sir Peter Carew, ob. 27th November, 1575; to officers and men of the 32nd (Cornwall) regiment killed in the Indian mutiny, 1857-8, and to Joseph Palmer, 1829; in the south-east angle is the tomb of Bishop John, 1191.

The nave preserves a general uniformity of design with the choir, and the piers, consisting, as in the choir, of sixteen clustered shafts arranged diagonally, differ from these only in being stilted; the triforium in both consists of a continuous arcade, with sculptured cornice, and these triforia are connected by projecting galleries on the east and west walls of the transepts; the clerestory throughout is large and lofty, and the splendid stone vaulting is confessedly the finest in the kingdom; the windows of the nave aisles are almost unique in the infinite variety of geometrical forms introduced into their tracery, and no two adjoining windows are alike, but each finds its counterpart in the aisle opposite: projecting from the central bay of the north clerestory of the nave is the minstrels' gallery, a structure dating from the time of Edward III. with a richly sculptured front of twelve quatrefoiled niches, containing figures of angels playing on various musical instruments; at the back of this gallery and over the north porch is the muniment room of the archdeaconry of Exeter; at the west end of the north aisle is the chapel of St. Edmund the Martyr, now used as the Consistory court, and in the thickness of the western screen, between the central and south doorways, is the small chapel of St. Radegund, once containing the remains and tomb of Bishop Grandison, 1369; it retains on the south side a mutilated reredos; the north porch has in its eastern wall a recess inclosing decapitated figures of Our Lord, with the Virgin Mary and St. John; the central boss of the roof exhibits a finely carved "Agnus Dei"; the nave pulpit, a fine modern work of Mansfield stone, erected in 1877, is a memorial to Bishop Patteson, of Melanesia, who was killed by the natives at Nukapu, in the South Pacific, September 20th, 1871; in the north aisle is a memorial to officers and men of the 9th (Queen's Royal) Lancers, who fell in India; the monument, designed by Baron Marochetti, includes two figures of mounted Lancers in bronze, nearly life size, and was erected by the regiment in 1860; above it is a stained window bearing the names of the several battles; in this aisle is also a mural tablet with canopied brass, and effigy to Joseph Horden D.D. sometime bishop of Moosonee, in British North America, who was born at Exeter 28th Jan. 1828 and died at Moose Fort, 12th Jan. 1893; in the south aisle is a fine stained heraldic window to the Courtenay family; the great west window of nine lights and of Early Decorated work, with circular tracery in the head, is 32 by 27 feet; it was re-glazed in 1766 by Peckitt, of York, at a cost of nearly £1,050, and displays figures of the Apostles, shields of arms and various national emblems: in 1889 a stained window was erected on the north side in memory of William Reginald, 12th Earl of Devon, who died 18th November, 1888; there is also here a memorial window to Mr. Thomas Latimer, a well-known journalist, erected by Sir Edwin Watkin bart. M.P.; the font, placed near the north-west door, is composed of Silician marble, and was erected for the baptism (July 21, 1644) of Princess Henrietta Anne, fourth daughter of Charles I. who, with his queen, was then staying at Exeter.

The west front, built by Bishop Grandison in 1360 and completed by Bishop Brantingham (1370-94), whose grave-stone is in the nave, was restored by Kendall in 1817, and consists of three stages, the first of which forms an embattled screen in three compartments, each pierced by a doorway; the whole screen is occupied by two tiers of niches containing statues of angels, prophets, apostles, kings, ecclesiastics and warriors; above this the second stage forms another embattled screen, with arcaded wings, sloping down on each side to the parapet of the aisles, and containing in the centre the great west window; the upper stage is formed by the gable, which has a triliteral window with geometrical tracery.

The whole interior of the cathedral was thoroughly restored in 1870-77, at a cost of £16,583, under the skilful superintendence of the late Sir George Gilbert Scott R.A. during which it was discovered that the external walls and the main arcade were for the most part Norman work, though, from the complete transformation, little, if any of it, is visible externally: there are other interesting evidences which testify that not only the walls of the nave, but also the walls of the choir, ambulatory, Lady and other chapels of the cathedral were once decorated with frescoes of great brilliancy and splendour. The walls of the Lady Chapel and the side chapels of St. Gabriel and St. Magdalene were cleared of their coats of plaster, and the vaulting re-coloured in exact accordance with the original of the 14th century; the beautiful carving of the bosses, in a great variety of foliage, has been carefully restored, and the colouring imitated: many of the incongruous tombs and monuments were also removed from the side chapels to more suitable positions, opening to view the beautifully carved early piscinæ; and the tomb of Sir Peter Carew was restored; the only memorial stone found in the pavement was that of Bishop Quivil, which was not disturbed: the wooden doors, placed near the reredos when the Lady Chapel was converted into a library in 1657, were removed, and the wooden tracery in the west screen replaced by stonework: in the choir the mutilations caused by the Puritans in effecting a division in the cathedral were made good, the sedilia restored and the bishop's throne carefully renovated. At the time of this restoration special gifts were presented to the value of about £12,000, and the total expenditure from 1873 to 1892, including the normal annual cost of repairs to the fabric, amounted to £39,224.

quadrangular space, formerly surrounded by cloisters built in the last half of the 14th century and demolished during the civil war, together with the walls of the close, erected in 1321; the eastern side is now in part bounded by the south tower and the chapter house; on the wall of the former, about 9 feet from the ground, is the following somewhat mutilated inscription, cut in the stone:—

"+ PRIMVS. ADAM. SIC. PRESSIT. ADAM. SALVET.
VS. ILLVM. IS. VI. VENIT. ADAM. QVAERERE.
FACTVS. ADAM."

The complete form, as suggested by the late Archdeacon Woolcombe, reads:—

FACTVS. ADAM."

which has been translated:—

"The first Adam, may God save him,
Adam so whelmed with shame,
That he who came to seek and save Adam, Adam became."

The subject has been discussed at some length in "Notes and Queries" (4th series, v. 89, 188, 287).

The Chapter House, situated to the south of the south transept, is the only one of rectangular form built by secular canons, and was erected between 1224 and 1244, in the episcopate of Bishop Bruere; the lower part is surrounded with an Early English arcading of complets; the upper, added in 1427, is Perpendicular; the roof, richly panelled, painted and gilt, bears the arms of Bishop Bothe (1465-78): the side windows of four, and the east window of seven lights, are Perpendicular; the Chapter Library, moved here in 1822, contains many ancient and valuable MSS. including the original foundation charter of Edward the Confessor. The libraries of the late Chancellor Harington and Canon Cook, bequeathed to the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, for the use of the clergy in the diocese, have been placed in the Chapter House; the collection is especially rich in ecclesiastical and political history, and in polemical writings on disputed points of Church doctrine and discipline, vast numbers of tracts, sermons and essays on such questions, dating from the Reformation to the commencement of the present century, being included. The number of volumes is about 5,000, bringing the total number of books in the Cathedral library up to some 14,000: between the chapter house and the south tower is the Holy Ghost chapel, a narrow chamber of Early date, with arched roof, but now disused.

The Bishop's Palace, which existed in 1381, and probably earlier, is to the south-east of the choir, with which it is connected by a corridor, and has some Early English portions, the most ancient of which is the 13th century chapel; in the hall is a chimney-piece, erected by Courtenay about 1486: a fine bay window of two stages, looking into the garden, was moved here from Eyclot's house, near St. Petrock's church. The Deanery is on the south-west of the Cathedral, and there are several prebendal houses, in one of which is a mantelpiece dating from about 1490; the College of Vicars was founded in 1388; when buildings were erected by Bishop Brantingham, and in 1401, the college was incorporated by Royal Charter; the still existing hall, bought by the city in 1647, contains some carved wood work, and portraits of early bishops, but is now used by the Architectural Society: in the rear are remains of the houses once occupied by the vicars.

The cathedral yard was the burial place of the city for 900 years, but ceased to be used for that purpose in 1636, when the cemetery in Bartholomew yard was consecrated by Bishop Hall, and there are now no traces remaining of its ever having been a cemetery. Bartholomew cemetery is now closed. Southernhay Burial Ground was consecrated in 1664 by Seth Ward, Bishop of Exeter, but has long been closed for interments.

In the year 1222 the number of parish churches in Exeter was fixed at 19, two of which, St. Sidwell's and St. David's, stood without the walls, and were related to Heavitree, the nearest rural parish, as their mother church. In the reign of Edward VI. the Exeter churches were subject to the general raid made on plate and ornaments; though on account of spoliations previously made on the city, they suffered less than some others. In 1656 the 19 parish churches of the 13th century were reduced by Act of Parliament to four, viz.: St. Mary Arches, St. Edmund's, St. Petrock's, and St. Mary the More, and the rest sold, some of these being purchased by the parishioners.

Allhallows church, Goldsmith street, is a small building of stone, in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel and nave and a western turret containing one bell, the former bells having been sold to St. Sidwell's in 1767, after which the tower was lowered and divine service discontinued, and the church until 1822 was used only for vestry meetings: it had previously been rescued from absolute demolition by Robert Vilwayne M.D., a parishioner, who for this purpose paid, in 1658, a sum of £50. In 1833 the church was restored and reseated with oak benches: the exterior of the chancel was restored in 1834, and in 1837 the west wall was rebuilt; the total cost from 1833 to 1837 amounted to £629; there are 200 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1566; marriages, 1561; burials, 1561; there are also registers of banns from 1809, but the marriages at this time were solemnized in the church of St. Stephen. The living is a rectory, with St. Paul's annexed, joint yearly value £65, with 10 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter, and held since 1882 by the Rev. William Hope, who is also rector of St. Pancras.

The church of Allhallows-on-the-Walls, Bartholomew street, one of the 19 parish churches included in the settlement of 1222 and rebuilt, with the exception of the tower, in 1843-5, under the direction of Mr. J. Hayward, architect, is an edifice of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, south porch and an embattled western tower with pinnacles containing one bell; the 3 bells formerly in the tower were sold about 1657 for £30, and the fabric demolished in May, 1770: the east and west windows are stained; there are 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1694; but marriages were not solemnized in this church from 1699 to 1805. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £110, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter, and held since 1861 by the Rev. John Gilbert Pearse M.A. of Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge.

Holy Trinity church, in South street, erected in 1820, is a building of stone in the Gothic style, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, west porch and a western turret, containing a clock and one bell, cast by Mears in 1820: the stained east window is a memorial to Richard Durant and his wife; and there is another stained window in the north aisle. The church was reseated and repaired in 1884 at a cost of £900, and a new pulpit and prayer desk of carved oak have been added by the present rector; the total cost of restoration up to 1890 amounted to £1,052, and further improvements have since been made at a cost of £170: there are 800 sittings. The register dates from the year 1605; and in the vestry is preserved the original confirmation of the church, dated 1442. The living is a rectory, with Wynard's chapel annexed, net yearly value £162, with residence and glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and held since 1901 by the Rev. Frank Simmons Th. Assoc. K.C.L. The chaplaincy of Wynard's chapel has been held since 1837 by the Rev. W. Everitt M.A. rector of St. Lawrence's.

St. David's church, on St. David's hill, erected in 1816 and enlarged in 1830, has since been entirely rebuilt during the period 1897-1900, from designs by Mr. W. D. Caroe M.A., F.S.A. architect. The register dates from the year 1550. The living is a vicarage, including the chapel of St. Michael and All Angels, net yearly value £253, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter, and held since 1893 by the Rev. Cyril John Valpy French M.A. of Corpus Christi college, Cambridge.

St. Edmund's church, in Edmund street, founded in 1253 and rebuilt in 1834, is an edifice of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of nave with galleries, south porch and an embattled tower on the south-west containing 8 bells, of which the treble, fifth and tenor are dated 1833 and the rest 1731: there are some good stained windows and a richly-decorated reredos: choir stalls were erected in 1888, and in 1895 a screen of oak and glass was set up at the west end: there are 400 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1571; marriages, 1572. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £97, including 13 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Rev. A. O. G. Alleyne M.A. of Florence, Italy, and held since 1891 by the Rev. Henry Paul Vivian Pantou B.A. of University College, Durham.

The church of St. Michael and All Angels, near the entrance to the Exeter Free Cottages, a chapel of ease to St. David's, is a building of Westleigh limestone, with dressings of Ham Hill stone, in the Early Decorated style, erected in 1868 under the direction of Mr. Rhode Hawkins, of London, architect, at a cost of £20,000, defrayed by the late William Gibbs esq. of Tyntesfield, on a site given by the late John Dinham esq.; it consists of chancel, nave with clerestory, transepts, aisles, organ chamber, vestries, north porch and a central tower with spire 220 feet in height, containing one bell: at the west end is a screen of Bath stone with columns of Derbyshire spar, supporting a gallery: the east window is stained, and beneath it is a reredos of Bath stone and marble: the chancel, decorated with much taste and skill at the cost of Mrs. Gibbs, contains, within a recess, an effigy of the late Mr. Gibbs: the modern oak pulpit, finely carved, in the Early English style, is from a design by Sir A. W. Blomfield A.R.A., M.A., F.S.A. architect, and was executed by Hems, of Exeter: there are 700 sittings.

St. John's, on Fore Street hill, is a plain building of red sandstone in the Decorated style, consisting of nave, with a tower containing 6 bells and a projecting clock with illuminated dial: in the gallery is a shield of arms dated 1671; and there is another in the body of the church: the church contains a handsome marble monument to Sir Benjamin Oliver, of Exeter, and his wife, dated 1672; and others to William Chilcote, 1711; Thomas Baron esq. sometime mayor of Exeter, 1718; and to Richard Vivian, of Exeter, 1740: there are 400 sittings. The register of St. John's, dates from the year 1682, and that of St. George's from 1681. The living, united to that of St. George the Martyr, is a rectory, net yearly value £205, in the alternate gift of the Lord Chancellor and the Dean and Chapter of Exeter.

St. Lawrence's church, in High street, is a building of stone, dating from a period earlier than the 13th century, and consists of chancel, nave, north transept, south porch and an embattled tower on the south-west, containing one bell, with an inscription in Old English type: 2 bells were sold in 1780 in order to provide funds for the repair of the church, which the parishioners purchased in 1658 for £100: the south porch is constructed with the materials of a small conduit, erected near the church in 1590 and removed in 1674: above the porch, in a niche, is a statue of Queen Elizabeth: there are 350 sittings. The register dates from the year 1604. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £150, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1882 by the Rev. William Everitt M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin, and chaplain of St. Thomas union, the Livery Dole Almshouses and Wynard's Hospital Chapel.

St. Leonard's, Topsham road, occupies the site of a very ancient church, existing in the reign of King John, rebuilt in the 15th century but defaced in 1732, and entirely rebuilt in a poor Classical style in 1833, with a curious roof of thick iron plates. The present church is a building of stone in the Decorated style, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles, west porch and a western tower with spire 145 feet high, erected by Mrs. Miles, in memory of her husband, Dr. Miles, at a cost of £2,457: most of the windows are stained, some being memorials: the west window was placed by R. Ley esq. in memory of his wife; and one in the south aisle by Mrs. Miles, as a memorial to Charlotte Chapter, d. May 2, 1888: the carved stone pulpit was also a gift: the church was enlarged in 1843, the chancel rebuilt in 1876 at a cost of £1,500, and the remainder in 1883-5 at a cost of about £8,000, from designs by R. M. Fulford esq. architect: there are 570 sittings. The register dates from the year 1708. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £175, with residence, in the gift of the Rev. James Frederick Sheldon M.A. rector of Cromer, Norfolk, and held since 1807 by the Rev. Westley Bothamley M.A. of Magdalen College, Oxford.

St. Martin's, a small building of stone, in the Cathedral yard, dedicated July 6, 1065, is in the Perpendicular style, and consists of chancel, nave, transept, west porch and an open tower containing one bell, dated, 1675: the church retains a graceful Perpendicular window, inserted by Bishop Lacy (ob. 1455), and a Decorated font: there are 150 sittings. The register dates from the year 1572. The living is a rectory, with St. Stephen's annexed, joint net yearly value £214, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter and the Dean and Chapter alternately, and held since 1900 by the Rev. John Erskine Binney M.A. of Braenose College, Oxford.

St. Mary Arches, Mary Arches street, the only parish church here which has regular aisles, is a building of stone in the Norman and Later styles, and consists of nave, aisles and a western tower containing a clock and 5 bells, two of which are plain, each with four shields, and a third was cast by Mears, in 1827: the nave is Norman: the side windows are Perpendicular: in the north aisle is a chantry of the Holy Trinity and in the south aisle one of SS. Andrew and Thomas: the church contains a number of monuments, principally to mayors of Exeter, including, in the south aisle, an altar tomb, with effigy and inscription, to Thomas Andrew, mayor 1505 and 1510, ob. March 9, 1518, who founded the latter of the two chantries mentioned above; over the tomb is an arch, the spandrels of which bear his arms:

in 1881 a stained window was inserted at the east end, and a second in 1892: there are 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1538: marriages from the parish of St. Olave were solemnized here from 1738 to 1815: The living is a rectory, net yearly value £135, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1900 by the Rev. George Martin Wilson M.A. of Caius College, Cambridge.

St. Mary Major's, Cathedral yard, an ancient foundation existing in the 12th century, was rebuilt in 1865-68, on a site a little to the west of the ancient Norman church, at a cost exceeding £7,000, and is an edifice of stone chiefly built from the materials of the old church, with quoins and dressings of Bath and Chudleigh stone, in the Early English style, from designs by Mr. E. Ashworth, architect, and consists of chancel, nave, south aisle and a western tower of three stages, with breach spire 157 feet in height, containing one bell, cast by T. Bilbie, in 1794: the church was consecrated in Dec. 1867: some features of the old edifice have been preserved in the new: the columns of the aisle arcade are of Chudleigh black marble and red Ogwell marble: there are 500 sittings. The register dates from the year 1561. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £219, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and held since 1896 by the Rev. Reginald Arthur Mortimer, Chaplain to the Forces.

The church of St. Mary Magdalene, Rack street, built in 1861 as a chapel of ease to St. Mary Major's, is an edifice of stone in the Transition style, consisting of chancel, nave, north aisle, south porch and a western turret containing one bell: there are sittings for 400 persons. The ancient chapel of this name, in Trinity parish, was attached to a lazaret house.

St. Mary steps, at the foot of Stepcote hill, adjoining the site of the West Gate, is a small but ancient edifice of stone, built on the side of a steep hill, so that the floor of the church, which is on the level of the ground on the north side, is far above the street on the south, and is reached by a long flight of steps through the tower: eastward of the tower there is a small room under the chancel aisle, originally occupied by the porter of the west gate. The church consists of a small chancel, nave, south aisle and an embattled western tower in the Perpendicular style, containing a clock and 4 bells; all cast by John Pennington, of Exeter, in 1656: the south-west window is Transitional Early English, and the font Norman: the clock dial exhibits three figures, one of which, representing Henry VIII. placed in a sitting position, bends forward at each stroke of the clock; the other two are soldiers with javelins in the right hand, and in the left hammers, with which they strike the quarters on two small bells at their feet. A portion of the rood screen, a very beautiful work, was formerly in the old church of St. Mary Major, but that building having been taken down, the rector and churchwardens presented the remains of the screen, which have been carefully restored, to this church: the panels are filled with paintings of various saints, and the screen also includes figures of St. James the Great, St. Simon Zelotes, St. Thomas and St. Nicholas. The font is a very fine example of ancient Norman work. The tower was repaired in 1881: other portions of the church have also been restored, and in 1892-3 a new organ-chamber was erected and a Sunday school-room built, at a total cost, including site, of £1,000: there are 200 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1654; marriages and burials, 1655. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £139, in the gift of Mrs. Strother, of Kirknewton, Newton Abbot, and held since 1891 by the Rev. Henry Plantagenet Burdett B.A. of Trinity College, Dublin.

St. Olave's, Fore street, an ancient foundation, specially mentioned in the Domesday survey, is said to have been built by Githa, mother of King Harold, in order that 70 masses should there be said for the souls of her husband, Earl Godwin, and of her sons. After the battle of Hastings it was seized, together with the extensive possessions of the house of Godwin, in Devon and Exeter, by William the Norman, and by him given to Battle Abbey, in Sussex; subsequently it passed to St. Nicholas Priory, an offshoot of Battle Abbey, founded in the parish in the reign of William II. and at the Dissolution it was disused, except for burials: the present edifice is a building of red sandstone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, two north aisles and an embattled tower south-west of the chancel containing 2 bells, of which the first bears an inscription in Old English characters; the second was cast by Thomas Pennington in 1626. The church was for years used by the French refugees who had fled to England after the revocation of the edict of Nantes in 1685: divine service was celebrated here in the French language until the year 1758, when the church was closed, but re-opened and thoroughly repaired in 1815. In 1874 it was restored, when the old staircase to the rood loft and the tower arch were thrown open, a marble altar and beautiful carved oak stalls erected, and the chancel floor relaid with tiles; from designs by the late Mr. J. B. Gould, architect, of Barnstaple, at a cost of upwards of £1,000; on the south side of the chancel there is a very curious but mutilated carving of the scourging of Our Lord, who is represented as seated: beneath the floor lie the remains of five French pastors and of many eminent citizens of Exeter: there are 250 sittings. The register dates from the year 1601, but since 1753 marriages have been solemnized at St. Mary Arches. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £126, including 57 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Lord Chancellor, and held since 1897 by the Rev. John Sparshatt M.A. of Lincoln College, Oxford.

St. Pancras, in St. Pancras lane, originally an Early English building, is a small edifice of stone, 46 feet long and 16 feet wide, consisting of chancel and nave, with one bell, bearing a legend in Old English characters; it retains an ancient Norman font and an Early English piscina, and there are also some interesting relics of ancient carving: the church was re-opened in 1830 and restored in 1888, at a cost of £670, and affords 100 sittings. The register of baptisms dates from the year 1664; marriages, 1670; burials, 1672. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £53, including 13 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter, and held since 1882 by the Rev. William Hope, who is also rector of All Hallows and St. Paul.

St. Paul's, in Paul street, rebuilt in the latter part of the 17th century, is a plain rectangular building of stone in the Italian style, consisting of nave and an embattled western tower, with pinnacles, containing one bell, cast by John Wroth, of Exeter. During the Commonwealth this church was granted, by deed now in the parish church, to the elders of the city for a grammar school: the east window is stained, and there is a font of black marble: the church was improved internally in 1879, at a cost of £664, and will seat 250 persons. The register dates from the year 1562. The living is a rectory, annexed to Allhallows, Goldsmith street, joint yearly value £105, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and held since 1894 by the Rev. William Hope, who is also rector of St. Pancras.

St. Petrock's, in High street, is a small building of stone, founded in the 11th century, and consists of chancel, nave, aisles, and an embattled western tower containing a clock and 6 bells, of which the first is dated 1742; the second, 1693; the third is inscribed, "Iohannes est nomen Ejus," with the arms of Henry V. or VI.; the fourth is dated 1677; and the tenor is plain; the bells are fitted with a chiming apparatus: one of the aisles was added in 1413, the other in 1513: the church was enlarged in 1587, and again enlarged and restored in 1828, but the most important alteration was made in 1880-1, when the old chancel was converted into a baptistery, and a new chancel, organ chamber and vestry erected, at a cost of £1,750: there is a mural monument with coloured effigies to William Hooper, ob. 1683, and his wife, ob. 1658; another to members of the Worth family, dated 1675, 1680 and 1686, is in the Italian style with Corinthian columns and is surrounded by arms, helmet and crest; a memorial of similar character commemorates John Mayne, ob. 1679, and his wife, ob. 1680, and there are tablets of white marble with arms to Theodore Sheere, of Barnstaple, d. 1782, and his widow, d. 1817; and to the Rev. Robert Tarrant M.A. 42 years rector of St. Petrock's, d. 1798: frequent references are made in the parish accounts to successive rood screens here, but no screen now exists: the communion plate includes some pieces of rare patterns and a mazer bowl for alms, dated 1572, 1640 and 1692: there are 276 sittings. The registers of St. Petrock's date from the year 1538, and there is also a complete series of churchwardens' accounts from 1425; the registers of St. Kerrian's date from the year 1558. The living is a united rectory, with St. Kerrian's annexed, joint net yearly value £290, including glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter, and held since 1876 by the Rev. William David M.A. Cantuar, priest vicar of Exeter Cathedral, custos of the college of Vicars Choral, Dean's vicar, and surrogate.

St. Sidwell's, in Sidwell street, was rebuilt in 1812-13, with the exception of the tower, and the 15th cent. piers of the nave arcades, and repaired in 1823; it is a building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, south porch and a western tower of the 15th cent. containing a clock and a beautiful peal of 10 bells, 8 of which were cast by Mears and Stainbank, of Whitechapel, London, 1773, and two others by the same founders in 1897; the tower is now (1901) in course of restoration, Mr. J. H. Harbottle being the architect; on the chancel arch, placed upon corbels, are statuettes in Caen stone of St. Satiwola or Sidwell and St. Boniface, both executed and presented by Mr. Harry Hems, sculptor, of Exeter; the church contains 15 memorial windows and a handsome reredos with figures: the screen was taken down about 1820, and not replaced: the fabric was enlarged by the addition of a chancel in 1871, and the exterior faced with limestone in 1883: there are 700 sittings. The registers date from the year 1559. The living is a rectory, net yearly value £220, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter, and held since 1887 by the Rev. Samuel William Elderfield Bird M.A. of St. Mary Hall, Oxford, and rural dean of Christianity.

St. Catherine's, an iron church, in Summerland crescent, is a chapel of ease to St. Sidwell's.

St. Stephen's, High street, rebuilt in the year 1664, on the site of an older building taken down and sold for £230 in 1658 by the mayor and council, is a building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, and a western tower with an octagonal turret, containing 3 bells, dated respectively 1635, 1673 and 1625: near the chancel are the remains of a small Norman crypt, discovered in May, 1826, and the church also retains the exterior arch or bow, above which formerly stood the altar of St. John: there are 350 sittings. The register, with which is incorporated that of the Bedford precinct, dates from the year 1668. The living is a rectory, with St. Martin's annexed, joint net yearly value £214, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter and the Dean and Chapter alternately, and held since 1900 by the Rev. John Erskine Binney M.A. of Brazenose College, Oxford.

St. James's is an ecclesiastical parish, formed Sept. 4th, 1838, from that of St. Sidwell; the church, in St. James' road, consecrated in 1836, is a building of red sandstone in the Early Decorated style, consisting of chancel, clerestoried nave, aisles, west porch, and a small western turret with spire containing one bell: the pulpit, presented by the Dean and Chapter, formerly stood in the choir of Exeter Cathedral: the church has been rebuilt at different periods, in 1878, 1881, and finally completed in 1885, at a total cost of £7,400, from designs by R. Medley Fulford esq. architect: there are 700 sittings. The registers date from the year 1842. The living was constituted a rectory, Feb. 4th, 1868, by an order of the Queen in Council, and has St. Anne's chapel annexed, net yearly value £182, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter, and held since 1898 by the Rev. Philip Williams M.A. of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge. The rectory house is in Old Tiverton road.

St. Matthew's is an ecclesiastical parish formed April 24th, 1883, from the parishes of St. Sidwell and St. James; the church, in Clifton road, is a building of red brick with white stone dressings, in the Early English style, erected in 1882 from designs by R. Medley Fulford esq. at a cost of £7,000, and consists of chancel, with chapel, nave, transepts, aisles, vestries, and the lower stage of a western tower; the chancel, with side chapel and vestries, was built in 1890-1, at a cost of £2,400: there are 630 sittings. The register dates from the year 1883. The living is a vicarage, net yearly value £240, with residence, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and held since 1898 by the Rev. Charles Adams Houghton M.A. of Exeter College, Oxford, and Canon of Salisbury.

St. Leonard's mission hall and Sunday schools, in the Roberts road, Larkbeare, erected in 1889, at a cost of £2,000, as a memorial to G. W. Petter esq. by his family, are of brick with stone dressings, and have a bell-cot with one bell: the interior is very completely fitted, and is used for mothers' meetings as well as for school purposes and services.

Bedford (proprietary) chapel, in Bedford circus, and in the precinct of Bedford, is a plain edifice of brick, erected in 1832, at a cost of £4,000, of which £2,000 were raised in £50 shares and the remainder by contributions; it consists of nave, aisles and a western bell turret containing one bell: it has been reseated, and a stone pulpit of classical design erected at a cost of £450, and the fabric was restored in 1885-9 at a cost of £1,331: there are 700 sittings. The registers of Bedford precinct are incorporated with those of St. Stephen's parish. The living is a perpetual curacy, net income from pew rents &c. £250, in the gift of the Bishop of Exeter, and held since 1895 by the Rev. John Henry Prince M.A. of Oxford University.

The Church House, formerly occupied as a residence by the Archdeacon or one of the Canons, is now used by the Dean and Chapter for church purposes: it contains a set of rooms, occupied by the Prebendaries when they come to Exeter on the two Sundays in the year on which they are on the rota as preachers, another set of rooms used for meetings in connection with Church work, and other rooms for the use of Mission Clergy and others requiring accommodation during occasional visits to Exeter: in this building are also the offices of the following institutions:—(1) The Diocesan Council of Religious Education; secretary, The Ven. the Archdeacon of Exeter; Diocesan Inspectors: Clerical, Rev. Hubert Richard Evers M.A.; Lay: Mr. George S. S. Bicknell. Organising Visitor and Assistant Secretary to the Governing Body, Mr. George S. S. Bicknell. (2) The Diocesan Church Defence Association: M. A. G. Ferrers Howell. (3) The Diocesan Missionary Societies working in connection with both Home and Foreign Missions.

The Meeting House of the Society of Friends, in Pavilion place, Magdalen street, is a building of stone erected in 1876 and has 100 sittings: the earlier meeting house was built in 1690.

The Catholic church, in South street, dedicated to the Sacred Heart and erected in 1883-4, at a total cost of about £10,000, is a building of limestone, with Bath stone dressings, in the Early Gothic style, and consists of apsidal chancel, clerestoried nave of five bays, aisles, transepts, three side chapels, priests' and choir sacristies and confessionals: it is intended also to erect a north-western tower, 140 feet high: the reredos is adorned with carvings of scriptural and ecclesiastical subjects: the church will seat about 600 persons. The priests' house adjoins the church.

The Baptist chapel, Bartholomew street west, erected in 1817, is a stone building in mixed styles with seats for 800 persons; a large lecture hall adjoining was erected in 1876; the Baptist chapel in South street is a brick building with stone dressings, rebuilt in 1823 and enlarged in 1876, to seat 700 persons.

The Congregational Church in Friernhay street, will seat 450 persons. The Brethren have a place of worship in Wesley place, Sidwell street, formerly belonging to the Wesleyans, with 300 sittings: services in connection with the Friernhay street room are held in the Victoria Hall.

The Bible Christian chapel in Northernhay street, purchased in 1851, but erected a few years previously, is a large rectangular building of stone, with seats arranged in the form of an amphitheatre and will hold 1,000 persons: it was enlarged in 1893, at a cost of £3,000.

The Congregational church, on Southernhay, is a building of Westleigh stone, with Bath stone dressings and bands of redstone, in the Early Decorated style, consisting of apsidal nave, aisles, transepts, and a tower with spire, 165 feet in height: the stone pulpit was presented by the architects, Messrs. John Tarring and Son, of London: the large stained window at the north end was the gift of Nathaniel Rogers M.D.; the south window is filled with French stained glass: the total cost, including the site, was £9,750: there are sittings for 585 persons in the area and 462 in the galleries.

The Countess of Huntingdon's chapel, in Grosvenor place, now the Free Church of England, is a small building of stone, with sittings for 300 persons.

The chapel of the United Methodist Free Church in Northernhay, erected in 1858, is a plain building of red brick; in 1892 it was re-decorated and the electric light introduced at a cost of £200, and has 450 sittings.

The Wesleyan chapel, Mint lane, erected in 1832, is a large building of red brick, with a portico, and will seat 900 persons: Christ Church, Southernhay, erected in 1846 as a proprietary chapel, but now also a Wesleyan chapel, affords 1,000 sittings.

The Salvation Army Temple, in the Friars, formerly a meeting-house belonging to the Society of Friends, is a large building with a red brick front; it was enlarged in 1889, at a cost of £2,000, and will seat 2,000 persons.

Exeter Cemetery, Heavitree, off the Pinhoe road, consecrated on Saturday, June 2, 1866, originally consisted of 10 acres, of which the inner portion, consisting of 4½ acres, was set apart for the Church of England, and the remainder for Dissenters and Catholics, each portion having a mortuary chapel, built of Heavitree stone, with seats for 40 persons: the adjoining cemetery, of about

2 acres, formerly belonging to St. Leonard's, was added in 1877, and in 1883 an addition of 16 acres was made, of which 4 acres were consecrated in 1887; a further addition of 2½ acres was made in 1893; the cemetery is under the control of the Corporation, acting as the Burial Board.

Exeter Old Cemetery, in Bartholomew street, opened in 1837, was closed for interments on the opening of the new one in 1866, and is now laid out in walks and planted with shrubs as an open space for the public; the pathway between this cemetery and the adjoining churchyard of Allhallows-on-the-Walls is formed on the top of a portion of the ancient city wall, known by the name of "Snail Tower," and from hence an extensive view of the surrounding country can be obtained.

The Jews' Cemetery, in Magdalen street, consists of 1½ acres.

The Guildhall, in High street, is a massive edifice of stone, rebuilt on the site of the ancient Guildhall, first built in 1330 and re-erected in 1464; the upper storey, which is cinque-cento work of 1593, projects beyond the line of the street, and is supported on an open arcade of five arches, with heavy moorstone columns, the façade being divided into three compartments by coupled stilted columns of the Corinthian order, above which is an enriched frieze and balustrading: the common hall, which occupies the ground floor, is a lofty and spacious chamber 62½ by 25 feet, with an arched roof, and has rich panelling of classic character around the walls, dating from about 1556, and adorned with shields bearing the arms of the city and of various mayors and incorporated trades. In 1888-9 the interior was restored, and a bust of Her Majesty the Queen placed in the hall. At the further or north end of the hall is a fine stained window with the emblazoned arms of England, the city of Exeter, and of numerous mayors and sheriffs; at the same end, next the street, is a gallery, above which are suspended the old colours of the 4th (King's Own Royal Lancaster) reg. and those of the "Exeter Loyal Association," a volunteer corps raised in 1798 to repel the threatened French invasion; there is also here a bust in bronze, by Westmacott, of Henry (Addington), 1st Baron Sidmouth, and the walls are hung with portraits, including the Princess Henrietta Maria by Sir Peter Lely; George II. by T. Hudson, of Exeter; Sir Charles Pratt, 1st Earl Camden and Lord Chancellor, by the same; George (Monk), 1st Duke of Albemarle K.G. by Sir Peter Lely; and others of mayors and representatives of the city in Parliament; the Council Chamber contains the portraits of eminent persons connected with the city. The municipal insignia include four maces, two state swords, mayor's chain and badge, cap of maintenance, sheriff's chain and badge, four chains for the sergeants at mace, and four seals; the four silver-gilt maces are each 29½ inches in length and of a corresponding design; the shafts, divided midway, are perfectly plain, and terminate at the lower end in simple knobs; the mace heads are ornamented with winged and foliated female figures, dividing the surface into three portions, which are filled with the city arms and the national emblems; a cresting of crosses and fleurs-de-lis runs round the top of each head, and from this springs an open arched crown; the flat tops of the heads bear the Royal arms and supporters and the initials G.R.; all the maces have the London hall mark for 1731, and were made by George Wickes: the earlier of the state swords is said to have been given to the city by Edward IV. on the occasion of his visit in 1469; the only portion of the original sword is the blade, 36½ inches in length from hilt to point; the sword has an orbicular pommel with embossed mouldings, the hilt having elaborate quillons terminating in grotesque lion heads; this is now a mourning sword, the grip being covered with black cloth and the scabbard with crape; the present hilt and scabbard, as well as the black covering, are said to have been added at the Restoration, in order that the sword might be fitly borne in public on the anniversary of the death of Charles I.; the other sword was presented by Henry VII. on his visit to the city 7th October, 1497, but, as in the previous instance, only the blade of the original sword, 37½ inches long, remains, although the hilt, pommel and grip follow the style of the 15th century, but these, as well as the scabbard, were made in 1634; the pommel bears the arms and monogram of James I. and the arms of the city, and the scabbard is also adorned with the royal arms, and is richly embroidered in gold and surmounted with a crown, six inches high, of silver gilt; the cap of maintenance, worn by the sword-bearer on state occasions, was also given by Henry VII. at the same time as the sword; the actual cap of black felt is worn inside a low-crowned hat of crimson velvet, made in 1634, embroidered with silver-gilt thread; the side of the crown displays a circlet of crosses and fleurs-de-lis, and on the top are the city arms: for the display of these emblems of authority on public occasions are ornamental framework of wrought iron, restored in 1870, is preserved in the Guildhall. The mayor's chain and badge, presented to the city in 1874 by the Royal Archaeological Institute, is of gold and enamel, and weighs 29 ounces; it consists of 32 links, of which part are castles, and seven are composed of the letter X, surmounted by a crown; the pendent badge is a circular medallion, bearing the arms of the city. The sheriff's gold chain, presented in 1878 by the sheriff and under-sheriffs of that year, is a chain of "33," and consists of 27 of these, united by small links; the badge, depending from a triple-towered castle, is hexagonal, and displays two swords in saltire, a royal crown above, the city shield below, and the date 1537, being that of the institution of the shrievalty. The silver chains worn by the sergeants-at-mace date from the reign of James I. and consist each of 40 circular links, inclosing alternately the letters I and B and have pendent badges of the city arms. There are seven corporate seals, and the common seal, presented by William Prudum or Prud'homme, probably the founder of the hospital of St. Alexius, dates from about 1170, and is identical in date and design with that of the borough of Taunton; the two other city seals date respectively from 1531 and 1672; the mayor's seal, a pointed oval, with a seated figure of St. Peter, dates c. 1320; the provost's seal, made in the 14th century, is of silver, and bears a castle, between two lions passant, with other devices; there is also a modern seal for the provost's court, and a silver seal of the statute-merchant, dating from 1292, but of which the counter-seal is now lost. The Corporation also possess a loving-cup, of silver, 14 inches in height, presented in 1876 by past and surviving mayors, and richly ornamented. The mayor wears a robe of scarlet cloth, and the four sergeants-at-mace gowns of black or blue cloth, and Tudor hats trimmed with green and white ribbons. In the muniment room is preserved a fine collection of municipal archives and other ancient documents, dating from the 13th century, which have been carefully arranged and calendered under the direction of Stuart Archibald Moore esq. F.S.A.

The Royal Public Rooms, in New London Inn square, were built in 1820 and comprise a spacious room 100 feet long by 40 in breadth, and 37 feet high, and holding 700 persons; it is let for concerts, balls and public meetings.

The Victoria Hall, in Queen street, is a large building of stone, in the Gothic style, built in 1869 and enlarged in 1874; it has a spacious orchestra and a good organ, erected in 1882; the hall is let for public entertainments and meetings and will seat 1,700 persons; a smaller hall, subsequently added, affords 400 sittings.

Barnfield Hall, attached to the premises of the Exeter Literary Society, and erected in 1890, principally through the munificence of George Franklin esq. is a structure of brick with a glass-covered way along the entire frontage, and is licensed for music and dancing; it will seat over 600 persons.

The Police Station and Court House, Waterbeer street, erected in 1888 from designs by J. M. Pinn esq. architect, at a cost of £5,000, is an edifice of red brick with Beer stone dressings, and consists of petty-sessional court and police offices; a portion has been adapted for the use of the town and magistrates' clerks.

The Commercial Union, formerly the West of England Insurance Co. was established here in 1807, in High street, in a building of Portland stone; the front is relieved by fluted pilasters of the Corinthian order, and a projecting portico, on columns of similar character, over which is a statue of King Arthur.

The General Post Office, High street, erected in 1883-5, on the site of the old Grammar School, is a fine building of Portland stone and brick, in the Gothic style, from designs by Mr. E. G. Rivers, of Bristol, and consists of basement, ground floor and two upper storeys; the front and east side of the building are relieved by columns of Aberdeen granite. There is a parcel depot at St. David's station.

His Majesty's Prison, in New North road, overlooking the South-Western railway station, was completed in 1790, under an Act of Parliament obtained in 1787, but in 1853 was re-erected on the plan of the model prison at Pentonville, London, and will hold 365 prisoners of both sexes: at its eastern end are the head quarters of the county constabulary.

The Eastgate Arcade, a structure in the Classic style, was built by a private limited liability company in 1880-81, and occupies part of the site of the old Exeter Grammar School and grounds. Near this spot stood the original East gate of the city, and the foundations of one of its round towers, accidentally met with in preparing the ground for the new building, have been carefully preserved and utilized. The arcade, connecting the top of High street with West Southernhay, forms a covered avenue about 250 feet long and 15 feet wide, with a height to the apex of the glass roof of 36 feet, contains 24 shops, and over the High street entrance is an illuminated clock; on the left hand of this entrance stands the Eastgate coffee tavern, a building erected contemporaneously with the arcade by a separate company, but forming part of the general design furnished by Mr. James Crocker F.R.I.B.A. of Exeter. The total cost of these undertakings, including the land, was about £18,500.

The Constitutional Club, standing at the corner of Bedford and Catherine streets, is a building, erected in 1883, of Wellington pressed bricks with Beer stone dressings, in the French Renaissance style, from designs by Mr. Edward Webb A.R.I.B.A. architect, of Exeter and Barnstaple. The principal entrance is from Bedford street, and the club contains, on the basement floor, a buffet, cellars and offices; on the ground floor is the secretary's office, bar, stewards' and visitors' rooms, &c. with three spacious shops; on the first floor is a spacious meeting room, coffee and news rooms; on the second floor two billiard rooms with bagatelle, card and smoking rooms; and on the third floor, kitchen, scullery, cook's pantry, bath room and four bedrooms.

The Devonshire Liberal Club, established in January, 1890, occupies premises in Bradninch place, consisting of a large billiard room with two tables, reading, news and smoking rooms.

A Theatre existed in 1750 in Theatre lane (now Waterbeer street), on the site of the present Police Courts. The first Theatre Royal, erected between Bedford circus and Southernhay in 1787, was burnt down in 1820, but rebuilt and opened in 1821, and existed till 1884, when it was in turn destroyed by fire. In 1886 a new theatre was erected at the junction of Longbrook street and New North road, from designs by Mr. C. J. Phipps, architect, of London, but this edifice was also burnt down 5 September, 1887, when upwards of 200 persons lost their lives. The present theatre, built in 1889 on the same site, is constructed on the Irving-Darbyshire safety principle, and was erected at a cost of £15,000.

The Royal Albert Memorial Museum and Free Library, in Queen street, completed in 1869, at a cost of nearly £20,000, as a memorial to H.E.H. Prince Consort, but since considerably enlarged, is a building of Pocombe stone, with reliefs and dressings of Bath and Chudleigh stone, in the Gothic style, and consists of a centre and two wings, comprising together a frontage to the road of about 145 feet, with a side frontage towards Upper Paul street of about 120 feet; the building contains, beside the museum, a free library, reading room, apartments for the use of the science and art classes, private rooms for the committee and curator, and for the attendant in charge of the building, and a spacious art gallery was added in 1896; there is also a free reference library: the entrance in Queen street is by an open arcade of three arches, supported on columns of Aberdeen granite; the wide landing of the staircase is adorned with a full-length statue, in Caen stone, of the Prince Consort in his robes as Chancellor of the University of Cambridge, by the late E. B. Stephens esq. B.A. of this city. The museum is supported by the Free Libraries' rate, but it is also largely indebted to private munificence. In February, 1897, a large and valuable collection of books were placed here, having been bequeathed to the Free Library by the late Mrs. Fisher, of Abbotsbury, Newton Abbot. The collection includes history and antiquities of art and natural history. The museum is governed by a committee of 30 members, elected annually by the Town Council. Mr. James Dallas F.L.S. is curator, secretary and librarian, and Mr. John E. Coombes, assistant librarian.

The Devon and Exeter Institution, in the Close, established in 1813, has one of the largest and best libraries in the west of England, containing upwards of 30,000 volumes; the premises are lit with the electric light and include a spacious reading room supplied with current literature, as well as writing and smoking rooms.

The Athenæum, in Bedford circus, erected by a committee of shareholders, is now the property of Mr. James Knill, and contains a lecture theatre seating about 300 persons.

The Exeter Young Men's Christian Association occupies premises at King's Lodge, High street, adapted to their present purpose from plans by Mr. Charles Cole, architect, of Exeter, and opened 25 October, 1892; the building comprises a lecture hall and class rooms, parlour, reading, writing and recreation rooms, gymnasium, secretary's office and other offices; the premises are open daily from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m.; annual subscription 5s.

The County Sessions House, built in 1773 and situated within the walls of Rougemont Castle, has a fine stone front: here the county sessions and assizes for Devon, the petty sessions for the Wonford division and the county courts are held: in the Crown Court is a large painting, about 21 feet by 16 feet, of the "Judgment of Daniel," by William Brockedon. In the courtyard in front of the building is a statue in white marble, by Mr. E. B. Stephens, of the late Earl Fortescue K.G. lord-lieutenant of the county, erected in 1863, and in 1893 a porter's lodge was built. Larkbeare, a handsome mansion on the Topsham road, is appropriated as judges' lodgings.

Exeter is within the Western Military District, and is the depot of the 14th Regimental District (Devonshire Regiment); and also the headquarters of the 1st Devon Militia, forming the fourth Battalion of the Devonshire Regiment; three batteries of the Royal Artillery are also stationed here; and the Royal First Devon Imperial Yeomanry, the 1st Devonshire Volunteer Artillery, the 1st (Exeter and South Devon) and 3rd Battalions of Rifle Volunteers and the (Devon and Somerset) 1st Engineer Volunteers have their respective headquarters in or near the city.

The Artillery barracks, in the Topsham road, are built of brick and form a large square, with officers' quarters facing the entrance gates, quarters for the men, and stables on either side; adjoining the entrance gates are various offices, mess room &c.

The Higher barracks, in Howell road, originally built for cavalry in 1792, consist of several buildings of red brick, with officers' quarters facing the entrance, and are now occupied by troops belonging to the 14th Regimental District.

The Volunteer Drill Hall, in Bedford circus, was erected in 1892 on the site of the old theatre, at a cost, including the site, of about £4,000, and is a structure of brick, the hall being 100 feet long by 45 feet wide, and having a balcony capable of seating 200 persons; adjoining, on the ground floor, is a reading-room, and in the basement is an armoury, holding 1,500 stand of arms, a store room and a Morris tube range; on the first floor are meeting rooms for officers and sergeants, and on the third floor is a band practice room. Adjoining the hall are quarters for the sergeant-major.

A large amount of business of various kinds is carried on in this city, quantities of miscellaneous goods being imported and exported by means of the river Exe.

The principal industries are paper making, iron and brass founding and flour milling; there are also large tanneries and breweries, the oldest of which is the City brewery, situated in the Commercial road; the important tobacco factory of Messrs. H. C. Lloyd and Son employs about 150 girls and 40 men and boys, and Mr. Townsend's printing establishment employs 250 persons; a considerable number of workmen are also engaged in building, brick making and steam sawing, and in the nurseries of Messrs. Veitch and Son.

The woollen manufacture was introduced here at an early period, and in the time of Queen Elizabeth a great number of foreign clothworkers were employed; in 1676 nearly the whole of the citizens were engaged in this branch of trade, the extent of which may be judged from the fact that, in 1750, 302,760 pieces were exported; a century later we find but slight traces to indicate that so large a business had ever existed, the closing of the Continental ports against English goods by Napoleon I. having inflicted a blow on the woollen trade of Exeter from which it never recovered, and the manufacture has now entirely disappeared.

The city possesses two excellent and spacious covered markets, erected under the provisions of an Act of Parliament, at a cost of £88,220. The Eastern Market, a structure of the Doric order, built chiefly of granite and Bath stone, and occupying an area of about 230 by 165 feet, extends from Queen street to Goldsmith street, and was opened in 1838 for the sale of meat, fish, fruit and vegetables. The Western Market, in Fore street, completed in 1836, is occupied mainly by butchers' stalls, but has a few shops, and a portion is also appropriated to the use of corn and seed factors.

The Cattle Market, in Bonhay road, is close to the river Exe; the market day is Friday. Fairs are held on the third Wednesday in February and May, first Thursday in October, last Wednesday in July and the second Wednesday in December.

The Rougemont Hotel, in Queen street, a building of red brick, was erected in 1878 at a cost of £25,000.

Other principal hotels are the Clarence and Globe, in the Cathedral yard; the London, in London Inn square; the Bude and the White Lion, in Sidwell street; and the Half Moon, in High street.

There are five Banks.—The Devon and Cornwall Banking Co. Limited, the Exeter Bank (Sanders, Snow and Co.), the National Provincial Bank of England Limited, the Wilts and Dorset Banking Company Limited and Messrs. Fox, Fowler and Co.

The Devon and Exeter Savings Bank, established in 1825 and certified under the Act of 1863, is under the direction of 28 trustees and upwards of 100 managers, and has receivers of deposits in almost every town in the county; has invested in the Bank of England (1900) £1,077,981. This institution is empowered, under the provisions of the Act 16 and 17 Vic. cap. 45, to grant Government Annuities not exceeding £100 a year.

The Exeter Baths and Washhouses, in King street, opened 9th August, 1852, include six first-class and eight second-class baths, and eight baths for women, these comprising two vapour baths: the washhouse, which contains a steam apparatus, allows of 19 washers at a time, and is amply supplied with hot and cold water, and adjoining is a drying chamber.

The Exeter Tepid Swimming Baths, erected 1893, on the King's Lodge site in High street, by a company with a capital of £6,000, contain a swimming bath 175 feet long by 30 wide, slipper baths and hot and cold douche baths.

The Royal Devon and Exeter Hospital, in Southernhay, was first founded in 1741: the present hospital, opened in 1743, is an extensive brick building, containing about 214 beds and a good medical library, established in 1838. The hospital has been considerably enlarged at various dates: in 1856 a new wing was added from a bequest by Mrs. Halford, and a ward for young children at the sole expense of the late Mrs. J. C. Bowring; a chapel for the use of the patients was erected in 1866 at the sole expense of the late Arthur Kempe esq. to whose memory a stained west window has been placed in the chapel by John Bullivant esq.; and in 1896-7 another new wing, with laundry, kitchen and electric light works, was added at a cost of £19,000. The number of in-patients treated during 1900 was 1,219 and of out-patients 5,067. On the 4th of July, 1899, the hospital was visited by Their Royal Highnesses the Duke and Duchess of Cornwall and York.

The Dental Hospital, in Castle street, established in 1880, is opened daily (Sundays excepted), and is wholly supported by voluntary contributions. The total number of cases treated in 1900 was 4,381.

The West of England Eye Infirmary, in Magdalen street, established in 1808, is an extensive structure of brick, with stuccoed front: it was enlarged in 1865, again in 1881, and contains 50 beds; a considerable addition was made to the land in the rear of the building in 1888, at a cost of £300; the number of patients in 1888 was 1,852, in 1892, 2,054, in 1895, 2,818 and in 1900 there were 2,469 out-patients and 374 in-patients: in 1895 additional land, at a cost of £3,500, was purchased adjoining for the erection of new buildings completed in 1901 at a cost of £25,000, available for 85 in-patients and having also a very large out-patient department. The building is arranged on the pavilion plan, the centre block being assigned to administrative purposes, the left wing to male patients and the right wing to female patients; the new buildings were designed by Mr. Bramwell Thomas, architect, of London.

The Dispensary, in Queen street, established in 1818, is a plain edifice of stone, erected in 1841 at a cost of £2,400; the institution is supported by voluntary contributions, and in 1900 5,571 patients were relieved.

The Homoeopathic Dispensary, Cathedral yard, was established in 1849.

The Lying-in Charity, Magdalen street, was established in 1819 for the assistance of respectable poor married women at their own homes during confinement.

The Female Home and Penitentiary, in Holloway street, founded in 1819, is a large building of brick and stone, available for 50 inmates.

The West of England Institution for the Instruction of the Deaf and Dumb, on the oral system, established in 1826, occupies buildings of red brick and stone in the Topsham road; a new wing was erected in 1862; a gymnasium and workshops have since been added; and in 1895-6 it was partly rebuilt, much enlarged and re-fronted, at a cost of £6,000, and eight separate classrooms added for 86 pupils; there are now 82 children on the foundation.

The West of England Institution for the Instruction and Employment of the Blind, on St. David's hill, is a large edifice of red brick, erected in 1830 and enlarged in 1855, and consists of a central block, three storeys in height, with a principal entrance on the ground floor, and wings of two storeys, with an annexe to the right wing, built in 1850. Large quantities of basket work, matting, brushes and knitted work are here manufactured; the workrooms are open to public inspection from 10 to 12 and 2 to 4 on Wednesdays and Fridays; in 1900-01 there were 21 male and 15 female inmates, besides 16 journey-men and adult daily pupils.

x. General charities:—Attwill's, consisting of 20 almshouses in the New North road and 12 in Grendon road: each married inmate receives 7s. 6d. and each single inmate 6s. per week, with coals and medical attendance. Calwodey's is expended in grants in augmentation of Palmer's, Lant's and Attwill's charities. Palmer's consists of four almshouses in New North road, founded in 1479 by John Palmer, of Exeter, and built in 1839 for four poor women, each of whom must be 65 years of age and resident in Exeter for 10 years previous to election; each receives 6s. weekly, with coals and medical attendance. Grendon's Hospital, consisting of almshouses, first founded in Preston street in 1406, by Simon Grendon, of Exeter, for 10 poor women, and until recently known as the "Ten Cells," were removed and rebuilt in 1880 by the trustees on a more open site on the Grendon road: these buildings are of local Pocombe stone with Box stone dressings, from designs by Mr. Robert W. Best, architect, of Exeter, and now provide for 12 occupants, each of whom receives 6s. a week, with coals and medical attendance. Hurst's, founded in 1568 by William Hurst, five times mayor, consists of 12 almshouses in Belgrave road, for 12 poor married or single men of 65 years of age, the former receiving 7s. 6d. and the latter 6s. a week, with coals and medical attendance. Lant's, founded in 1675 by Richard Lant, consists of 12 almshouses, in Bartholomew street, for 12 poor persons, married or single, the former receiving 7s. 6d. and the latter 6s. a week, with coals and medical attendance. Magdalen Hospital, originally a lazaret house, now consists of almshouses in Magdalen road for 19 poor persons, married or single, the former receiving 7s. 6d. and the latter 6s. a week, with coals and medical attendance. The annual income of all the foregoing charities amounts to about £2,000; Buckenham's, for householders of the parishes of St. Lawrence, St. Paul, Allhallows-on-the-Walls and Holy Trinity, is distributed in money at Christmas, the amount being usually £28; the yearly income amounts to £64. Martyn's, of about £90 yearly, is for apprenticing, in premiums of £20 each. Tuckfield's, for distribution in bread and clothing, school prizes and apprenticing; yearly income about £144. Blundell and White's, of about £17 yearly, is for apprenticing. The trustees meet at the offices of the charities, 20 Cathedral yard, on the last Monday in each month at 11 o'clock; clerk and surveyor, A. Bromley Sanders.

2. Church charities:—Sir John Acland's gift. The balance in favour of this charity at the beginning of 1882, amounting to about £336, was paid over to the trustees of St. John's Hospital, under an order of the Charity Commissioners, dated 26th August, 1881. Seldon's, of about £102 yearly, is for distribution in bread. Lethbridge and Darye's, consisting of 10 almshouses in Parr street, is for four married couples and six single persons, each of whom receives 5s. weekly. Fley's consists of six almshouses at St. Sidwell's, for two clerical inmates, either ministers or their widows, and four other poor women, the former receiving 7s. 6d. and the latter 5s. weekly. The three immediately foregoing charities were united and are administered according to the provisions of a scheme of the Charity Commissioners, dated February 5th, 1866; the united yearly income is about £419. Clerk to the Church Charity Trustees, R. R. M. Daw, solicitor, 13 Bedford circus.

3. Miscellaneous charities:—The Ancient Incorporation of Weavers, Fullers and Shearmen, incorporated in 1489, has connected with it the following charities:—Pince's, Drake's, Newcombe's, Marker's and Munkley's, of 5s. each to poor freemen of the city. H. Bawden's and J. Reed's, of 2s. 6d. each to widows and female orphans of deceased freemen. Jeffery's, of £4 to the Nonconformist minister at Ford, Stokenham, and gifts of 20 coats, shirts, hats and pairs of stockings and shoes, viz.: 14 to freemen (not being publicans), 3 to poor persons of Ottery St. Mary and 3 of Stokenham. Crispin's, consisting of premiums of £5 each on the apprenticeship of the sons of freemen of the company, and the same amount at the end of the term (eight years). Meetings of the incorporation are held on the last Thursday in August and on the 5th November. Borough's, which consists of rent and annuity arising from Nadder Estate, Whitstone, is distributed on the Thursday before Christmas Day, among six or more poor housekeepers of the city or county of Exeter, being over 60 or under 30 years of age, who do not reside in any almshouse and have not received pay from the Corporation of the Poor within the preceding 12 months. No young man may have it a second time, nor any old man twice within seven years. This charity is administered by a body of nine trustees; William Ashford Caunter, 15 Bedford circus, clerk. Potter's provides relief to poor tuckers and weavers who have not received pay from the Corporation of the Poor within one year, or the benefits of the charity within five years, and if funds permit pensions are also given to eight poor persons: this charity is distributed early in January, and is managed by six trustees; A. Bromley Sanders, clerk, 20 Cathedral yard. St. Petrock's, consisting of four houses in Magdalen street, rebuilt in 1875, is for persons in reduced circumstances and of good character, who have resided three years in the parish of St. Petrock, or in the city of Exeter, with 6s. per week, or 7s. 6d. for a married couple, not being under 60 years of age. This charity is controlled by eight trustees and the parish churchwardens, acting ex-officio; F. H. H. Orchard, 17 Castle street, clerk. Spicer's charity furnishes sums of not less than £5 or more than £20 yearly to poor freemen of the city of Exeter, and is distributed on the second Friday in December. This charity is distributed by four trustees; Mr. John Gedley, 15 Bedford circus, clerk. Ploud's gift consists of the interest from a £50 Exeter Turnpike Deed Poll; it is subject to the same restrictions as Borough's, but recipients to be between the ages of 30 and 60 years.

Wynard's Hospital, consisting of 12 almshouses with a chapel, in Magdalen street, were founded and endowed by William Wynard, Recorder of Exeter, in 1439: the buildings form a quadrangle; the attached chapel of the Holy Trinity, built in 1436, and attached to a Maison Dieu, is of Perpendicular character; it was destroyed in 1643, restored in 1675 and again restored by the late Mark Kennaway esq. in 1864; the chancel contains a monument of carved marble and mosaic work to Harriett Codrington, wife of Mark Kennaway esq. d. 1861, and there are several other memorials to members of the Kennaway family, of various dates: the east window is stained and two others on the south side partly so; the chancel retains a water drain and is separated from the nave by a fine arch bearing the city arms and those of the diocese. The chaplaincy, value £63 13s. 4d. yearly, in the patronage of Lawrence J. Kennaway esq. has been held since 1887 by the Rev. William Everitt M.A. of Trinity College, Dublin, and rector of St. Lawrence's church; each inmate receives from 2s. to 3s. a week, subject to the patron's certificate of good behaviour.

Besides the charitable institutions above mentioned there are or were others, viz.:—1. The hospital of SS. Buriana and Alexis, founded by W. FitzRalph or Prodon in 1164-70, and afterwards merged in that of St. John. 2. The ancient almshouse of the bishops, situated in the Calendar Hay, from which circumstance the brothers and sisters were known as "Calendarers"; this foundation was also annexed to St. John's. 3. The "Combrev" Hospital, founded in 1408 by Sir William Bonville, and transferred to the Crown in 1554, and to the city by Queen Elizabeth in 1562, after which it was associated with Lant's foundation, and the site and buildings then decayed were alienated. 4. Exbridge Hospital, founded in 1514 by J. Moore and Bartholomew Fortescue. 5. St. Catherine's Hospital, founded in the 15th century (c. 1457) by John Stevens M.D. canon of Exeter, for aged females, and endowed in 1562 by William Herne, rector of St. Petrock's, in 1663 by Dean Young and in 1667 by Robert Hale, treasurer; the Charity Commissioners, 2nd July, 1880, sanctioned a scheme for the sale of the buildings and site of St. Catherine's, on the complete avoidance of the dwellings.

The Frances Homes, in Clifton road, erected in 1878 by the late Dean of Exeter, in memory of his wife, afford a home to 12 women, who live rent free.

Exeter Free Cottages, on St. David's hill, erected in 1860, on a site given by the late John Dinham esq. are 40 in number, 24 of which were built by John Dinham esq. 8 by the late John Scanes esq. and 8 by the citizens, the object being to provide homes, rent free, for persons in reduced circumstances, but having an income of not less than £15 a year, and being inhabitants of the city of Exeter or of the parishes of Heavitree and St. Thomas, preference being given to those over 60 years of age. The management of this charity, including the appointment of inmates, is in the hands of trustees, who meet on the first Wednesday after quarter day; clerk, Fred Pollard, 1 Bedford circus.

Bury meadow, a small piece of ground near St. David's church, has been inclosed and planted and is open to the public: within the grounds is a tree planted to commemorate the marriage of H.R.H. the late Duke of Edinburgh K.G. 23 January, 1874. Northernhay, an open space in a lofty position to the north of the city, at the back of the Castle, is laid out as a public garden and contains a marble statue, executed by the late Mr. E. B. Stephens R.A. and erected in 1866, in honour of the late John Dinham, an eminent philanthropist of this city. There is also here a statue by the same artist, on a granite pedestal, erected in 1861 to the late Sir

T. Dyke Acland bart. M.P. for North Devon, and a group in bronze, also by Mr. Stephens, of a deerstalker with his dog; near this is a fine white marble statue, on a pedestal of Devonshire granite, in the robes of a peer, by J. E. Boehm R.A. of the 1st Earl of Idlesleigh P.C., G.C.B. on which is the following inscription:—

Stafford Henry Northcote, Earl of Idlesleigh, G.C.B., 1818-1887.
"Cui Pudor, et Justitia, soror Incorrupta Fides, nudaque Veritas, Quando ullum in venient parem?"—Horace, i. 24.

In Bedford circus is a bronze statue, on a granite pedestal, 8 feet high, of the late William Reginald, 11th Earl of Devon, erected in 1880 and executed by Mr. Stephens. Other recreation grounds are in the Bonhay road, on the borders of the river Exe, and in Newtown, in the parish of St. Sidwell; the last, called "Belmont Pleasure Ground," is 5 acres in extent, and was opened in July, 1886. The neighbouring streams afford abundance of amusement to the angler.

The Miles' Memorial Drinking Fountain and Clock Tower, at the end of Queen street, erected by Mrs. W. Miles, in 1897-8, to commemorate the 61st year of the reign of Her late Majesty, Queen Victoria, and to perpetuate the memory of the late William Miles esq. is a structure of Chudleigh limestone and red Corsehill stone, in the Renaissance style, from designs by Mr. T. A. Andrews, architect. The lower portion of the tower forms the fountain, and has at the angles, four engaged columns, which serve as standards for lamps; on the upper base of the tower are small cornices and carved pediments supporting carved groups of sea-horses. On the north and south sides are large drinking troughs for cattle, executed in granite. On the east is a fountain for wayfarers, and on the west side is the door for access to the tower. On the south side is an arched recess filled by a bronze commemoration tablet with inscription. On the opposite side are the donor's arms and motto. The main portion of the tower is circular with clustered columns at the angles. The clock projects somewhat beyond the face of the shaft, and has four dials, each 4 feet 6 inches in diameter, and is surmounted by an octagonal cupola containing the bell upon which the clock strikes, and the whole terminates in a wrought iron and copper vane.

In addition to the religious communities previously noticed there were others; the chief of these being the Benedictine priory of St. Nicholas, originally an appendage to Battle Abbey, in Sussex, but refounded under a charter of William II. and made an independent house, though maintaining subsidiary relationship to Battle, from which its priors were named, and under the full jurisdiction of the Bishops of Exeter. On the dissolution of the lesser monasteries, it was surrendered in 1536, by William de Cullumpton, then prior, the revenues being estimated at £147, and the site and buildings were granted to Sir Thomas Dennis knt. Portions of the fabric, some of Norman and others of very late date, still exist, and part of the site has been purchased by the Catholics.

The Cluniac priory of St. James de Marisco, without the walls, was founded before 1143 by Baldwin de Redvers, 2nd Earl of Devon, generally styled Earl of Exeter, and was a cell to the abbey of St. Martin des Champs, at Tours, but the foundation included only a prior and four monks.

The Franciscans or Grey Friars were established in Exeter on a site in the north-west quarter of the city, near Snail Tower, between 1220 and 1240, but in 1287, Edmund (Plantagenet), Earl of Cornwall, translated the convent to a fresh site without the south gate: in 1507, the first buildings of these friars was granted to the city, and in 1535, by order of Henry VIII. a sermon was preached by Hugh Latimer, Bishop of Worcester, afterwards martyred: this house was surrendered by its last warden, John Cardmaker, or Taylor, in 1538. In July, 1883, excavations on the later site yielded large quantities of human remains, and a ledger stone, inscribed to Brother Roger Davnatt D.D. ob. 13 December, 1516.

The Dominicans or Black Friars were settled here in 1258, by Sir O. de Dyneham, and their monastery stood on the north side of the cathedral, but without the close: the church of this house was the burial place of a number of distinguished personages, among these being, it is believed, James de Audley, Baron Audley K.G. a celebrated warrior in the reign of Edward III. ob. 1st April, 1386; Sir Henry Raleigh knt. ob. 1301; Sir John Dinham knt. and Jane (de Arches), his wife, ob. c. 1496, and Thomas Calwoodleigh, ob. c. 1479, and Elizabeth Calwoodleigh, his mother: the monastery was suppressed in 1538, and granted to John, 1st Baron Russell, who in 1550 became Earl of Bedford, and built with the materials a mansion called "Bedford House," taken down about 1773, in which the Princess Henrietta Anne, 4th daughter of Charles I. was born on the 16th June, 1644.

Rougemont Castle, which stands on a red igneous rocky eminence, at the northern angle of the city wall, and about 200 feet above the sea level, was formerly a fortress of considerable strength and importance: the structure was rebuilt in the Norman period, but the existing remains consist only of the gateway, part of the walls and an ancient tower near the gateway, now covered with ivy, and presenting an exceedingly picturesque appearance. On the south and south-east, and especially in the grounds belonging to Mrs. Gard, the castle ditch still remains and is considered a very fine example of an ancient British earthwork. Within the precincts was the attached collegiate chapel of St. Mary, founded in the 12th century, with four prebendaries, but no dean or other head: the building, consisting of chancel and nave, was destroyed in 1774, but the prebends were continued, till in 1863, there were two only, and now but one, that of Carswell, remains.

In the 16th and 17th centuries, the city was completely surrounded with crenellated walls, forming a parallelogram about half a mile in length from east to west, and three furlongs wide, the castle occupying an area about 150 yards wide at the north angle; there were also fortified gates at the principal points of the compass, another on the south-west, called "the water gate," and bastions at intervals: in 1769 the north gate, a massive structure with a lofty turret on the west side, was taken down, and in 1774 the donjon and sally-port of the castle, with a tower gateway, the chapel, and castellan's house, were all destroyed, and in 1784 the east gate, rebuilt c. 1498, which had huge flanking towers on the outside and a large square tower within, also perished: the west gate was removed, together with the water gate, in 1815, and in 1819 the south gate, which, like the east gate, had huge towers on either side, and was the finest of the series, was swept away; of the walls, the greater part, in a more or less perfect condition, still remains, and portions are visible at many different points.

Among the distinguished natives of this place may be mentioned Bartholomew, bishop of Exeter (1162-84), Richard Blandy, bishop (1245-57), Walter Bronescombe, bishop (1258-80), Sir Thomas Bodley (1544-1613), Simon Ockley, professor of Arabic at Cambridge (1678-1720), John Bridgman, bishop of Chester (1619-52), Eustace Budgell, miscellaneous writer (1685-1736), Tom D'Urfey, dramatist and poet (1630-1723), Lord Gifford, Master of the Rolls (1770-1826), Sir Vicary Gibbs, chief justice of the Common Pleas (1752-1818), Peter, lord King, Lord Chancellor (1669-1734), Sir W. Petre; Cardinal Stephen Langton, d. 1228; Princess Henrietta Anne, daughter of Charles I. and Duchess of Orleans (1644-70), Richard (the "Judicious") Hooker D.D. (1554-1600), Herman Merivale C.B., D.C.L. (1806-74), and Edgar Bowring Stephens A.R.A. sculptor (1815-82).

The city still retains a few of the fine old houses which, till about 1768, abounded; one of these, formerly known as "Mol's Coffee House," and erected about 1596, stands in the Close, and has boldly projecting bays rising through three storeys and supporting an open gallery, behind which is a fourth storey, with a voluted gable; the house stands on the site of a college of Annellors or Charity priests, and the cellar or undercroft, and some of the walls of this college still exist in the basement of the present building: the fraternity was dissolved in 1547-8; on the first floor is a fine oak-panelled room, the cornice of which is adorned with 46 shields of arms, many representing Knights of the Garter. The building was opened as a coffee house during the Commonwealth; by a man named Mol, said to be an Italian, and continued to serve as such and as a club until 1829, when it was reopened by John Gendall, as a fine art repository, and is now occupied by Messrs. Worth & Co. picture restorers; in the High street are other good examples, one of which, of the 17th century, has been carefully restored, although the ground floor is modernised; and some specimens will be found in Fore street. In Bampfylde street is Bampfylde House, once the residence of the family of that name; it has a courtyard with quaint entrance porch, and the interior includes a fine panelled room, with some good carving, and an elaborate chimney-piece with a quartered shield of the Bampfylde. The houses on either side of the opening from the cathedral yard into High Street have small columns inserted in the walls, marking the site of the ancient Broad gate, removed in 1825. At the corner of North Street stands an ancient wooden figure of St. Peter, once forming a portion of the projecting supports of a house.

The number of electors on the parliamentary register in 1901 was 8,757.

HEAVITREE, in Domesday "Hevetrove" (hive-tree), is a populous parish and suburb on the east of Exeter, and partly within the parliamentary borough, in the North Eastern division of the county, hundred and petty sessional division of Wonford, St. Thomas union, Exeter county court district, in the rural deanery of Christianity, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter.

Under the provisions of the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73), the parish is governed by an Urban District Council of fifteen members.

The church of St. Michael, erected in 1845, is a large building of stone, in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave of six bays, aisles with galleries on each side, south and west porches and a western tower with pinnacles, erected in 1889-90 at a cost of £3,155, in commemoration of H.M. the Queen's Jubilee: the pulpit is of stone and there is an oak eagle lectern: on the north side of the chancel is a handsome canopied monument with brass effigy to the Rev. Arthur Atherley, 36 years vicar of Heavitree, erected by the parishioners in 1857; and a little to the left of this hangs a list of the vicars of Heavitree from the year 1280 to the present time: there are inscribed stones to John Vener, ob. 17 July, 1527; John Legh, priest, vicar here at the beginning of the 16th century, and to Hugh Legh, ob. 2 August, 1536: on the floor facing the chancel is a slab, inscribed to Thomas Gorges esq. of Heavitree, and his wife, dated 1670, with arms, and the following curious inscription:—

Their dust here lies whose soules to heaven are Gonne,
And waite till Angells rowle away the stone."

In the south gallery is a marble monument, with various dates, to members of the Raleigh family; and in the south aisle a memorial to Stephen Shute, 13 years a member of the choir, erected by his fellow workmen and master in 1880; there are three stained windows in the chancel, three in the north aisle, and in the south aisle six; the stained west window is a memorial to the Rev. Reginald Henry Barnes M.A. vicar here 1869-86. In the church are many armorial shields, and some remains exist of ancient screens: and there are sittings for 1,208 persons. The church was restored in 1895 at an estimated cost of £3,700, when a new chancel with aisles, organ chamber and vestries were added. In 1895 the eastern end of the church was extended and rebuilt, providing a new chancel, and in 1898 the east window was filled with stained glass, and oak choir seats were provided as a memorial to the late Rev. S. H. Berkeley, vicar 1886-1897. A new peal of eight bells (tenor, 26 cwt.) was placed in the tower in 1897 as the Diamond Jubilee memorial to Her late Majesty Queen Victoria. The registers, dating from the year 1653, and in a remarkably good state of preservation, commence with a Latin inscription, of which the following translation is appended:—

"The swaddling cloaths, the wedding and the winding sheet,
The cradle, bed and grave within this Booke do meete."

The living is a vicarage, with Whipton annexed, average net yearly value £450, with residence and 6 acres of glebe, in the gift of the Dean and Chapter of Exeter, and held since 1897 by the Rev. Theophilus John Ponting M.A. of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

The Artillery Barracks, on the Topsham road, are partly in the parish of Heavitree.

The Exeter City Asylum (Digby's), in this parish and 2 miles from Exeter, is an edifice of red brick with terracotta dressings, in the Renaissance style, from designs by R. Stark Wilkinson esq. F.R.I.B.A. of Exeter, and was opened 29 Sept. 1886, at a cost of £100,000: the present building will hold 378 patients, 178 males and 200 females, but has been designed so as to allow of extension for 500 patients: there are now (1901) 360 patients, some being received from neighbouring boroughs: there is a chapel and farm attached. The electric light is in use here on the storage system.

Wonford House Hospital, a registered asylum for insane private patients only of the upper and middle classes, is situated on elevated ground, in the parish of Heavitree, about one mile from the city of Exeter: the institution was first established at Bowhill in 1801, but the building having become old and inadequate, it was removed to its present situation in 1869: the front of the building commands extensive views of Haldon and the estuary of the Exe; the east wing overlooks the village of Wonford, and the west the Cathedral and the suburbs of the city. Large open ornamental grounds, from which the views are both extensive and very beautiful, surround the house, and afford every convenience both for amusement and exercise. A nine hole golf course has recently been laid out. The building, constructed of Westleigh stone with Bath stone dressings, is in the Tudor style, and has a length of 480 feet; the interior is well furnished, and includes several suites of private rooms. In 1883 the governors purchased a residence at Dawlish, for the purpose of affording patients the benefits of change and sea air: the house, known as "Plantation House," stands in its own grounds, and is provided with all modern sanitary improvements; arrangements can be made for the permanent reception there of patients whose friends may prefer a private residence to an asylum.

There are charities of about £190 yearly value, including the parish lands, viz.: Serie's gift of £131 18s. 10d. stock in the public funds, producing a yearly income of £3 19s.; Nutt's, of £50 New 3 per Cents, yielding £1 10s. yearly; Spicer's, of £427 11s. 5d. Consols, producing £12 16s. 6d. yearly; Collingwood's, of £217 1s. 11d. Consols, producing £6 10s. 2d. yearly; Warren's, of £54 1s. 2d. Consols, producing £1 10s. 6d. yearly; Furlong's, of £52 6s. 11d. Reduced 3 per Cents, producing £1 11s. 4d. yearly. There are also 17 acres of charity lands, vested in certain trustees, who appoint the inmates of the almshouses and dispense the income arising from the estates. One-third of a tan yard and one-quarter of a moor (in the parish of Sowton) are now represented by £2,106 8s. 2d. Consols, producing a yearly income of £63 4s. dating from 1882. The above charities are distributed to the poor in food, coats and wearing apparel: the charitable foundation, called "Liv-erydole," founded by Sir Robert Dennis, A.D. 1597, and finished by Sir Thomas Dennis, his brother, in 1594, consists of eleven almshouses, with a chapel attached, rebuilt about 1853; the almshouses were rebuilt about 1865 and the charity has an income of £45. The Rev. W. Everitt B.A. rector of St. Lawrence's, is chaplain.

Ducke's almshouses, founded in 1589, were rebuilt in 1853, and are for eight single persons, appointed by the trustees of the Heavitree charity lands. St. Loye's almshouses, also founded in 1589, were rebuilt in 1824, and are for four married couples. Both sets of almshouses are supported from the rents of the parish lands. Near St. Loye's is the ancient chapel of St. Loye's or Efigius, now a farm building. In this parish are also the remains of the Benedictine Priory of Polleshoe or Polsloe, founded in 1166 by William, lord Briwere, and dedicated to St. Catherine: the convent was surrendered by Eleanor Sydnham, 12th priores, 19 Feb. 1538, when there were 13 nuns, and revenues estimated at £164. Of the buildings, a part of one of the main walls, with its battresses, the entrance arch, and some other fragments, remain. The arms were: "gu. a sword between 3 Catherine wheels, arg."

Lord Poltimore P.C. who is lord of the manor, Lady Morley, Edward Andrew Sanders esq. Winslow Jones esq. and J. B. Short esq. are the chief landowners.

The soil is of a strong red loam; subsoil, gravel, near Liverydole. The chief crops are those of market gardeners, with a considerable acreage of wheat and meadow land. The acreage is 3,469; rateable value, £38,257 15s.; the population in 1871 was 3,660; in 1881, 4,548; in 1891, 6,271, and in 1901, 7,531, including the officials and inmates of Wonford House Lunatic Asylum, 406 in the City of Exeter Lunatic Asylum and 440 in the Artillery Barracks.

St. Leonard's is a small parish adjoining Heavitree, distinct from the parish of the same name within the city, and rated at £39.

Whipton, 1 mile north-by-east, is a hamlet in the parish of Heavitree. All Saints', a chapel of ease to St. Michael's, Heavitree, is a building of stone in the Gothic style, consisting of chancel, nave, south transept, south porch and a western turret containing one bell.

Divine service is held in the school chapel, erected in 1879 at a cost of £800.

ST. THOMAS, lying to the west of the river Exe, has a station on the line of the Great Western railway from Exeter to Plymouth; it is a parish and the head of a union, in the North Eastern division of the county, Wonford hundred and petty sessional division, Exeter county court district and partly in that parliamentary borough, rural deanery of Christianity, and archdeaconry and diocese of Exeter. It is united to Exeter by the Exe bridge, and was for a time governed under the "Local Government Act, 1894" (56 and 57 Vict. c. 73). by an Urban District Council, but now forms part of the municipal borough of Exeter, under the provisions of the "Exeter Corporation Act, 1900."

The church of St. Thomas the Apostle, in Cowick street, is a building of stone in the Perpendicular style, consisting of chancel, nave, aisles, transepts, north porch and a western tower with pinnacles, containing 6 bells, all cast by the Penningtons in 1786; from a former peal of 5, with additional metal: in the chancel is a canopied tomb with recumbent figure, by Bacon, to Mrs. Medley, wife of the Most Rev. John Medley D.D. Bishop of Fredericton, Metropolitan of Canada, and late vicar of this parish; there are also monuments to the Northmore, Buller, and Williams families; and others to Capt. William Augustus Gordon and to Major-Gen. Charles George Gordon R.E., C.B. slain at Khartoum, 26 Jan. 1885, erected in 1891; on the north side is a chapel belonging to Sir Charles Brune Graves Sawle bart.; seven of the windows are stained, and three of these are memorials: the present church, built in 1866-7 on the site of a former church, and enlarged in 1821-2, was resealed and restored internally between 1868-71, and has 900 sittings. The register of baptisms and burials dates from the year 1554; marriages, 1577. The living is a vicarage, with Emmanuel church annexed, net yearly value £150, with residence, in the gift of Gen. the Rt. Hon. Sir Redvers Henry Buller P.C., V.C., G.C.B., G.C.M.G. of Downes, Crediton, and held since 1874 by the Rev. Maurice Swabey M.A. of King's College, Windsor, Nova Scotia, who is also official patron and perpetual curate of the chapelry of Oldridge.

The Mission Hall, Alphonson street, was erected in 1896 by Mr. McLaren, and will seat 500 persons.

Emmanuel Church, in Okehampton road, first erected in 1887, as an iron structure, at a cost of £505, was rebuilt in 1899, in the Early Perpendicular style, and has 600 sittings; the Rev. Charles Hitchcock Williams M.A. of Trinity College, Cambridge, has been curate in charge since 1889, and the Rev. Frank Simmons A.K.C.L. is Blundell's missionary.

Blundell's School Mission Room, Cowick street, with a parochial library of over 1,000 volumes attached; the Rev. Charles H. Williams M.A. is the librarian.

The Emmanuel Church Institute, in Okehampton street, is open daily.

The Free Methodist chapel, in Church road, will seat 500 persons.

The Cemetery, at Landhayes, on the Exwick road, and consecrated in 1877, consists of about 3 acres, and has a double mortuary chapel. It is under the control of the Exeter City Council.

St. Thomas's Pleasure Grounds, Cowick street, opened March 30th, 1891, consist of about four acres of land, laid out with walks and flower beds; a portion in the centre of about three acres being reserved as a playground for children; the total cost, defrayed by the late St. Thomas Local Board, amounted to £3,600.

Floyer Hayes, in this parish, was for centuries the seat of the Floyers, the tenure depending on the service of attending the Earls of Devon, as lords paramount, whenever they came into Exe Island.

Cleve House is the property of John Northmore esq. of Ashburton, and residence of Mrs. Snow.

General the Right Hon. Sir Redvers Henry Buller P.C., V.C., G.C.B., G.C.M.G. who is lord of the manor, Sir Charles Brune Graves-Sawle, of Barley, Exeter, John Northmore esq. and T. M. Snow esq. are the principal landowners.

The area is about 3,000 acres; rateable value, £33,131; the population in 1881 was 6,161 and in 1891, 8,245, which includes 9 officers and 176 inmates in the workhouse.

A part of the parish of St. Thomas has been added to Whitestone by Exeter Corporation Act, 1900, the remainder forming part of the Exeter municipal borough.

Parish Clerk, Thomas Pyne Helmore, 6 Hampden place. Town Sub-Post, M. O. & T. O., T. M. O., S. B., Express Delivery, Parcel & Annuity & Insurance Office, Cowick street.—Robert Bradley, sub-postmaster

At Cowick, in this parish, was once a Benedictine Priory, founded in the reign of Henry II. by William Fitz-Baldwin, as a cell to the Abbey of Bec, in Normandy, and dedicated to St. Andrew. This monastic house was under the especial patronage and protection of the Courtenay family, and within the priory were buried Hugh de Courtenay, feudal baron of Okehampton, ob. 1292, and his wife, Eleanor (Spencer), interred 1 Oct. 1328; Hugh de Courtenay, his son, knight banneret and Earl of Devon, ob. 1340, and Agnes (St. John), his wife: the convent, seized with other houses belonging to foreign monasteries by Hen. V. was afterwards restored and granted about 1462 to the abbey of Tavistock: the exact site of the buildings is uncertain, but they are believed to have stood between the river and the Okehampton road: the arms were: "3 cows pass. sa. collared or, eyed gu." Some of the windows of Cowick farmhouse retain ancient stained glass. Here also, at Marsh Barton, was the priory of Marshes, or St. Mary de Marisco, founded as a cell to Plympton priory for canons of the order of St. Augustine.

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES.

The Exeter Diocesan Training College, Heavitree road.
 This was founded in 1840 by the Exeter Diocesan Board of Education, for the purpose of educating & training young men to be schoolmasters in elementary schools, in connection with the Church of England. The college, erected in 1854, from designs by Mr. John Hayward, architect, is a fine building of Westleigh stone, about 200 feet in length, with a large lecture room, dining hall, committee room, principal's house & a cloister; attached is a chapel, in which services for the students are held twice daily; one of the windows was filled with stained glass in 1887, another was erected in Oct. 1883, to the late Chancellor Harington, and about 1893 one was presented by ex-students, in memory of two of their fellow students deceased, & one by the ex-presidents & officers of the Exeter Club of Old Students. There are two classes of students: (a) Queen's scholars, consisting of those who, whether they have been pupil teachers or not, pass the competitive examination of candidates for admission, held in the month of July by the Committee of Council on Education; (b) private students, comprising those who decline, or fail in, or are preparing for, the examination for admission, but who desire to be trained for one year or longer. Private students are admitted only when the number of Queen's scholars in residence falls short of the full complement. The competition for scholarships is open to all candidates of good character, who are (1) more than eighteen years of age, & who (2), if pupil teachers, have successfully completed their apprenticeship. The subjects of instruction agree in the main with the scheme proposed for the annual examinations of students in the training schools under inspection, as set forth by the Committee of Council on Education, & are distributed over a period of two years. The Rev. Prebendary James George Dangar D.D. St. John's College, Oxford, principal & lecturer in divinity; Rev. James Phillips B.A. vice-principal & assistant chaplain; Rev. William David M.A. lecturer in theology & ecclesiastical history; William Weeks, tutor; Richard Trevithick, Richard J. Partridge & Edward Thomas Clarke, assistant tutors; Sergt.-Major Furneaux (1st Volunteer Battalion Devonshire Regiment), drill instructor

THE EXETER GRAMMAR SCHOOL.

This school owes its foundation to Walter de Stapledon, Bishop of Exeter (1308-27) & founder of Exeter College, Oxford, whose intentions were carried into effect by his successor, Bishop Grandison, about 1330. St. John's hospital, to which the school was attached, was suppressed at the dissolution of monasteries by Henry VIII. but the hospital buildings were bought back and the school re-founded in 1637 under a charter of Chas. I. In 1877 the school received a new scheme, under which it was reorganized, & removed from the High street to its present site in Victoria park, the south-east suburb of Exeter; the new buildings of red brick with Bath stone dressings, erected in 1886, from designs by Mr. W. Butterfield, architect, at a cost of £15,000, and adapted for 200 boys, include a chapel, separate class rooms, & a laboratory for practical chemistry, with special conveniences for advanced instruction. A swimming bath, 70 feet by 25 feet, has been recently constructed, & a sanatorium & a gymnasium erected. Attached to the school are eight exhibitions of £40 a year, tenable according to a new scheme approved in 1882, at the universities, or at any place of higher education approved by the governors, of which two are awarded every year. Besides these exhibitions the boys of this school compete with those of Taunton College School, The King's School (Sherborne), & B'undell's School (Tiverton); for the Huish exhibitions of £50 for four years, four of which are awarded every year. There are also three or more Reynolds exhibitions of £60 a year for four years at Exeter College, Oxford, for those intending to study for Holy Orders; two Vidalian scholarships of £30 a year for four years at St. John's College, Cambridge; & ten Stapledon scholarships of £60 a year for five years at Exeter College, Oxford, for boys born or educated in the diocese of Exeter, & four Dyke scholarships of £60 a year for four years at Oxford, for boys born or educated in Somerset, Devon or Cornwall. School scholarships, tenable only at the school, are awarded at the beginning of the autumn term, by special examination, their number depending on the number of boys in the school. The school is one of the first grade, & is intended to provide an advanced education, capable of being developed in any required direction. The course of instruction is that of the best public schools, & comprises classics, mathematics, natural science & modern languages. Special attention is also given to preparation for mercantile or other work as parents may request.—Governors, Sir J. H. Kennaway bart. M.P. Escot, Ottery St. Mary (chairman); Sir Thomas Acland bart. Killerton, Exeter; the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop of Exeter, The Palace, Exeter;

Cathedral School, The Close. The foundation consists of 14 choristers of the Cathedral; boys whose voices appear promising may be taken & trained with the choristers with a view to their competing for vacancies which may occur in the choir; other pupils are also taken & prepared for the public school & universities. The Very Rev. the Dean & Chapter of Exeter Cathedral are the governing body; the Rev. Harold de Vere Welchman M.A. of Hertford College, Oxford, head master; F. J. Pinn, resident assistant master

ROYAL ALBERT MEMORIAL COLLEGE, founded in 1893, is situated in Queen street. The college comprises a technical department, which is under the direction of the University Extension Department, under the direction of a special committee & the Syndicate of the University of Cambridge, & day classes for preparing students for University & other higher examinations. The Technical Department includes the schools of art & science & various technical classes; while in the University Extension Department day classes in various subjects, & normal classes are instructed & lectures delivered. The college is provided with excellent apparatus, well appointed laboratories & a large teaching staff. It has also the advantage of being under the same roof with the library & museum. Principal, Arthur William Clayden M.A.; hon. secretary, U. E. department, Miss Montgomery; hon. secretary, Technical department, G. R. Shorto esq. town clerk

HELE'S ENDOWED SCHOOL, Hele road, St. David's. This school, opened January 15th, 1850, is supported by funds derived from the rents & profits of large estates, formerly the property of Elize Hele esq. who, in 1632, conveyed his lands to Sir J. Maynard & others, as trustees, to appropriate them to "some godly purposes & charitable uses." A portion only was so appropriated in 1656, by the trustees for the foundation of the Blue Maids' Hospital, & for nearly 200 years the immediate descendants of Sir J. Maynard received the unappropriated income, & distributed it in private charities as they thought fit, without being accountable in any manner for its application: proceedings in Chancery resulted in depriving the descendant of Sir J. Maynard (the surviving trustee) of all control over the funds, which were thereupon vested in the Crown. The Government, on being petitioned, made to the inhabitants of Exeter certain grants. Of these, only that of £1,500, for the building of a boys' school (now Hele's Endowed school) & £300 a year for its continual maintenance, came into operation. Attached to the school are five exhibitions of £20 each, which may be appropriated to the exhibitor's advancement in any trade or profession. By subsequent Acts the funds of the several endowed schools were merged & placed under the same management. The Grammar school, High School for Girls, Hele's school & St. John's orphanage & Elementary school are now partly supported by the funds originally bequeathed by Elize Hele; Edward H. Shorto, head master; Robert Addiscott, Richard Voden, W. T. Cheeseworth, B. H. Restall, John Passmore, R. Luscombe B.A., A. H. Horne, W. B. B. Ruth & A. E. Bedford, assistant masters; A. E. Blanc, teacher of French; Sergt.-Major Coales, drill instructor High School for Girls, Barnfield, Denmark road, established in September, 1877, & occupying buildings of red brick with stone dressings, erected in 1887. This school is endowed from the funds of St. John's hospital; Miss Caroline Turner, head mistress Middle School for Girls, Pennsylvania road, a structure of red brick with Bath stone dressings, erected in 1889, at a cost of about £5,000; Miss Pemberton, mistress St. John's Hospital (for boys), High street, was founded by Gilbert & John Long about 1225, & enlarged by Bishop Grandison (1327-69), who also founded & added to it a school for 12 boys, with a grammar master: in 1540, the hospital was suppressed, but was revived by Hugh Crossing, mayor in 1620, & in 1629, after his death, Joan, his widow, re-established it as a school, the nave of the church, which had been used as a dwelling-house, being re-converted into a school-room; in 1637 the foundation was confirmed by royal charter, & in 1876, under a scheme of the Endowed Schools Commissioners, it received a governing body of its own, & is now open to all boys who, in the opinion of the governors, are of good character & of sufficient bodily health, & are residing with their parents, guardians or near relations in or near the city of Exeter. The religious instruction is in accordance with the principles of the Church of England. New class rooms, for 300 boys, were added in 1897. There are at present 20 boys on the foundation. Attached to the school are two scholarships, giving the holders free education in the school & an exhibition tenable at Hele's school; E. A.
